

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA

A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.

He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "going off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.

The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.

Summer time is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.

Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.

THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.

Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.

In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.

AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.

Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.

The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.

Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.

"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."

He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."

Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.

The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.

Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.

Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.

Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."

He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.

In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossiter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.

LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossiter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."

He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossiter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."

"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.

He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

TOP posters cost more than WHIP spent

by LYNN ASINOF

The Incumbent To Overall Progress Party (TOP) paid more money for posters in the Wheeling village elections last April than its opposition spent on the entire campaign, according to documents obtained by The Herald.

Two bills from the Hinz Lithographing Co. of Mount Prospect show that the TOP party spent $1,083.70 for 7,500 campaign posters. When contacted yesterday, a spokesman at Hinz said his firm also had done other work for the TOP party.

"I think there are another few jobs, but I'm not sure of the amounts," he said.

In comparison, the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) party spent only $985 for the entire election campaign. Party treasurer Edward Hagemann said yesterday this figure, released before the election, was correct "within a couple of dollars or so." According to Hagemann, the bulk of the money was spent on printing.

The Herald has also obtained a bill from the Union Hotel Corp., 124 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, for food and drink for the TOP party. The bill shows the party owed the hotel $467.45, including $40.95 spent by candidate Bill Hein two days after the April 17 election.

THE BILLS are the first indication of the amount of money spent by the TOP candidates during the election campaign. Members of the TOP group, who have controlled village government for several years, narrowly won two of three contested village board seats. Village Pres. Ted Scanlon and Clerk Evelyn Dens, both TOP candidates, were also reelected.

Michael Valenza, former village trustee who served as TOP campaign manager, originally promised to release the party financial records by early May. Valenza, however, has repeatedly delayed releasing the financial report. He has given a variety of excuses for the four-month delay, including statements that the books were incomplete and that he needed permission from the TOP candidates.

Most recently Valenza promised to release the party finances after they were audited by an accountant. This promise was made in July, and Valenza has been unavailable for comment since mid-August when he said he had not yet contacted the accountant.

The TOP campaign documents obtained by The Herald came from a source close to Valenza.

The finances of the TOP party came into question when candidates of the opposing WHIP party challenged the amount of money being spent during the campaign. The WHIP candidates noted that TOP held several large cocktail parties, distributed substantial amounts of campaign literature, and erected several large campaign signs in the village.

TOP CANDIDATES also distributed campaign buttons and miniature toy tops. Besides the cocktail parties, the TOP Party also had a luncheon at the Union Hotel.

Contacted yesterday, Frank Miramonti of the Hartmann House said his restaurant handled two TOP functions, but that none of the bills were paid directly to the TOP party.

Miramonti said the TOP victory party at the Hartmann House cost about $800 for a buffet and drinks after the election. "That was done by a group of citizens," he said. "The TOP party didn't pay for that. That was done by someone else. The businessmen paid for that. They all chipped in and paid for it."

Miramonti, did not remember the names of the businessmen involved.

The restaurantier said a cocktail party at the Hartmann House April 8 also was not directly financed by the TOP party. "That was a Sunday, and it was an open house deal," he said. "They individually paid for their own cocktails."

"I had nothing that the TOP party actually paid for," Miramonti added. "They didn't book anything over here as a party."

All five candidates on the Incumbent TOP ticket have said they had nothing to do with party finances either during or after the campaign. The candidates said they knew the money was coming from friends, but did not know exactly who contributed to the campaign. They said they had left the finances in Valenza's hands so they could be free to campaign.

TOP topped $20,000: WHIP

Sheila Schultz, who served as campaign manager for the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP), said yesterday that expenses for the To Overall Progress Party (TOP) campaign probably exceeded the $20,000 originally estimated by the WHIP party.

"The figure that we gave was researched by someone prior to the election, and therefore did not include some of the expenses," she said. "I believe the term we always used was that we could account for $20,000."

Mrs. Schultz said she was therefore not surprised by the amount of money spent by TOP for campaign posters. Documents uncovered by a Herald investigation show that TOP spent $1,083.70 for 7,500 posters.

"It seems high until you consider the fantastic number of posters they had," she said. "I would imagine the number of pieces of literature would be astronomical as well. It would verify the fact that a tremendous amount of money was spent for this type of an election, and you can only ask why."

According to Mrs. Schultz, expenses not included in the $20,000 estimate were the victory party at the Hartmann House restaurant and the payment to workers on election day. "It is my understanding that their poll watchers and all their workers were paid for their work on election day," she said.

Mrs. Schultz said the delay in releasing the TOP financial records raises many questions. Although Michael Valenza, former TOP campaign manager, promised to release the records in May, he has repeatedly delayed releasing the information.

"If they had nothing to hide, why not release it," she said. Mrs. Schultz said, however, that any information released on the TOP finances would be questionable after such a long delay.

"I feel that it is immaterial now," she said. "I feel that to hold on to the records for this long under various excuses makes the final release kind of ludicrous. I would question why they were held that long if they were to be a factual release."

Planners to hear Harmony proposal

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will consider a subdivision of Harmony Village that will allow the townhomes in the development to be sold.

Plans for the project were approved without any subdivision of the property.

Each of the townhomes must be on a separate lot in order for developers to sell the units.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 355 W. Dundee Road.

New counselor isn't out to 'police' students

by JILL BETTNER

Striding through the hall of the new Buffalo Grove High School, the young man is stopped by a confused student seeking directions to the band room.

"Gee, I think it's that way," he says, pointing over her left shoulder.

She thanks him, probably thinking this guy in a sport coat and tie with longish blond-streaked hair is just another teacher.

But, he isn't. He's a policeman and his name is Don Bottenhagen.

Assigned fulltime to the high school, Bottenhagen's official title is police community relations officer. More commonly, though, he's known as the police counselor.

"That's my job. I'm here to counsel, not to throw the cuffs on somebody," said the handsome brown-eyed officer. At 27, Bottenhagen could easily be that new history instructor girls always whisper and giggle about at the beginning of another school year.

DESPITE HIS deceiving appearance, Bottenhagen said the word is already out that he's a cop.

"Oh, I know several of the kids from being on the street and they've got a grapevine that just doesn't quit," he laughed. "I've already had comments like 'Hey, Pig!' and 'Hi Fuzz!,' but when I hear them, I just smile."

Bottenhagen doesn't mind the hazing, but he plans to do what he can to change the image most kids have of police.

"I'll be considered the school cop just because that's the label they'll automatically give me. However, I'm going to try to build up the kids' confidence in me by speaking with them and showing them I'm not the cop they're thinking about — although I can be."

That's where respect for the law comes in.

"I'm not coming in here like gangbusters and pinch kids for this and that, unless, of course, they do something that has to do with the safety of students and faculty. That's coming within the realm of the law that has to be enforced," he said.

"I hope I'll be able to build up the kids' respect for the law," he continued. "After all, this is where the future cops, lawyers and judges are going to come from."

As he explained it, Bottenhagen's job is to get at the reasons why a kid gets into trouble at school — truancy, drugs, shoplifting, whatever — not merely to inflict the penalties.

With the help of the social worker, psychologist and other counselors at the school, Bottenhagen's aim is to straighten the student out before there's no choice but to take him to juvenile court.

"OUR LAST resort is to send a kid to court," he said. "When a kid gets in trouble here and comes to see me, as far as I'm concerned, that's the first time. He'll get a second chance from me and I'll do everything I can to help him."

Sometimes, he said, that will mean seeing the child's parents or referring the entire family to another agency such as Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling for counseling.

On a different level, Bottenhagen said he'll be doing some community-wide counseling, probably more properly called public relations work.

The police received a complaint Tuesday, the first day of school, that students were loitering during their lunch break in shops in the Buffalo Grove Mall, just across the street from the school.

Canadian mills still on strike

Paper shortage — no progress yet

(From Herald News Services)

Prospects appeared grim Wednesday for early relief in the worsening U.S. newsprint crisis.

Aggravated by labor difficulties in Canada, the newsprint shortage is creating serious problems for U.S. newspapers, particularly in the East and Midwest. Publishers have been forced to restrict circulation, eliminate editions, curtail advertising, reduce news content and otherwise conserve on dwindling paper supplies.

Key element in the emergency is the lack of progress toward ending strikes which have shut down Canadian paper mills in three major companies.

THREE NEWSPRINT plants of Canadian International Paper Co. — which supplies The Herald — have been closed down by strikes since late July. Negotiations haven't met since Aug. 2, when the union turned down a company offer.

Two plants of Price Paper Co. have been shut down by strikes since Aug. 10 with no new negotiations scheduled. Also struck are two mills operated by Ontario-Minnesota Pulp and Paper Co.

Contract negotiations are continuing with unions representing 6,000 workers at Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd. but without any indication of progress in the two-week-old talks.

A union agreement with Abitibi — Canada's fourth largest newsprint producer — is seen as crucial since it most likely would set an industry-wide pattern for settlement of the strikes.

MEANWHILE, Canada's railway system remains snarled by walkouts in key areas despite urgent federal laws which made a national strike illegal. Action by dissident rail workers in central and western Canada, irate at being ordered back to work following the nine-day strike, caused doubt about when full operations might be restored.

Newsprint mills not affected by the paper union strikes had been forced to curtail or cease operations during the national rail tieup. While most of these are reopened, their deliveries of raw material and shipments have been restricted by the continued disruption in Canadian rail service.

The United States is the world's leading newsprint consumer, receiving 65 per cent of its supply from Canada, 32 per cent from U.S. sources and 3 per cent from Europe.

Even before the current strikes crippled production, U.S. newspapers were experiencing difficulty in securing sufficient newsprint supplies. The shortage has resulted from bad weather which hampered production, diminishing pulp resources, and a sharp increase in worldwide demand in the face of lower newsprint production capacity by both Canadian and U.S. mills.

New 'State of the Union' coming

Nixon swipes at Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, promising action to restore public confidence in his leadership, announced Wednesday he will send a new State of the Union message to a "very disappointing" Congress next week urging prompt passage of vital legislation.

In his second televised news conference in two weeks, Nixon said his message to Congress on Monday would stress bipartisan cooperation in cutting federal spending without damaging the national defense, and acting to ease the mounting U.S. energy shortage.

Regarding oil, the President strongly warned Arab countries against threatening to restrict oil shipments to the United States as a way of pressuring the administration to modify its support of Israel.

Nixon said the United States and Western Europe, the two biggest consumers of Arab oil, would be forced to develop other sources of petroleum and leave Arab producers without a market if they continued to increase prices and export appropriate foreign oil company holdings without fair compensation.

On other subjects in his 37-minute news conference, broadcast live from the White House East Room, the President:

- Said he would veto a $2.20 hourly minimum wage bill passed by Congress on the ground it would cause an "enormous" increase in inflation and deny job opportunities for unskilled and youthful workers.
- Said a private audit of his finances "gave the lie" to allegations he had used $1 million in campaign contributions to acquire property at San Clemente, Calif.
- He denied his San Clemente and Key Biscayne, Fla., properties had been enhanced in value by government-financed improvements for security purposes.
- Said it would be a "grave infringement" on Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's rights for the President to comment on "hypothetical" questions about the legal situation as a result of a federal criminal investigation involving Agnew.
- Said there was no chance Congress would approve any "responsible" tax legislation in time to help halt inflation, indicating he still stood firm against seeking a tax increase this year.

Without setting a timetable for reversal of the rise in the cost of living, predicted that the effects of his economic controls, the Federal Reserve Board's tight money policy and increased food supplies would begin to appear in the next few months.

Defended again his refusal to release the secret White House tapes of his Watergate conversations under the doctrine of separation of powers and the need to preserve the confidential nature of presidential discussions. Nixon refused to say what kind of "definitive ruling" of the Supreme Court he would obey on the tapes issue.

While questions about Watergate almost totally dominated his last news conference at San Clemente exactly two weeks before, only six of the questions asked Wednesday dealt with the scandal that has cast a pall over his administration.

Clearly taking the counter-offensive this time, the President opened the news conference by noting Congress' return Wednesday from an August recess and attacking what he called its "very disappointing" record on administration legislation.

Among these he listed appropriations bills of a size that would not exceed his 1973-74 budget requests, and energy measures including the Alaska pipeline, government research for new fuel and power sources and removal of government regulation of natural gas prices.

The President said Congress is considering a number of bills that would "bust the budget to the tune of $6 million." Because he did not want to fight veto battles repeatedly, he said, he welcomed House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill's proposal for an "accommodation" between the White House and the Democratic-controlled Congress to get more legislation approved.

What kind of "definitive ruling" of the Supreme Court he would obey on the tapes issue.

While questions about Watergate almost totally dominated his last news conference at San Clemente exactly two weeks before, only six of the questions asked Wednesday dealt with the scandal that has cast a pall over his administration.

Clearly taking the counter-offensive this time, the President opened the news conference by noting Congress' return Wednesday from an August recess and attacking what he called its "very disappointing" record on administration legislation.

Among these he listed appropriations bills of a size that would not exceed his 1973-74 budget requests, and energy measures including the Alaska pipeline, government research for new fuel and power sources and removal of government regulation of natural gas prices.

The President said Congress is considering a number of bills that would "bust the budget to the tune of $6 million." Because he did not want to fight veto battles repeatedly, he said, he welcomed House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill's proposal for an "accommodation" between the White House and the Democratic-controlled Congress to get more legislation approved.

Rep. Thomas O'Neill

President Nixon

Melvin Laird

Democrats willing, but...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democrats Wednesday urged an end to the legislative civil war with President Nixon, who ordered his top domestic counselor, Melvin Laird, to open negotiations.

Moments before Nixon told a news conference that Congress has compiled a "very disappointing" record this year and urged bipartisan cooperation on his legislative proposals, former congressman Laird agreed to meet with the House Democratic hierarchy.

In a telephone conversation with Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, Laird promised to seek some compromise in the warfare that has led to vetoes and confrontations between the White House and Congress.

"I suggested the Mel that as a first step he can convince the President to sign the minimum wage bill," O'Neill said.

But as a sign of the difficulties facing Laird, the President was telling reporters at the White House about the same time that he would veto the $2.20 hourly minimum wage bill as inflationary and depriving unskilled and youthful workers of jobs.

Nixon's comments drew heated reactions from Democratic leaders.

"The facts will speak for themselves, and the record is very good," Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said. "I think we've been doing a pretty good, workmanlike job."

Speaker Carl Albert said: "I don't blame him for wanting to send a new State of the Union message up here because the first one was very disappointing."

Republican leaders meet with Nixon at the White House today, and Democratic leaders were to hold their own breakfast meeting to draw up a list of "must" legislation and set a target date for adjournment.

"If what we do doesn't please him, he can always call us back into session," Mansfield said of the President.

No more McCord, Magruder speeches

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Calling the practice "a disgrace," Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica Wednesday ordered Watergate conspirators Jeb Stuart Magruder and James W. McCord Jr. not to make speeches about the scandal.

"I don't understand and I don't think it's fair, frankly for Mr. McCord... and Mr. Magruder to profit by their wrongdoing, to appear on the lecture platform for $2,000 or whatever it is," Sirica said during a 13-minute hearing.

"To me it's a disgrace and as long as I'm judge I'm going to try to prevent it."

However Sirica gave both men permission to travel throughout the United States in connection with their businesses. Magruder has a marketing consulting firm that he told the judge is having only moderate success. McCord has a private security firm.

Both Magruder and McCord were in court as Sirica ruled against their lectures. Magruder was deputy campaign manager for Nixon and McCord was security chief for the Committee to Re-Elect the President and the electronics expert on the Watergate bugging team.

Jeb Stuart Magruder

McCord spoke 12 times in August but Fensterwald said the defendant collected a fee for only two lectures. Sirica turned down Fensterwald's suggestion that McCord speak only 100 miles or more from Washington and give no news interviews.

Richard Ben-Veniste, an assistant to Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, opposed a lecture tour by McCord as "improper" on grounds of pretrial publicity. Sirica agreed that such publicity would jeopardize the rights of future Watergate defendants.

Mitchell, Stans want delay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former cabinet members John Mitchell and Maurice Stans asked a federal appeals court Wednesday to stop a "headlong rush to judgment" and postpone their perjury and conspiracy trials in the Vesco GOP campaign contribution case, now scheduled to begin next Tuesday.

Appeals Court Judge Henry J. Friendly granted a hearing on the request for Tuesday morning, which could delay the trial for at least a few hours.

Mitchell, the former attorney general and later President Nixon's campaign manager, and Stans, former commerce secretary and later Nixon's chief fund raiser, are charged with conspiring with financier Robert Vesco to accept a $200,000 contribution in return for helping Vesco in a securities investigation.

Vesco was later charged with "looting" $224 million from companies and associates controlled and the $200,000 contribution was returned. Vesco is a fugitive in Costa Rica.

Lawyers for Mitchell asked the court to postpone the trial from Sept. 11 until at least Oct. 4 to allow him to prepare his defense. Lawyers for Stans asked for "adequate time" to prepare a defense. Neither Mitchell nor Stans appeared in court. Both men are free on their own recognizance.

Peter Fleming, Mitchell's attorney, said Mitchell had been overcome by other inquiries into his activities, particularly the Senate Watergate investigation. As a result, Fleming said Mitchell was able to give this case little attention.

If the trial is not postponed, Fleming said, "we believe we will be substantially prejudiced if forced to trial on that date."

Attorneys for Stans said their client's constitutional rights would be violated unless the appeals court "intervenes to delay Judge Gagliardi's arbitrary and headlong rush to judgment." Stans' attorneys also argued that he had been "the focal point of the many investigations which have arisen in the aftermath of the 1972 presidential campaign."

Richardson orders FBI to probe Agnew 'leaks'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has ordered the FBI to investigate news leaks about the investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, which he acknowledged might have come from the Justice Department.

Richardson's decision was reported Wednesday by the Washington Post and a Justice Department spokesman confirmed the accuracy of the report, based on an interview with Richardson Tuesday.

Richardson, who will have the final say on whether evidence against Agnew can be presented to a Baltimore grand jury in the kickback investigation, said Aug.

23 he had ordered an inquiry into the possibility his department was involved in the news leaks.

"Since then," the Post quoted him as saying in the interview, "I have had indications from news media themselves that some information has come from inside the department."

Agnew, in the second of two news conferences called to declare his innocence of any wrongdoing while serving as Baltimore County executive, governor of Maryland or vice president, denounced leaks of the kickback investigation as "a clear and outrageous effort" to influence grand jury proceedings.

Terrorists seize embassy

BULLETIN
French authorities have agreed, after hours of negotiation to allow Arab gunmen who seized the Saudi Arabian embassy safe conduct out of the country, an Egyptian intermediary said.

PARIS (UPI) — Armed Palestinian guerrillas seized the Saudi Arabian Embassy Wednesday, holding eight persons hostage, and threatened to blow up the building unless they were given a plane to fly out of France. Several hours later they hurled an embassy employee out the window.

Police said the man thrown from the second story window, an Egyptian national, was alive when taken away in an ambulance.

Three women among the hostages were heard shrieking in terror inside the building and Arabic speakers translated a chorus reverberating from inside as: "We will die... for the Palestinian cause... we will kill."

There was no move by more than 300 French police surrounding the embassy for hours after the three guerrillas, said by one Arab diplomat to be members of the notorious Black September group, seized the hostages to press for demands for the release of a prominent guerilla leader jailed in Jordan.

• It's one of those records that most people will ignore, but highly significant nevertheless: astronaut Alan Bean, commander of the Skylab 2 crew, passed the mark for time in space when he eclipsed Charles "Pete" Conrad's 49 days, three hours, 33 minutes and 36 seconds. By the time he returns to earth, Bean — fourth man to walk on the moon — will have logged 69 days, 15 hours, 54 minutes and 32 seconds, a record that could stand into the 1980s since no more space veterans are scheduled for long-duration missions.

• Ex-TV newsmen Chet Huntley finds himself on the other side. A Montana State University study says his 10,600 acre Big Sky development near Yellowstone National Park is driving elk out of their winter ranges, will cause the disappearance of other wild animals and poses serious water pollution problems. Several environmental groups previously criticized the $20 million project — primarily financed by Chrysler Realty Corp. — as harmful to Montana's ecology.

• Flashing your body on film apparently is different than doing it in a magazine. Model-actress Cybill Shepherd, who you might recognize from those "Cover Girl" TV commercials, is suing Playboy Enterprises, Inc., for $9 million for publishing two semi-nude photos of her without consent. The suit alleges they were clipped from frames of "The Last Picture Show," and among other things invaded her property rights and her professional image as "a young woman of dignity, intelligence, modesty and artistic and personal integrity."

• Business makes strange bedfellows. Before a Congressional subcommittee studying legislation to prohibit the blackout of home sports events — mainly aimed at pro football — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn declared himself opposed. Though pointing out that baseball traditionally televises all its games, home and away, he said the decision still should rest with professional sports.

• There should be a lot of interest focused on Miss Kentucky in Saturday night's Miss America pageant. The only black entrant will be Lyda Lewis, who claims she lost a beauty contest back home a few years ago because she was "too white."

Radiation levels—no need to worry

by KAREN BLECHHA

Radiation levels in the drinking water of eight Northwest suburbs are higher than federal standards, but officials say there is no cause for worry.

The eight suburbs are among more than 250 communities throughout the state found to have excessive radiation in their well water supply by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). The suburbs are Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The radiation statistics are only part of the drinking water data compiled by the Illinois EPA and other state agencies through years of routine analysis of well water supplies. John Anderson, manager of public water supplies for the state EPA, said state water officials have known about the data for years and are not alarmed.

ANDERSON SAID radioactivity is only one of 33 variables tested by the state. Barium, another substance that is tested, has turned up high levels in 20 water supplies across the state but in only one Northwest suburb, Hoffman Estates.

Anderson stressed that scientists are unsure how harmful radioactivity or barium content in drinking water is to humans. "A lot of research still needs to be done," he said. He said the state EPA has petitioned the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality to study the effects of both substances.

The EPA measures radioactivity by taking water samples and isolating the alpha radiation in the water. The current safe alpha radiation standard is 3 picocuries (a means of measurement) per liter. Anderson said several water samples are analyzed before a reading is made.

COUNTS IN this area vary from a high of 20 in Arlington Heights to a low of 3.3 in Buffalo Grove. Some towns may have several counts because readings have been made at more than one well. The highest reading recorded by the EPA was 66.6 in Bushnell, a small western Illinois town near Macomb.

Radiation levels in the suburbs were:

Arlington Heights	8.7 to 20
Buffalo Grove	3.3
Elk Grove Village	5.4
Hoffman Estates	3.8 to 14
Mount Prospect	9
Palatine	11.7
Rolling Meadows	4.8 to 17
Wheeling	5

Des Plaines and Schaumburg were not on EPA's list, Des Plaines gets its drinking water from Lake Michigan which was not part of the survey. Like the other suburbs, Schaumburg gets its water from wells and has the largest number of wells, 18. Public Works Director J. C. Smith said he didn't know why his town's drinking water would be different from the other suburbs. "We're just lucky I guess," he said.

RESIDENTS OF the suburbs with high counts should not be concerned, according to Anderson. "All of the high radioactivity that we have found in the water is occurring naturally, coming from the water source," he said. "The material has been in there for years. We have no reason to believe that it is different now than it was 75 years ago when some of these wells were first drilled."

Anderson said there is evidence that radiation is occurring in wells stretching across the northern part of Illinois, from Joliet to the Mississippi River.

The significance of the radiation figures is currently clouded by a controversy over what the standards for radiation in drinking water should be. The current standard was set by the U.S. Public Health Department in 1962. Now a federal EPA committee is working on new standards, but no figures have been released yet.

"I feel they will be raised, but I don't know how far," he said. Anderson said he would be more concerned about counts of 75 to 100 than the counts in the suburbs. "A count of 20 is high, but not alarmingly high," he said.

JOSEPH HARRISON, chief of water supply for the regional office of the U.S. EPA, said the current standard is based on a guideline from the Federal Radiation Council that a human should not take in more than 20 picocuries a day from air, food and water. He said a human is assumed to drink 2 liters of water, or 6 picocuries or about a third of the 20.

"If we knew individuals were getting less from food and air, conceivably the water standard could go up to 10," Harrison said.

Harrison also pointed out that in making radiation counts, the state does not have the equipment to isolate Radium-226, the most dangerous form of radiation that can cause bone cancer. "I suspect a portion of the radiation is Radium 226 but I don't know how much," he said.

Anderson said the radiation counts have been taken over the past several years but he could not give a timetable. He said the EPA will continue its routine water sampling and wait for new standards to be set.

ONCE THE federal EPA sets new standards, the state EPA has the power to enforce them. Although no enforcement methods have been set up yet, Anderson said if a town exceeds the new standards there would probably be a public hearing on the matter before the Illinois Pollution Control Board. The board would then decide if the town has to find a new water source or install water treatment equipment.

Local public works and sanitation officials had mixed reactions to the EPA figures. Those questioned were unaware of the radioactivity readings for their towns.

"I'm not surprised by the findings," said Marjorie Boswell, Mount Prospect director of health services. "It's like other things that have been around for years and people are just finding out about it now."

James Bennett, Palatine public works director, said he was unaware that readings had been taken for Palatine, which has eight wells. He said according to law villages must send water samples from each well at least once a month to the Illinois EPA laboratory in Champaign.

John Hennessy, public works superintendent in Rolling Meadows which registered a high count, accused the EPA of "playing with figures. We have no problem, nor am I worried."

Republicans lay groundwork for 'star-studded' ticket

by BOB LAHEY

Buoyed by the election of a Republican state's attorney and a woman trustee of the Chicago Metropolitan Sanitary district in 1972, Cook County Republicans are laying the groundwork for selecting what they hope will be a star-quality ticket for the 1974 elections.

In response to growing demands for opening up the political process, a procedural committee, headed by Elk Grove Township Committeeman Carl Hansen, has submitted a report to the county Central Committee which initiates three significant additions to the standard slate-making process of the party.

One of these improvisations, the formation of a Search Committee to seek out candidates for each of the county offices on the 1974 ballot, was already under way when the Executive Committee of the county GOP adopted the Hansen report by a unanimous vote last week.

Other provisions in the report call for the unprecedented opening of candidate interviews to the public and the press; and a pledge that "all elements of the Republican Party" have representation on the slating committee.

As far as is known, interviews of prospective candidates by the county slate-making committee have never been open to the public. In the 1972 election, Wheeling Township GOP Committeeman Richard Cowen invited reporters to witness interviews of prospective candidates prior to endorsements by the precinct captains, a practice that had been used in earlier elections by the Wheeling Township organization.

HANSEN SAID his committee agreed that candidates finally endorsed by the party would be exposed to public view and it is reasonable to expect those seeking positions on the county ticket to be examined publicly.

While the language in the committee report calling for representation of "all elements" of the party on the slatemaking committee is broad, Hansen said the committee was committed to giving "more than token representation" to various elements.

While rejecting any "quota system," Hansen said the party will seek to select a slatemaking committee with adequate representation of Republicans "of all philosophical stripes" as well as effective representatives of all factions identified on the basis of race, ethnic origin, sex and geographic location.

The slatemaking committee will endorse candidates for president of the Cook County Board of Commissioners, members of the commission, county clerk, county assessor, sheriff and superintendent of schools.

The private eye biz

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

If Mike Hammer, Joe Mannix or Sam Spade walked into the Apollo Detective Agency, 300 E. Industrial Ln., in Wheeling, chances are he wouldn't even be able to get a job.

For while fictional private eyes are fast-moving loners who skirt the edge of the law, quietly professional and law-abiding individuals are more the stuff of which real life detectives are made, according to Ed Kelly, manager of the agency.

If Mannix did try real-life detecting, he'd probably be disappointed. Although the glamorous and exciting jobs do crop up, detective agencies also handle a range of other jobs considerably less sensational, Kelly said.

The Apollo agency, which has been operating in Wheeling for six months, is just one of a number of detective agencies in the northwest suburbs. According to Kelly, the agency is a fairly typical one.

JUDGING FROM the variety of cases which it handles, the number of agencies in the area is justified.

"The agency is designed to handle every kind of security problem," Kelly said. Since security problems can range from civil, domestic, and criminal investigations to patrol and guard services, detective work can cover any of this.

Unglamorous as it may be, the bulk of the agencies work comes in the form of patrol and guard services. However, even these jobs are varied. Clients run from construction companies who want their sites guarded to the Chicago Art Institute which once hired the agency to guard around $75 million worth of paintings in transit to another museum. To handle the range of jobs, the agency offers armed and unarmed, uniformed and plain-clothes guards.

Maybe 30 per cent of the agency's work is investigative, Kelly said, and this also offers variety. The agency may investigate anything from runaway children to theft in discount and retail stores. Also included in the investigations category is one type of job which Kelly almost mentions with a wince.

THESE ARE investigations springing from marital difficulties.

"There is a stigma that goes along with being a private detective and that is that you spend all your time tracking down cheating husbands and wives," he said.

While the agency does accept such cases as a legitimate service, they only comprise maybe 10 per cent of the agency's jobs, he said. In addition, picture-taking in motel rooms is almost never done, since clients usually only wish to check up on their spouses's actions, Kelly said.

Finally, the agency also handles an assortment of other odd jobs which can run from administering polygraph tests for private companies to installing burglar alarms to checking for electronic bugging devices in industrial espionage cases.

WITH REGARD to the latter, Kelly says he has noticed an increase in public awareness of electronic eavesdropping since the advent of the Watergate affair.

However, he adds hastily, "all we do is electronic eavesdropping prevention," since bugging is illegal.

Although the average employee age is around 30, the agency employs a number of older people. Women also work as detectives, and Kelly says "they make very good undercover investigators, since people usually don't expect a woman to be a detective."

Unlike the traditional fictional private eye, the agency employees also are all specialists.

"EACH EMPLOYEE is so different from the other. We don't want an all-around man. We want experts in each field," Kelly said.

To get these "experts," the agency mostly draws upon people with experience in other branches of investigative or guard work. Typically, agency employees have had experience as policemen, government or military investigators, insurance investigators or as private detectives. Although all the agency employees need not have detective licenses, the agency is licensed by the state for private investigation and guard and patrol work.

Along with experience, the agency also must look for other qualities which mark the good detective. Besides a general observantness and objectivity, "a good investigator also has to be a salesman, a business-minded person, a compassionate person, and yet at the same time he has to be able to be somewhat impersonal. He can't get personally involved in all his cases," Kelly says.

Whether by design or by chance, all the agency employees also have a great respect for local police forces, Kelly says. Perhaps because of this, the relationship between the agency and the police is very good, he says.

"WE DON'T compete with the police. We like to be an outside arm for local police departments," he said.

Although Kelly demolishes the stereotype of the detective who constantly matches wits with the police while solving murder and espionage cases, he says the job is not without some excitement.

"It is routine in the respect that you're always dealing with security. But it's different because you often have to dig out information. Most of the time it's challenging and fun," he said.

Occasionally, more glamorous and exciting cases also develop, like kidnappings which the agency has been asked to investigate. However, Kelly is reluctant to discuss such cases in detail, for fear of violating client's confidentiality.

"I could sit here and describe a bunch of cases which would make us look real glamorous. But that wouldn't be fair to our clients. Any agency which would do that wouldn't be showing much respect for clients," he said.

With the glut of sensational detective stories on television and in print, a real-life detective has no need to perpetuate the exciting image. In fact, he can be content that it's only an image, Kelly indicates.

"If this work was like what you see on television, you'd be walking out of here talking to yourself every night," he said.

Future Fair turnout: disappointing

A total of 201,266 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

"Basically, we learned a lot of things. For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening

Park board aspirants interviewed tonight

Wheeling park commissioners tonight will interview candidates for the vacant seat on the board created by the resignation of former Board Pres. Gus Nizzi.

Applications for Nizzi's seat have been received from Frank Schnaitmann, 51 George Rd., John Bailey, 949 Wilshire Dr.; Gerald Wilson, 375 Park Ave.; Michael Weiner, 34 E. Jeffery Ave., and Mrs. Dorothy Crane, 359 Walnut Ave.

The board will review the applications and interview candidates at 15-minute intervals beginning at 7 p.m. with the business meeting to follow.

Items on the agenda include discussion of the Heritage Park land survey, the swim team's possible use of Neptune's Pool, the development of the Neptune Pool Recreation Center and the purchase of a diving board.

An executive session to discuss land acquisition is scheduled at the end of the meeting.

Group to study school site

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 26 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5½-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 26 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site — I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

gested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

"THERE IS one question that has remained unanswered since the beginning — is there really any benefit to building off the Maryville site?" Sheyker said.

Sheyker said the board should have involved citizens in the site selection sooner. His sentiments were echoed by several board members including Leora Rosen, Ted Wattenberg and Sylvia Lurie.

"I like the idea of a citizens' committee," Mrs. Lurie said. "If the people go over the same stuff, I'm sure they'll wind up with the same conclusions."

Buehler YMCA will be unveiled for public Sunday

The official unveiling of the Buehler YMCA near Palatine comes Sunday during special 3 p.m. dedication ceremonies.

Located at Northwest Highway and Baldwin Road, the $2.6 million facility will be open Sunday for its first public inspection, complete with an indoor swimming pool, handball courts, gymnasium, meeting rooms and arts and crafts areas. An open house is planned from 4:30 to 8 p.m.

Sunday's dedication marks nearly 5½ years of local fund-raising drives and community programs. Y classes and activities have been located in various churches, schools and other community facilities for the past five years. The fall program starts in the new Y on Sept. 17.

Membership in the Buehler Y requires contributions to the building fund and operating fund. Although no set amounts for the pledges are specified, Y officials say the median contribution comes to $31 for operating, and $75 for the building fund each year. Pledges cover a four-year period, and members are expected to accept certain volunteer responsibilities.

Those who participate in the Y's activities pay an additional $75 annual program fee.

COMMUNITIES SERVED by the Buehler YMCA include Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Barrington, Inverness, Lake Zurich and surrounding villages and unincorporated areas.

The one-and two-story building is built with brick walls in both the interior and exterior, a feature that will substantially cut maintenance costs and create a countrylike atmosphere, according to Executive Director Herman Hertog.

Other features of the building include: Indoor six-lane swimming pool. The pool ranges from 3½ feet to 10 feet deep with starting blocks at one end, and one-meter diving boards at the opposite end. Pool and deck areas are ceramic tile. The top half of the walls in the natatorium will be covered with specially-treated carpeting to absorb noise.

Gymnasium: features sliding panels that allow the larger room to be divided into smaller gyms.

Handball courts: Four full-size courts with observation balconies.

All-purpose activity room with catering kitchen, planned for large group activities. Room can be divided into three smaller rooms.

Fitness centers: Special health centers for men and women enrolled in a special contribution program. Centers include sauna, steamroom, massage room, whirlpool and exercise rooms.

SUNDAY'S CEREMONY will feature E. Stanley Enlund, chairman of the National Board of YMCAs U.S.A. and chairman and chief executive officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan in Chicago.

Other officials participating in the dedication include R. Jack Fisher, chairman of the Buehler Y board of directors; Russell V. Puzey, Y board member; Nicholas M. Lattot; John O. Root, president of the YMCA of Metropolitan Chicago; John R. Hughes, former Buehler Y board chairman, and Hertog.

Board member William T. Branham, former chairman of the Buehler Y board, will introduce Enlund. David C. Smith, chairman of the Y's public relations committee, will be master of ceremonies. The Palatine Village Band and Jaycees will also participate in the ceremony.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR Herman Hertog stands at the hub of the Buehler YMCA, the main reception desk. Employees there can view hallways going to all three wings of the building.

Craftsmen have been working through this week to complete the building for Sunday's dedication ceremonies.

BAD WEATHER WON'T slow down people going into the building. The circular drive surrounds the flagpole and a large boulder (left) unearthed when construction workers were building the neighboring Countryside Apartments.

Social Security and You

Q. My daughter is now 29, and she's been totally disabled from a diving accident since she was 29. As soon as she became disabled, I asked about monthly social security benefits for her based on my work record since I'm getting social security retirement checks. I was told she couldn't get payments because her disability hadn't started before 18. Has this recently been changed?

A. Yes. People who became severely disabled before 22 and remain so can get monthly checks if a parent is eligible for benefits or has died after having worked long enough under social security. You should contact any social security office to reapply for benefits for your daughter.

Q: Can Social Security help me? I can't live on the money I get each month from my retirement pension. Welfare wants me to get rid of my house. I've lived here a long time and I don't want to live anywhere else. Isn't there any place where home owners can get a little extra income to live on?

A: Home owners will not be excluded from receiving benefits under the new supplemental security income program. Beginning in January 1974, aged, blind, or disabled persons with limited resources and income may receive a special supplemental federal payment each month. You may file for this supplemental payment at any Social Security office. Even though the Social Security Administration will run the new

by Mort Reed

As with most free participation pastimes, the unintentional pays off big in coin collecting. Sometimes the most obvious production error slipped past the sharp eye of the inspector only to pop up in circulation at a value many times that of a perfect coin of the same date.

A good example is the over-date in which the last numeral in the date fails to totally obliterate the numeral of the preceding year, (e.g.) the 1958 over 7 Flying Eagle cent; the 1918 over 7 Buffalo Nickel; the 1942 over 1 Mercury Dime and the 1887 over 6 Morgan Head Dollar.

Such boo-boos are the result of human insensitivity and should not be blamed on coining press malfunctions.

"Overdating" as described on Page 49 of The Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins says: "A symbol, numeral or letter not in alignment with the general order of its counterparts, whether double struck or punched over itself or a symbol other than itself, is an error in judgment and not the result of mechanical malfunction."

A mistake is basically the end product of trying to re-use an old die by attempting to apply a new digit without first erasing the impression of the old digit. As illustrated, part of the old numeral invariably remains.

THE SCARCITY OR rarity of those pieces that did escape detection depends on the number that slipped through before the double cavity die was removed from service. Usually, the mint production records will indicate the length of service a die experiences before being replaced.

A second numeral error is in the offset when a die sinker or engraver misjudges the size of the date numeral stamp. A typical example being the 1960 Small and Large date Lincoln cents. The page illustration shows the difference between the so-called small date 1960 as compared with the normal size numerals used on previous issues. Had the engraver chosen to go along with the first set of numerals (small) a valuable distinction would never have been made.

In a small date 1960 the numerals "1," "9," and "6" should compare with the same figures in a 1956 date. The "0" is very close to the "6" in the date of a 1950 cent.

The numeral "1" as a bearing point in the large date shows the remaining digits "9," "6," and "0" to be higher at the top letter line. While this all seems a bit trivial, the small date 1960 cent is valued at $3.70 to $4 against 10 cents for the large or normal date. Quite valuable when you consider the possibility of getting 50 such coins in a single roll of one cent pieces.

THIS IS WHAT makes coin collecting a very interesting free participation hobby. Coin values never depreciate.

A quick glance at my new book, "COINS: an Investor's and Collector's Guide," shows the 1918-D (8 over 7) Buffalo Nickel to be an exceptionally fine investment commodity. The following table demonstrates the price activity of the 1918 nickel over the past 20 years:

Year, 1952; Fine condition, $35 to $40; Uncirculated condition, $188 to $225.
Year, 1962; Fine condition, $225 to $275; Uncirculated condition, $800 to $875.
Year, 1972; Fine condition, $400 to $485; Uncirculated condition, $4,550 to $5,550.

Not all overdates or misstrikes are considered collectors items. Before buying any so-called "freak" it would be advisable to double check the latest Guide Book of United States Coins by R. S. Yeoman.

Carbona's mother gets 1-yr. probation

A Glenview woman was sentenced to one-year probation last week after being found guilty of harassing a juror in the murder trial of Ruth Carbona of Mount Prospect.

Mrs. Carbona's mother, Ruth Kuba, 47, of 1436 Forest, Glenview, was sentenced by Judge Wayne W. Olson.

Mrs. Kuba was found guilty of harassing Mrs. Jane Florezak of 2525 Oak St., Northbrook, one of the jurors who found Mrs. Carbona guilty of murdering her husband Joseph Carbona, a Cook County Sheriff's police lieutenant. Mrs. Florezak testified that on May 23, prior to the sentencing of Mrs. Carbona for the murder, Mrs. Kuba visited the juror's Northbrook home to try to persuade her to write the judge saying she had been mistaken in signing the murder verdict.

Mrs. Carbona, of 1762 E. Euclid, Mount Prospect is currently out of jail on $25,000 bond pending an appeal of her conviction for shooting her husband in the back with his police service revolver.

Seymour Snake: we miss you!

Seymour the Snake
c/o General Delivery
Buffalo Grove, Ill.

Dear Seymour:

You crafty little pest, you!

We know you're still at large — somewhere — and we know by now that you're not a dangerous cobra at all but a common rat snake with not enough poison in your body to harm a flea, but we want you to know anyway that all this adverse publicity you are getting does not change our affection for you one bit.

You and your caretaker, David Pearson, have gone through a lot these past weeks and we want you to know we are on your side during all this trouble. If we had only known beforehand that you were a

If only the whole scene could have been stretched out another day or two Variety would have headlined SEYMOUR BOFFO IN BUFFALO GROVE!

And now, like the end of a beautiful dream, it's all starting to turn sour. Those golden days of national attention are over, the search is off and young David Pearson is going to get stuck for a bill of several thousand dollars to pay for the severe governmental headache he caused.

Why, the village ought to pay Pearson $10,000 for the attention he brought to town! They ought to erect a monument to the kid and give out commemorative stamps and hold Seymour festivals every year! And all those public officials good snake and not a lethal one everything would have been alright. But that caretaker of yours gave you a bad name and suddenly, Seymour, you became the celebrity of the hour.

Consider the results:

—Massive television coverage with camera crews all over the place.

—Reporters and photographers pouring out of Chicago and rocketing around the Northwest suburbs trying to find Buffalo Grove.

—Hepterologists from two zoos scratching their heads over you.

—And even a television commentator who tried to draw some deep meaning over an escaped snake.

Then, last Sunday, a long piece on you in the New York Times, for God's sake. The TIMES, Seymour!

who got a bad migraine because of a non-lethal rat snake ought to sit back and have a good belly laugh on themselves and then get on with other things.

Sure, it was bad for awhile. Some of the people in the neighborhood were scared out of their skins (no offense, Seymour) by the three day scare, but it's over now and it's time to let bygones be bygones.

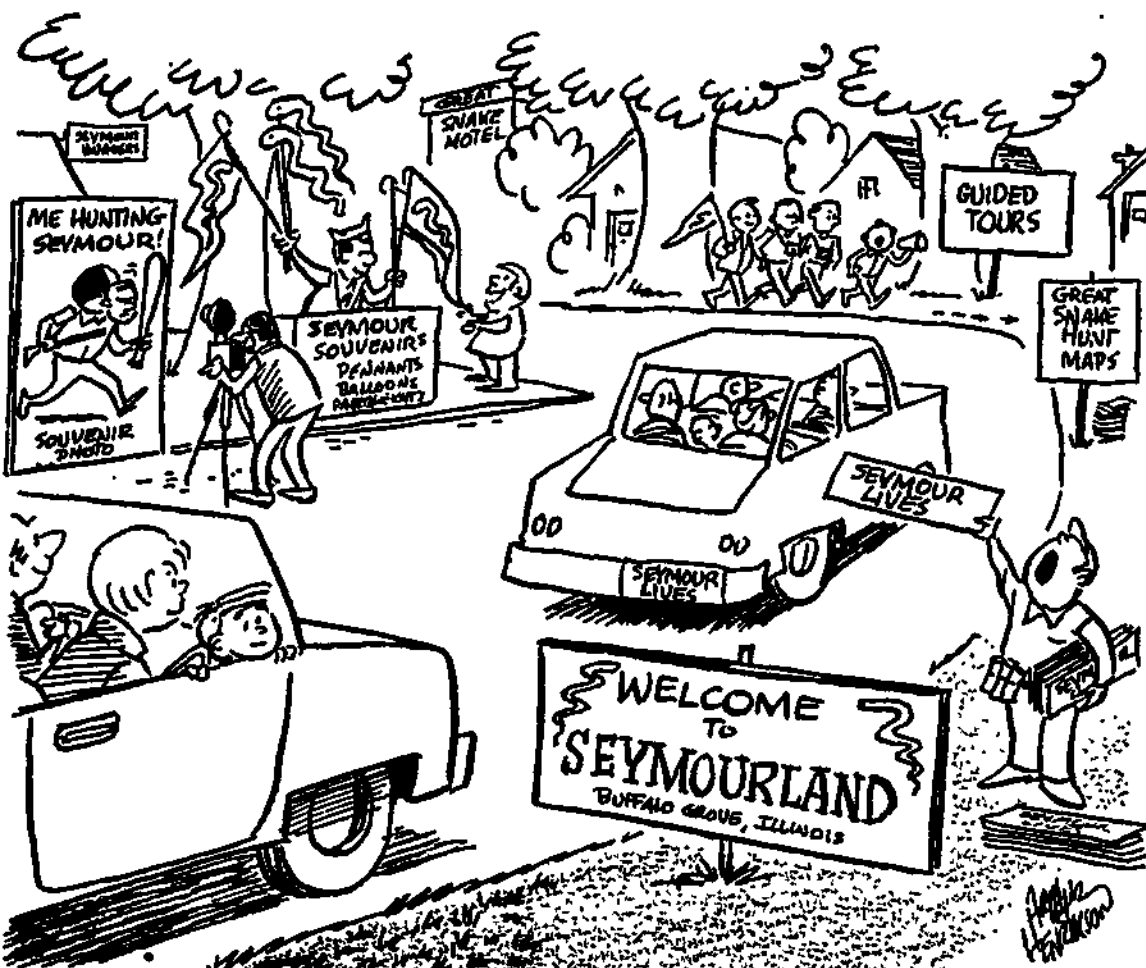

So goodbye, Seymour, it was exciting while it lasted. We hope they never find you and that you fade into legend like other creatures of history.

There is, however, one person who deserves more attention in all this. He's your real owner, Seymour, who bought you for $17.

We'd like to meet that fellow. We have an especially good bargain this week on the Wrigley Building.

Affectionately,

Bob Lahey's column

Watch politics this fall

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

Now that Labor Day has come and gone, the political winds will be blowing with increasing intensity, and it promises to be an interesting winter despite the fact that the next election will be an "off-year" one.

One of the major questions which will be answered in coming weeks will be that of the Republicans' choice to make the bid against Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III next year.

That question still hinges mainly on the decision of Attorney General William J. Scott whether he wants to go for the Senate next year or wait for a try at governor in 1976. The choice may not be entirely up to Scott, as U.S. Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Rockford, has considerable support for the Senate race. Anderson has been reported on again, off-again — and currently very much on-again — in his desire for a race with Stevenson.

Scott is looked on as a very viable candidate for either race he chooses, but there are pressures on him from different members of the party both to get into the 1974 senatorial race and to hold off for the 1976 gubernatorial election.

As leader of the Republican ticket in 1972, and the only Republican to carry Cook County, Scott is very much wanted at the head of the ticket by candidates who can benefit from his vote-getting ability. Many Republicans running next year against the perennial out-party backlash in an off-year want Scott to head the ticket in 1974. Those who hope to see Sen. Charles H. Percy as the presidential candidate in 1976 — and others seeking office against Democratic incumbents — hope that Scott will be around to bolster the ticket in 1976.

The only other statewide office on the 1974 ballot is that of state treasurer, and among the possible Republican contenders is state Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Regner is awaiting developments — among them the decision on the Senate candidate — before making an aggressive bid for the treasurer's nomination. A bid by Scott or Anderson, both Downstaters, could open the door for Cook Countyite Regner. A Senate candidacy by NATO Ambassador and former 13th District congressman Donald Rumsfeld could dictate that the treasurer's nomination go to a Downstate candidate.

Another interesting question which will be developing in the autumn months is what kind of reception Percy will get on his preliminary presidential explorations around the nation. Percy starts Saturday on a schedule of exploratory missions, testing the political waters with an address to the Young Republicans of Kansas in Wichita.

While he is out scouting the country, Cook County Republicans, in a mixture of image-building and party-unity, will be putting together an election slate which they hope can be sold as a "blue-ribbon" ticket to take advantage of the scandal-ridden Democrats and at the same time avoid any bloody primary races.

Among prime questions to be answered in legislative races is whether state Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, will decide to seek a sixth term in the legislature.

A decision by Schlickman to retire would probably bring forth a gaggle of prospective Republican candidates in the 4th Legislative District.

An interesting congressional race seems certain between U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, and former Congressman Abner Mikva, whom Young narrowly defeated last year.

All these are interesting questions, which I intend to examine more closely in coming weeks. For the moment, however, I have heard of a place where a man can get into an argument with a large-mouthed bass and a small boy can make the acquaintance of a blue gill, and a small boy and I are going off to explore the veracity of that report.

'Face facts about pot'

In the Herald's articles on marijuana law reform ("Should pot be legalized?", August 24), John Evans, regional administrator for the Drug Enforcement Administration, states that he "hasn't seen or read anything that convinces me that marijuana is harmless." Of course he hasn't. Marijuana is not harmless, and no responsible person claims that it is. What is claimed — and this claim is supported by, among others, Senators Goldwater, Percy and Stevenson, William F. Buckley, Jr., Art Linkletter, the American Bar Association, and the National Education Association — is that (1) marijuana is far less harmful than was believed in the 1930's when its use was made a criminal offense, and (2) the harm caused by prohibiting the use of marijuana through criminal penalties for users is much greater than the harm caused by the drug itself.

Mr. Evans further asserts that the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws has ignored "all the studies that have been conducted that show marijuana could be harmful." That is not true. To achieve the reform we're working for, we must establish credibility with the public. We fully recognize that we cannot establish credibility unless the information we provide about marijuana is at all times accurate and complete. Ignoring studies showing marijuana to be harmful would hurt our own efforts. We have not ignored such studies in the past, and we will not in the future.

To support his claim that marijuana is "a highly dangerous drug," Mr. Evans refers to two studies which allegedly indicate that the drug causes fetal damage and psychological and neurological problems. Those studies have been rejected as valueless, not by NORML, but by virtually every objective group which has examined them, including the government's own National Institute of Mental Health and the conservative, anti-drug National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse appointed by President Nixon. By quoting from these studies, Mr. Evans is misleading the public and weakening the credibility of his own agency with the young people he should be trying hardest to reach.

Finally, we point out that, contrary to Mr. Evans' statement, we do not advocate the use of marijuana. We believe that its use — like the use of all drugs, including alcohol and tobacco — should be discouraged, but that criminal penalties are neither an effective nor an appropriate method of discouragement. We believe it is time to face the facts about marijuana and to bring our laws into conformity with those facts.

Soviet hits dissenters

by PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst

Open warfare has been declared between the Kremlin and some of the Soviet Union's more noted dissenters.

It poses for Soviet leaders a painful dilemma.

The Nobel prize-winning novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn discloses he has received threatening letters and says if he dies suddenly the world can know he was killed by Soviet security agents.

Andrei Sakharov, 52-year-old physicist known popularly as the "father of the Soviet hydrogen bomb," is called to the Moscow office of the prosecutor-general and warned against making anti-Soviet statements and meeting with western newsmen.

In response, Sakharov promptly called western newsmen to his apartment to discuss his own plight and to warn western nations against reaching economic accords with the Soviets without insisting on liberalization inside the Soviet Union.

And in an outlying borough of Moscow two other noted dissenters are brought to trial on charges of being paid agents of a western group aimed at overthrowing the Soviet regime.

They are Pyotr I. Yakir, a 50-year-old historian formerly associated with the Central Economic-Mathematical Institute in Moscow, and Viktor A. Krasin, 44, an economist and son of a famous Red Army general executed in 1937 in a Stalinist purge.

The trial was declared to "open" one, although foreign newsmen have been barred, and both defendants were said to have confessed.

For the Soviet leaders the dilemma arises from the prominence of the persons involved and the fact that drastic action against them would be bound to raise a hue and cry in the West at the very time that party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and others are seeking to improve their relations with western nations.

The cry for greater freedoms inside the Soviet Union is at the very core of the conflict between western demands for a free exchange of persons and ideas and Soviet charges that western imperialism aims at the overthrow of the Soviet system, especially from within.

Solzhenitsyn and Sakharov have now thrown down the gauntlet.

The closed trial and "confessions" of error are nothing new in the trials of those disagreeing with the Communist leadership.

One of the early victims was Hungarian Cardinal Joseph Mindszenty who warned before his arrest in 1948 that should he be heard to confess, it would not be the real Mindszenty speaking. His forecast of trial and confession turned out to be an accurate one.

What many Russians regard as worse than prison is exile in a foreign land, banned from returning to the Soviet Union.

Boris Pasternak, author of "Dr. Zhivago," pleaded with the late Nikita Khrushchev not to be sent away.

It is a punishment employed in recent months against Dr. Valery Chalidze, a Soviet scientist and civil rights champion, and against Zhores A. Medvedev, a noted Soviet geneticist and dissident writer.

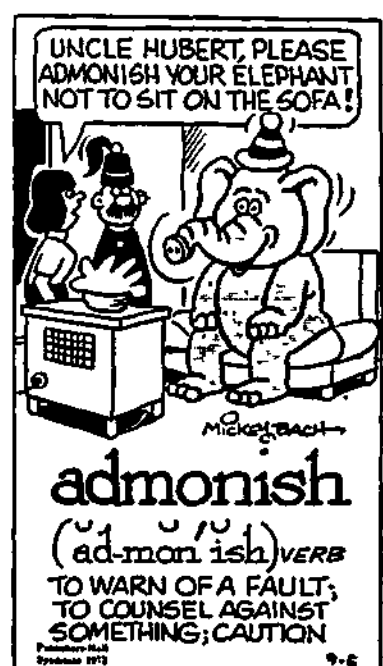

Chalidze's passport was taken from him while lecturing in the United States and Medvedev's while on a visit to Britain. Both had planned to return home.

It is noteworthy that few of the dissidents want to leave home. Nor do they wish to restore capitalism. What they want are the freedoms presumably already guaranteed them under the Soviet constitution. (UPI)

Protecting cyclists

In Arlington Heights, there's a tough new policy which says that motorists won't be the only ones hauled into court for violating the rules of road.

Now bicyclists can expect to be ticketed for improper riding which represents "inherently dangerous situations," according to local police officials.

It results in part from three traffic accidents which have claimed the lives of three bicyclists. Police officials report that in each case the bicyclists ignored traffic control signs.

We support this crackdown on irresponsible bicyclists, for, as any motorist knows, these riders represent a real threat to themselves, if to no one else. The majority of bicycle riders are responsible, but the remainder should fall under the authority of the law, when necessary.

Many children, of course, will fit under this final category, and we can hear already the screams which will go up from enraged parents when their kids get a summons to appear in court. In fact, parents will find themselves liable for certain violations, such as riding after curfew or without proper lights, committed by their children.

The goal of this program is not to harass anyone but to cut the loss of lives on local roads. If it encourages bicyclists to be more responsible about their own lives, this stepped-up enforcement will have served its purpose.

Business Today

by ROBERT KAYLOR

BAN KAEW, Thailand (UPI) — A group of Americans and Thais have banded together to put quick-frozen specialty vegetables from the River Kwai of World War II fame on American tables.

A few miles upstream from the spot where the Japanese forced Allied prisoners of war to construct the "death railway" bridge immortalized in the movies, they have started an experimental farm.

It is the brainchild of Dick Sandler, 29, of Boston. He served as a Peace Corps official in Thailand but branched out on his own two years ago after deciding that traditional approaches to foreign aid weren't helping.

Sandler says the U.S. agricultural programs emphasize traditional crops, such as rice, which help the military government here earn more money but does nothing for the average peasant.

"I maintain that private enterprise can do more for development of the country than U.S. aid — or, for that matter, any other foreign assistance agency," says Sandler who opened his farm a year ago.

SANDLER ORGANIZED a company owned by about 80 Americans and Thai shareholders, with the controlling interest in Thai hands and total capital of $100,000, a small amount by aid standards. He also enlisted the support of Gen. Charn Angsuthane, head of Thailand's budget bureau.

The farm started on a 30-acre site in Kanchanaburi province next to the Burmese border, a backwater area except for natives and some tourists who ride the train 80 miles from Bangkok to see the famed bridge and the POW cemeteries nearby.

So far, the farm has concentrated on such crops as cantaloupes, mushrooms and rare species of orchids to see how they fare in Thailand's tropical climate. Sandler hopes to have a plant by next year and to start area farmers growing cash crops for freezing by then.

"Compare our $100,000 with the American Agency for International Development (AID) which can throw away that much in a day," says Sandler, who speaks Thai fluently and came here in 1964 as a Fulbright scholar in economic research.

"With limited funds, you really have to think and develop new ways of growing things," he said. "AID figures it spends $30,000 a year for each American staff expert sent to Thailand. Our whole capitalization is the cost of just two of those guys, and what do they accomplish?"

In planning his project, Sandler took a page from Taiwan's economic book. It sells about $100 million a year in canned mushrooms, bamboo shoots, asparagus and pineapples in the United States. He decided to do Taiwan one better with quick freezing and already has had some luck with mushrooms.

Sandler sees potential markets for frozen snow peas and baby corn, tender two-inch ears peculiar to Thailand and popular with Westerners.

Sandler originally saw the farm operating at a profit at the end of one year but ran into plant diseases and insect problems.

"We would be making money now had we planted things we knew would come up, but we wanted to develop new crops," he said.

Among the diseases hitting the crops are "tobacco mosaic virus," "bacteria wilt" and, according to Sandler, "some so exotic they don't even have names." To control insects, he says some plants must be sprayed every other day with five pesticides.

Balancing family budget can become hard work

Practically everybody will tell you they're living on a budget these days. Almost as many will admit that it is genuinely hard work.

"It is possible for families and individuals to keep from being swamped by rising prices, but they have to know how to make their budget work first," says W. Seane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Pioneer Western Cor.

Pioneer Western is a national financial services organization whose principal subsidiaries are Western Reserve Life Assurance Co. and the Boston-based management company for the Pioneer group of mutual funds.

"Making a budget achieve its financial objectives requires persistence, frequent review, readjustments — and a practical plan," Bowler continues.

THE MOST common problem for would-be budgeters is the temptation to deviate from the original plan as the months pass by. "This can be a difficult habit to overcome — it means saying 'no' to yourself," he adds.

"First list income potentials: take home wages, bonuses, commissions, loan repayments, interest and dividends, tax refunds, gifts and other possibilities," he said. "Everything else in the budget subtracts from the total income and this begins with such fixed cost expenditures as mortgage payments or rent; insurance premiums for life, auto, homeowners and other policies; federal, local, and other taxes; installment debt; savings; and investments."

Further subtractions come in the area of flexible costs over which a family can exercise a degree of judgment and control. These include: food, household operations, utilities, transportation, family allowances, clothing, medical and dental treatment, recreation, contributions and other miscellaneous expenditures.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

Ginny Beatty is her name. Nominate her for a niche among the unforgettable characters. She is one of Chicago's knowledgeable flower folk and someday I predict she will be a super flower star.

I'd switch my TV dial from Jerry Baker to Ginny Beatty anytime — if she had her own TV show. And someday she probably will.

Ginny is infectious with enthusiasm, a spokeswoman for the Chicago Horticultural Society's Botanic Garden. Sounds stuffy, but it isn't. Ginny is effervescent and fun-loving and makes horticulture sound like child's play. And for her it is. She works with schools, developing projects to meet the special requirements of the teachers and grade levels involved. Special programs are created for the handicapped and retarded grade school children.

AT LEAST one area school has been captivated by Ginny's rosy disposition and green thumb. Willow Bend in Rolling Meadows. Maybe you saw its exhibit in the Chicago World Flower Show at McCormick Place, an arm of the Chicago Horticultural Society.

When she is not out helping children slash tires to make flower planters or showing them the difference between a weed and a carrot seedling in their group vegetable gardens, Ginny can be found at the Botanic Garden. It is the only botanic garden in the State of Illinois, and the Chicago Horticultural Society can be proud of the fact that it is the only horticulture society that has its own botanic garden.

Perhaps you've thought of taking a Sunday drive there. It is adjacent to Edens Expressway and Interstate 94, taking in 300 acres between Lake Cook and Dundee Roads, Glenview.

The garden is at the north end of the old Skokie Lagoon. It has only been open the last two years and lots of people have yet to discover this nearby recreational resource.

WHEN THE society first acquired the land from the Cook County Forest Preserve District eight years ago, it wasn't exactly the Garden of Eden. It was a marshy, open water swamp on the flood plain; the soil was sticky, gummy glacial till. The tractors started coming in about 1967 and few sidewalk superintendents could equate this massive earth movement with conservation.

When 300,000 yards of top soil was stripped off and piled in mountains, the society's first project was to do away with the giant ragweed that grew out of the dirt. For awhile there was a lot of pollen in the high rent district of Glenview-Highland Park. It took a lot of doing to get the site in shape. After three years, the architects, planners, designers, and workmen brought the swamp up to a point where you might say they could "start from scratch." About the only nice spot on the whole 300 acres was 15 acres of woods with a lovely stand of trillium that remains untouched.

Today, the area is a growing, but still embryonic setting with an uncontaminated water supply that fills 60 acres of ponds and canals. Thousands of trees have been planted. In time, this setting will become a showcase for rare and interesting plants as well as a sanctuary for water fowl. Already, Canada geese and mallards are visiting here.

ATTRactions AT the botanic garden include a greenhouse complex and a home landscape center, turfgrass plots and demonstration vegetable garden, including children's gardens, where the best varieties for this area are under culture. A braille nature trail along the path offers an exciting experience for the blind. The garden's principal administrative and exhibit facilities on the main island are yet to be constructed.

Besides all this, the society sponsors workshops, field trips, demonstrations and the temporary classrooms occupy delightful potting and greenhouse areas. Each year a sale of unusual, hard-to-find plants is held, one of the most popular events of the year at the garden. There are also a reference library and a work/study program for college-level horticultural students.

The botanic garden belongs to all the people of Chicago and suburbs — a half-mill levy is imposed on Cook County taxpayers. This subsidy totals a million dollars a year. It can be a major educational resource for inner city and suburban home gardeners, schools, plant societies, garden clubs, nurserymen's associations. There are possibilities for a meeting place and exhibit area for flower shows — the opportunities for dynamic service are endless.

Someday it will be the finest botanic garden in the nation. Right here. Go see it — this summer! And if you're lucky, maybe you'll find Ginny there too.

Sewing treasures

Designer collects thimbles

by KAREN THOMPSON

It started in her grandmother's sewing box 18 years ago and today, 1,400 thimbles later, Carol Winandy is still scanning the four corners of the earth seeking new finds for her collection.

The thimble is described in the "Book of a Thousand Thimbles" as a sewing tool, a small bell-shaped implement devised to protect the finger on which it is worn, as well as to save motion.

"Anyone can start a thimble collection," said Carol. "Just go through grandma's sewing basket." She reports that six of her friends at work have taken her lead and started collections of their own.

The petite brunette from Des Plaines began sewing on a toy machine when she was just 10 years old under the supervision of a neighbor lady. After constant frustration trying to fashion doll clothes on a machine made for novices, she moved up to a real Singer. The move paid well as Carol walked off with the area Singer competition awards for two years in a row, taught sewing while attending college and today she is one of three loungewear designers at O'Bryan Brothers Inc., makers of the Lorraine line.

CAROL IS A graduate of the Chicago Art Institute and recently completed work on the Casbah collection of loungewear which will be featured on the cover of Intimate Apparel, a trade publication, and on advertisements during Barbara Walters' "Not For Women Only" show. She was told once by a sewing instructor, "You'll never sew fast without a thimble."

Carol, a Maine East graduate, has more thimbles than Birds Eye has vegetables. From solid gold to plastic, she can take you back to the past each thimble may have played in the events of time. She has thimbles jeweled with opals, etched with Aesop's fable scenes, engraved with names of London jewelers and painted on china.

From the pyramids to the Parthenon, from stones to sterling silver, thimbles have played a part in our heritage.

"Thimbles were once given to little girls for special occasions such as confirmation or to start a hope chest," Carol said. "They were also given as an engagement present in some countries. A few thimbles were made so that the wedding ring slipped over the top and the beau would present it in this way to his prospective bride," she said.

A THIMBLE IS a romantic object and with reflection, takes on character. It could be called one of the first signs of civilization.

For so simple an object, varieties have been made of almost every kind of metal or material one can mention. Aluminum, bone, brass, enamel, glass, iron, ivory, jade and leather to name a few. The earliest were bronze Greek and Roman thimbles found at Pompeii and Herculaneum after their rediscovery in 1738.

JUST A THIMBLE FULL. Carol Winandy, Des Plaines, A designer by profession, Carol is employed by O'Bryan Brothers, Inc., makers of Lorraine loungewear line. 1,400 thimbles later, she is still searching for new finds.

Lillian Weiss wrote in the Antique Box column in McCall's magazine, in 1969, "Recently Christie Galleries in London sold, at auction, a one-half inch tall Meissen thimble made by the famous Herold workshop during the early 18th century. Painted around the tiny circumference in most precise detail is a miniature harbor scene showing six ships, 31 busy figures, six bales of cotton and one large barrel. Price: $3,750."

Carol has traveled to Europe three times in search of sewing treasures. "I know that I can't have all the treasures, but that doesn't matter," she said. "It's just a joy to see the them. They don't have to belong to me."

SHE ALWAYS carries at least one thimble with her on her travels in case the clerk or seller doesn't speak English.

"I just bring a thimble out of my purse and they understand what I'm looking for," Carol said.

Miss Winandy's collection doesn't stop at thimbles. Her prized possessions include two chatelaines, accessories used by French women in the 17th century. Ornate sewing implements such as tiny scissors, needle cases, thimble holders, pin cushions and slates carved from ivory dangle on chains from a carved clasp at the waist.

"Chatelaines were a symbol of occupation and status," Carol explained. "Some of the chatelaines even had bottles of perfume attached which the ladies used to keep their hands clean," she added.

The seamstress has searched sewing baskets and flea markets all over the world for additions to her collection. "All collectors are the same," she said. "They're always looking for something older, unique and better."

CAROL COULDN'T recall the number of thimble collectors in the nation, but she said there are over 9,000 on the eastern seaboard alone. "The Midwest collectors are the most conservative," she added.

As a side track to her hobby of thimble collecting, Carol has been making thimble holders. True museum pieces, the original French antique racks hold 43 thimbles and she will be making them as fast as the orders come in.

CHATELAINES ARE ornate implements used by French women in the 17th century. A symbol of occupation and status, chatelaines were decorative as well as useful.

Grandpa officiates 25 years later

Exactly 25 years after he had performed the ceremony uniting Mr. and Mrs. Donavon J. Gerig of Fort Wayne, Ind., the Rev. Clarence Gerig conducted the wedding ceremony of their daughter — his granddaughter — and David Robert Ristau. David's parents are the Robert Ristaus, 180 Michael Court, Des Plaines.

Becky Jo Gerig and David were married Aug. 11 in Simpson United Methodist Church in Fort Wayne, with her sister, Debbie, serving as maid of honor; and Indiana friends, Vicki Collins of New Castle, Mrs. Kathi Drake of Berne and Mrs. Sara Jo Sprunger of Muncie, and the groom's sister, Gail Ristau of Des Plaines, completing the bridal party.

The bride's gown of ivory satin organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace featured a ruffle-flounced bouffant skirt flowing into a chapel-length train. A lace cap held her cathedral veil, and she carried a cascade of ivory carnations, purple statice and pink Sweetheart roses.

Dave Swenson of Barrington was best man. Others in the groom's party were Bill Spletzer, Whiting, Ind.; Roger Holiar, New Paris, Ind.; Bob Harbin, Speedway, Ind.; Randy Gerig, the bride's brother, Fort Wayne; Stan Enterline of Edon, Ohio; and Mike Palmer, Wheeling. The bride's 12-year-old brother, Rick, and 12-year-old cousin, Ron Von Gunton, served as acolytes.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served in Enslen Hall of the church.

After a week's honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands, Becky and David have settled in Wheeling while he completes his education at Chicago Technical College as an architectural engineer between his part-time hours working for K&W Standard in Mount Prospect. The newlyweds met when both attended Ball State University in Muncie where Becky attained a degree in speech pathology seeing.

Cost of the outing is $25 per couple. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Tom Berry or Mrs. George Polkinghorn at 894-2543.

Nine Elk Grove homes on Sept. 23 tour

"You're Welcome Here" will be the theme in nine Elk Grove homes Sunday, September 23, when Elk Grove Village Junior Woman's Club sponsors a house walk.

Mrs. Lee Garr and Mrs. Larry O'Connell, co-chairmen of the walk, said the nine homes were chosen for their unique renovations and expansions.

The walk begins officially at 1 p.m. at the Municipal Building, Blesterfield Rd. and Wellington Ave., but persons may begin their tour of homes from that point anytime throughout the afternoon until 5. Booklets will be distributed containing pictures and descriptions of the homes and their owners.

Tickets for the house walk are $2 and may be purchased at the door or in advance from Mrs. Paul Sable, 439-7888.

ONE HOME ON tour is that of the Harry Zenders, located on Blesterfield Road across from Alexian Brothers Medical Center. The Zenders purchased the home on five acres in 1948. An historical landmark in the village, the home originally was owned by the Blesterfields for whom the street is named. The Zenders have maintained a 100-year old apple orchard, wild blackberries, mulberries, grape vines and many varieties of colonial flowers.

The original home, built in 1869, consisted of two rooms, the kitchen and dining room with a ladder leading to a sleeping loft. In 1872, a front section was added and the second floor was completed, which now has three bedrooms.

The home is decorated with antiques and many quaint colonial pieces.

The California Spanish raised ranch of the Fred Martins, 1284 Ridge Ave., has been enlarged from 1400 square feet to 3300 square feet of living space. A fountain in the foyer, a California driftwood stone wall, textured walls and arched windows all combine to complete the total Spanish theme.

The Estal Nansels, 280 Clearmont, began their remodeling by enclosing a front porch. The formal dining room was created from the original kitchen, and a 30 by 14 foot family room and kitchen were added to the back of the ranch home. The focal-point of the new living area is an elegant Georgian marble fireplace.

For $1.10, two Buffalo Grove boys got themselves a nifty toy — and first and second degree burns.

According to Mrs. Eugene Branski, of 529 White Pine, her 10-year-old son recently bought a rocket engine at a local hobby shop. Back home, he and his 6-year-old brother lit the fuse to fire the rocket.

After momentarily appearing to be a dud, the rocket exploded, inflicting first and second degree burns on the younger boy's hands.

The boy was rushed to Northwest Community Hospital by the Buffalo Grove Rescue Squad and spent four hours there undergoing treatment.

WHY WOULD ANYONE manufacture such a dangerous "toy?"

According to the labeling on the rocket, its manufacturer, Estes (subsidiary of Damon, Penrose, Colo.), intended that it not be sold to anyone under 16 years old and that it be used only under adult supervision. The manufacturer added a caution that the product is "highly flammable" and must be soaked in cold water to be defused.

So at first it would appear that the hobby shop is at fault for having sold the rocket to a 10-year-old. Mrs. Branski, who has blamed herself for not inspecting the toy more closely, said her son told her the hobby shop salesman did not ask him his age.

But in reality, the labeling must be considered a weak attempt at self-protection on the part of the manufacturer. The toy obviously appeals to younger children. And what 16-year-old (or older) boy is going to be interested in playing with toy rockets?

ACCORDING TO Pat Viet, an investigator for the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), such labels are sometimes used by manufacturers to try to get around safety requirements for toys.

"It (the rocket) does sound pretty bad — like it shouldn't be on the market for anyone," she said, adding that the hobby shop could also be at fault, however, for selling it to a youngster.

The rocket is currently for sale in several hobby shops in this area. But the Buffalo Grove incident is being looked into by the CPSC, which has the authority to ban the production and sale of any products it rules dangerous.

Dear Dorothy: I'm getting ready to have company and want to use one of your recipes, but have mislaid it. It was for a molded salad made of lime gelatin, cottage cheese and cucumber among other things.

—Mrs. H. R. Lynn

Good heavens, how well you keep track! I'm grateful to you for reminding me of this one. It ran years ago. Dissolve a package of lime gelatin in one and one-fourth cups of water and add a sprinkling of salt and a tablespoon of vinegar. Peel a large cucumber, chop it up and put in a colander to drain — then add. Then put in a grated small onion, a pound carton of cottage cheese, drained well, one-half cup of mayonnaise and one-half cup of chopped nuts. Put in a greased quart-size mold. If, by chance, you have a pretty copper mold, it makes a particularly attractive dish, garnished with bibb lettuce, cocktail tomatoes or watercress.

Dear Dorothy: Can you provide any instructions on dyeing Queen Anne's lace? I'd love to use it as a table centerpiece.

—Doris Ruble

Some people do it by putting the flowers in a container with vegetable dye. The flowers absorb the color through the stems. Most, however, find it easier to mash colored chalk and dust the color on with a powder puff or dry paintbrush. Another way is to just put the powdered chalk into a paper bag. Insert the flowers head first, twist the bag around the stems and shake until you obtain the color desired.

Dear Dorothy: Hope this hint will be of help. I always peel, slice or chop onions on my range top with the exhaust fan turned on. I've found that this causes little or no eye-burning or tears.

—Shirley Beanblossom

A Paddock review

'Time of Day' action packed

by GENIE CAMPBELL

The destiny of Country Club Theatre has been precariously suspended during the past year. Not anymore. Not with the entertaining likes of "Love is a Time of Day," the Mount Prospect theater's latest show which opened last week.

Any bleak notions concerning the overall fate of the intimate theater-in-the-round can be laid aside for a time anyhow. "Love is a Time of Day" is just what the doctor ordered, a fast tempo and a renewed sense of notability.

By John Patrick, the two-act comedy appears to hinge at first on that old sex go-around . . . boy tries to seduce girl, girl refuses, boy pleads, girl realizes she has been overlooking the love of her life and consequently vows eternal adoration and devotion.

YET IF THAT'S how it seems at first, the storyline quickly supercedes the telltale signs of stagnation. "Time of Day," though exceedingly light, has more to offer than trite frivolity.

The contemporary, witty dialog continually throws punches that buff the audience from one high point to another.

Pay attention to the lines. There are many good ones. Some you might even want to remember for quoting later.

Tom Wagner more than holds up his end of the bargain in the two-person play. He is very much on top of his part. The ease and naturalness with which Wagner tackles the part of Skipper Allen, a graduate student hopelessly in love and sexually frustrated, has a lot to do with the entire success of the play.

THE OTHER HALF of the team is Jeannine Carlson who is appearing in her third major role at Country Club Theatre. She is also familiar to many theatergoers who have seen her on stage in Des Plaines Theatre Guild productions.

Miss Carlson is good though she does not quite measure up to the performance by Wagner.

At times the Morton Grove actress overreacts which makes the character of April McGregor too contrived and naive than is intended or even believable. She also has a tendency in some scenes to substitute volume for added expression.

April, "Mac" to Skipper, is a serious minded college student who closely guards her independence and sees herself as a future missionary. That will be her contribution to humanity. She shrugs Skipper off. His attitude is much too casual and unconcerned.

"I ASK FOR SEX and she offers me Sanka," laments poor Skipper who never runs out of fresh ideas for making Mac . . . going so far as to pretend to seduce a mannequin in order to implant a little jealousy. It's one of the best scenes of the entire production.

Also on stage periodically and showing a real talent for acting, is French Poodle Pierre, a very mild-mannered dog who looks out at the audience with a plea, "Oh, not this again."

Pierre, though a real jewel on stage, befalls a tragic fate, a little too poignant perhaps to blend in with the rest of the action, though Wagner must be commended for shedding real tears.

Not having sampled the cuisine for quite some time at Old Orchard Country Club, I was most impressed with the vast selection of entrees and the meal itself.

THERE ARE NO longer any dinner theater packages being offered through the country club. That's a relief. A dinner theater combination is much more enjoyable when one is not limited in choice. It's worth an extra couple of dollars for a full evening out.

"Love is a Time of Day," directed by Nick Faltas and produced by Arnold Gleditsis, is being staged through Oct. 20. If opening night is any indication, I'm quite sure the comedy will have a full, successful run. It certainly deserves one.

Men to parade runway in hospital style show

By popular request doctors will again model men's attire when the Women's Auxiliary of Northwest Community Hospital stages its annual fashion show and luncheon. The benefit, "Fall n' Angels," will be held Thursday, Sept. 20, in the Jimmy Durante Room at Arlington Park Towers.

Dr. Jess Jacobs, accompanied by his son, Jimmy, and Dr. John Brouhard, and his daughter, Nancy, will be modeling as will nurse Lois Space and her daughter, Diane, and paramedic Joseph Pannhausen, accompanied by Eileen Cadigan.

Fashions for the women models will be from Bonwit Teller with Martha Ferris, fashion coordinator of Bonwits, as commentator. The ensembles will be elegant, feminine and wearable in soft colors for day and in sequins and glitter for evening. The men will be in English tweeds and the children in strong, true colors.

In keeping with the elegant mood, harpists from the Lyric Opera Company of Chicago, will provide music for the models. The harpists will also play during the cocktail hour and luncheon.

Tickets are $8.50 and interested women may call Ann Jacobs, 392-3192.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

100th year of post cards to be noted

The 100th anniversary of the first U.S. post card will be commemorated Sept. 14 when the Postal Service releases a replica of that early issue.

It was May 12, 1873 when the "penny" post card made its debut on paper manufactured in Manchester, Conn. and printed in Springfield, Mass.

The replica differs from the first card in that the denomination is six cents and it was deliberately printed magenta in color rather than brown on buff used in the original.

First day ceremonies will be held in Washington, D.C. in conjunction with the annual meeting of the United Postal Stationary Society at NAPEX, the National Philatelic Exhibition.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send their requests to "Centennial Postal Card, Postmaster, Washington, D.C. 20013" enclosing the proper remittance which is 6 cents per card. If more than one card is desired, either a stamped addressed envelope or a stick-on mailing label should be included.

The U.S. Postal Service has released statistics on the number of stamps distributed or ready for distribution on the following 1973 issues:

Stamp	Number distributed or ready for distribution
8c Love	233 million
15c Balloon Aerogramme	14 million
8c Pamphleteer	165 million
8c Gershwin	146 million
8c Posting a Broadside	158 million
8c Copernicus	160 million
8c Postal People	495 million
8c Truman	163 million
8c Post Rider	141 million
21c Giannini	Unlimited
8c Boston Tea Party	200 million
6c Electronics	55 million
8c Electronics	150 million
11c Electronics	56 million
15c Electronics	40 million
$1 O'Neill coil	Unlimited

Australia will release a 7 cent stamp tomorrow to commemorate the 50th anniversary of Legacy, an organization dedicated to providing assistance to the widows and children of deceased servicemen.

Prior to printing the 1972 Wildlife Conservation stamps, the U.S. Bureau of Engraving and Printing announced color pairings and sequence for three offset press passes. These were later modified in production. The correct colors are: 1 yellow, pink; 2 blue, green; 3 red, brown.

daily cartoon in the HERALD.

Today's hand decided an IMP match. Both Souths played six spades against a queen of diamonds lead. One South player cashed two diamonds immediately; ruffed a diamond with the nine of trumps and led a club toward his queen.

As he pointed out later on, he would have made the slam if East held the club king; if hearts broke 3-3; if a heart-diamond squeeze developed or if West made the mistake of leading his fourth diamond.

He wasn't quite right about this. His play would have failed against a 5-1 trump break or a 6-1 break in either minor suit.

The other declarer must have been a disciple of our old friend Generous George. He decided to forget about really abnormal suit breaks and the location of the king of clubs and see what could be done if there were no singletons out against him.

He led a heart at trick two and ducked in dummy.

East won and led back the jack of clubs. South's queen was covered by West's king and dummy's ace.

South led dummy's last diamond to his king; ruffed a diamond with the queen of trumps; drew trumps and eventually discarded his last diamond and his two clubs on dummy's hearts.

DuBrow on TV...by Rick DuBrow

'Planet of the Apes' comes to TV

HOLLYWOOD — Notes to watch television by:

Coming attractions: "Planet of the Apes" is the season premiere presentation of CBS-TV's Friday Night Movies Sept. 14... Gloria Swanson appears on the same network's Carol Burnett series Sept. 29, and a CBS-TV announcement says:

"Miss Swanson... was invited to appear on the program by executive producer Joe Hamilton when it was learned that she had expressed admiration for Miss Burnett's impression of Nora Desmond, the character Miss Swanson played in the memorable movie 'Sunset Boulevard.' The character has been the subject of several comedy sketches on the Burnett show over the past several seasons"... CBS-TV adds:

"One of the highlights of Miss Swanson's appearance... will be her own justly famous impression of Charles Chaplin in a sketch, with Miss Burnett appearing as her 'charwoman' character. Miss Swanson's interpretation of Chaplin's on-screen character stems

Peggy Fleming's previously announced one-hour NBC-TV special that was filmed in Russia will be broadcast Oct. 23, and, says the network, will feature leading Soviet performers... Title of the show is "Peggy Fleming Visits The Soviet Union," and AT&T is sponsoring this latest outing of the skating star... According to NBC-TV, the American crew for the program "was augmented by production personnel from the U.S.S.R."

JACKIE GLEASON and Art Carney are reunited in an hour musical comedy revue on CBS-TV Oct. 11... Michael Landon, a longtime star of the "Bonanza" show, wrote and directed the Oct. 3 premiere of NBC-TV's new "Love Story" series, an hour anthology of romantic tales, with the opener concerning a lighthearted young fellow who falls for an unwed, pregnant girl and also has to deal with his protective mother... Arlo Guthrie is guest host of NBC-TV's contemporary music series "Midnight Special" Sept. 29.

A televised salute to James Cagney by the American Film Institute is being planned for broadcast by CBS as a 90-minute special in the coming video season... The network says "the gala occasion will be taped in Hollywood at the annual dinner of the institute"... other CBS-TV specials planned for the new season include "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a work of fiction that "details a black woman's life, taking her from the end of the Civil War to the early 1960s when she is 108"; and "A Thanksgiving Treasure," a sequel to last season's charming and touching tale "The House Without a Christmas Tree," and starring the same principals — Jason Robards, Mildred Natwick and the glowing young performer Lisa Lucas.

"LOVE, AMERICAN Style," once an iffy ratings entry, begins its fifth season on ABC-TV Sept. 14, a weekly series that was welcomed by a number of critics for its contemporary outlook but took some heads-up thinking by network people to keep it on the air... Never a huge ratings success, the series, which basically offers comedy sketches with a romantic twist, caught on with the sought-after young urban audience and helped, in its relatively innocent way, to condition viewers for some of the earlier video material that was to come.

Public affairs dept.: one of television's superb documentary makers, Martin Carr, whose programs include "Hunger in America" for CBS-TV and "Migrant" about migrant workers for NBC-TV, has joined ABC-TV... The new anchorman of NBC-TV's Saturday Evening News is Tom Brokaw, and taking over the same chore for the network on Sundays is Floyd Kalber.

Footnote: NBC research estimates that more than 63 per cent of American television households had color sets as of July 1.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

Federal law requires that before certain projects can be undertaken there must be an environmental study to determine their impact on the ecology.

The U.S. Interior Department has published a number of environmental impact statements, most recently one on shale oil development.

After looking over that document, which runs to six volumes and covers 3,200 pages, I would now like to propose a follow-up study.

What I have in mind is a study to determine the environmental impact of environmental impact statements.

In calling for such a study, I do not mean to imply that the shale oil study was unneeded. It obviously will be put to good use in setting up guidelines to protect the environment should the shale oil project proceed.

And certainly no one could complain that it skimps on details.

The study examines the potential impact on dozens of varieties of birds, including the ferruginous hawk, the flamulated owl, the long-billed dowitcher and the marbled godwit.

It considers the mammals of the area, not overlooking the western jumping mouse and the sagebrush vole. It takes into account piscatorial special — squawfish, humped-backed sucker, etd. It regards the interests of the side-blotched lizard, the chorus frog and other reptiles.

Nor is flora neglected. One can consult the study and learn how shale oil development might affect myriad plants, among them seepweeds and serviceberry bushes.

IT IS apparent, however, that the very act of publishing a 3,200-page study is itself an environmental factor. Among the ecological questions that arise are:

• How many trees did it take to provide enough wood pulp to make the paper on which the study was printed?

• Did the felling of so much timber have any adverse effects on squawfish, side-blotched lizards, flamulated owls, western jumping mice and other creatures of the forest?

• To what extent will disposal of the documents, once they are no longer needed, add to the pollution problem?

• How much auto mileage was required to compile the information during a period of gasoline shortages?

The purpose of an environmental impact statement is to help officials determine whether the ecological disadvantages of a project outweigh its economical advantages.

That is indeed a worthy objective. But first they need to determine whether the environment can withstand the impact of environmental impact statements.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — After a month in the hospital, the doctors diagnosed my problem as myasthenia gravis. I am 26 years old and am now taking Prostigmine, which relieves the symptoms for the most part. Energy-wise, I have very little. I would appreciate it if you would explain what this disease is and what it does. I know there is no cure, but when I ask my doctor questions he is pretty vague.

The doctor said apparently I've had this for about five years. It started with double vision and a tingling in my legs and arms. Now the double vision is worse, and there is quite a bit of weakness in my hands, arms and legs. Also, my eyelids tend to droop. I really would appreciate it if you could explain this disease for me.

Dear Reader — There is a lot about this disease that's not understood. The main feature is muscular weakness. Weakness of the muscles around the eyes allows them to get out of line causing double vision. The weak muscles cause the drooping eyelids. The weakness may come and go, and can affect other muscles in the body, including those involved in lifting the arms and legs.

The disease affects the body very much like the nerve poison curare used on the tips of poison darts. In fact, medicines like that which you are taking are the same ones used to treat curare poisoning.

The cause of the disease is not known. In a number of patients it seems to be tied in with the thymus gland that rests over the heart in the center of the chest. Nearly a third of the individuals with myasthenia gravis have tumor-like formations within the thymus gland.

Some doctors advise surgery on the thymus gland. Surgical treatment has Improved markedly in recent years. Whether or not an operation is indicated literally depends on how well a patient is doing with medical management and the availability of an experienced surgical team.

This results in some uncertainty in deciding who should be operated on. I would like to assure you, however, that when it's carried out within a medical center large enough to have frequent experience with these types of problems that the surgery does not carry an excessively high risk. Surgery doesn't always result in a marked cure, although there is a high percentage of patients who get significant relief from surgery.

A patient may live a relatively long life span with intermittent periods of weakness and remission and may be successfully managed medically. Rarely a patient may have sudden respiratory crises and lose his ability to breathe related to weakness of muscles in the throat area. Such episodes are often unpredictable and can occur without previous warning.

There are a number of things that can be done. You have already started on one of them, proper medical therapy. Your doctors will probably want to observe you for a while to see how you get along with medical treatment before they consider anything else. While I realize it's a disappointment and a handicap, I hope you will be able to live with your problem without becoming too disturbed about it.

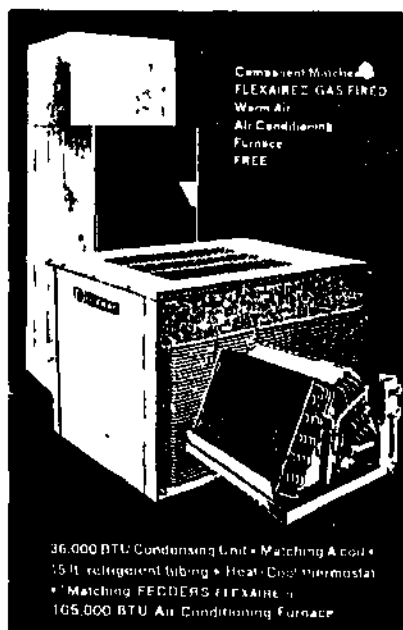

I would hope that everyone who has fatigue will not assume that they have this fascinating disease. The causes of fatigue are numerous and usually far less exotic.

Harper shows more flexibility; faces another rugged schedule

by DON FRISKE

Pre-season football practices cover everything under the sun from kickoffs to punt returns.

Coaches call it "getting prepared for the opponent." Players might call it many other things. Both, however, agree that without the practice, they couldn't win.

One thing that's hard to prepare for in practice, though, is injuries, and what to do when they occur. But John Ellasik, coach of the Harper Hawks, is doing his best to be prepared for whatever might come up.

"Not being prepared to handle injuries was our downfall last year. We had a lot of offensive backfield injuries during our last season," stated Ellasik, who had coached his Hawks' 3-3-2 record in '72.

"You have to have some depth in your team before you can get prepared for injuries. This year I think we have that flexibility. Several players on our current squad know two positions," said Ellasik.

Entering their third season of football action, the Hawks will be relying on returning players from last year's squad. John Herter from Maine West has looked good so far at the offensive tackle position, as has Mike Mull from Elk Grove at tight end. Steve O'Neill from Forest View has been playing well as a defensive back with Steve Glaser capably manning a position on the offensive line.

Two star running backs will also be returning for another season at Harper. Mayor Williams collected 95 yards in 39 carries last year and Ken Memken gathered 463 yards in 99 carries for a 4.6 average, the best on the team.

As a school gains experience and prestige, many more players will come out, and Harper is no exception. In their first year, 35 players tried out, last year the number increased to 46, and this year 65 tried to make the Hawk squad, giving Ellasik a little more to work with.

John Ellasik

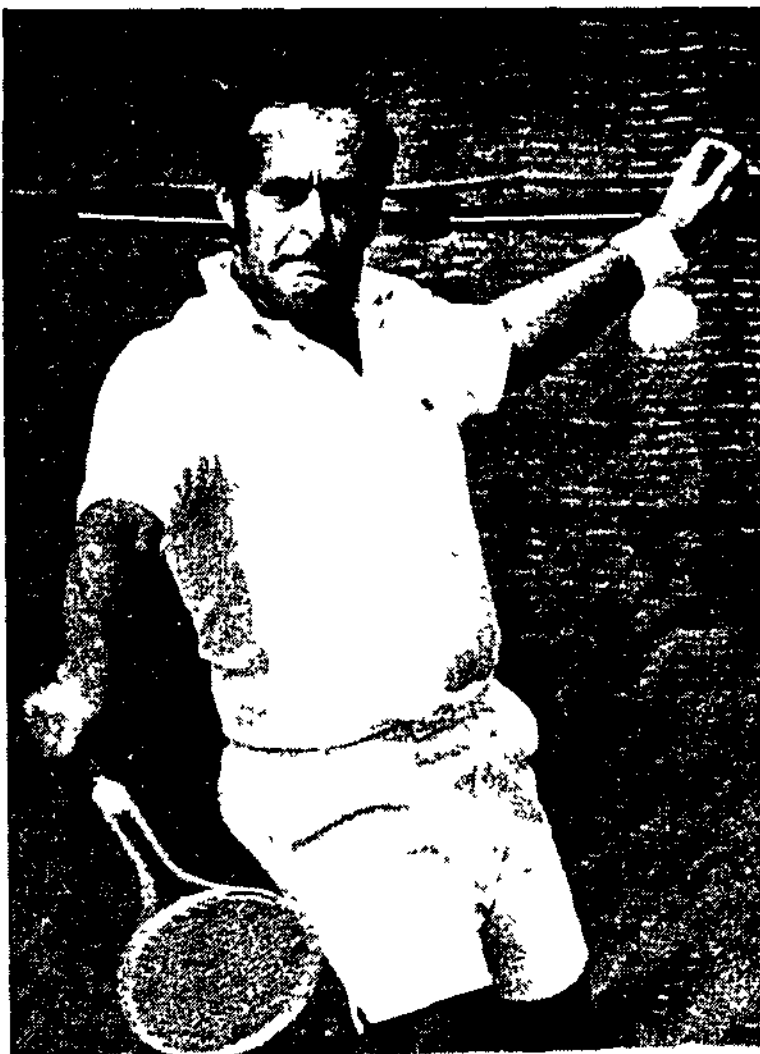

"I look forward to a winning season, but beside that, it's hard to say. I feel confident, however, that this will be the best football season yet at Harper," commented Ellasik. "Potentially, we have the tools to win, but we also face the toughest schedule we've had so far. One could neutralize the other, but barring injuries, we should come out all right."

Ellasik found it easier to list the weaker teams than to name the tougher opponents. "As I look at the schedule there's only one breather on the whole thing. We'll have to be prepared for every game we play."

First year standouts for Ellasik so far this year had been Bob Andrews at quarterback (Hersey), John Babos at line-backer, Jeff Bacon on offense, Pat Dempsey at quarterback, and Steve Frankovic at fullback (Arlington). Also trying to help out the Hawk cause will be John Jones and Marty Williams in the offensive backfield, Bruce Kay at quarterback, Dave Stanko on defense (Forest View), and Irwin Kimbrough as a wide receiver.

Kimbrough, who played at Morgan Park High School in Chicago, was voted as an All-American by the Scholastic Coaches Magazine.

"I think we'll have an exciting team and also that people will enjoy our performance," concluded a confident Ellasik. "I encourage people who like college football to come out and see us play."

Paul Logan

CAN YOU imagine the shock that could come to a White Sox fan if he just returned from a three-month European vacation and checked out the baseball standings and the box score?

If he's a Herald area reader, he might react like this:

Ring.
"Hello, Sports Department. May I help you?"

"Yeah. What the hell happened to the White Sox, where the hell is Dick Allen and who in the hell is Bucky Dent?"

"About 30 injuries, most of them coming to Chicago regulars, knocked them out of first place. Allen suffered a fractured leg in late May and was out a month. Then he came back too soon, limped through a 3-for-4 game and was finished for the season."

"Oh my gawd! But what about this Bucky guy?"

"Well, he's one of about a dozen players the Sox had to call up from their Des Moines farm club to fill in for all those injuries."

"You know, I watched them sweep California last weekend and also beat Texas in the doubleheader Labor Day. This Dent kid isn't bad. Neither are a couple of other guys. I think their names are Harrison, Sharp and Downing."

"That's Jerry Hairston. But you're right about them. Bill Sharp, Brian Downing, Dent and Hairston are coming through despite being fresh out of Class AAA ball."

And so the conversation would go.

If you've seen such new uniform numbers as 2, 5, 16 and 20 on Channel 44 stepping in and doing the job, you've got to be impressed.

Sunday's "Dick Allen Show" (why they call it that without its namesake on hand is beyond me) more or less introduced Downing, Dent and Hairston. I expected humility and got just that from these three because it's a mighty big jump from playing in Sec Taylor Stadium—a seedy, little park along the river of the Iowa state capitol—to White Sox Park. They have to still pinch themselves to see if they're dreaming or it's really happening to them—finally being big leaguers.

Throughout the conversation this trio couldn't say enough about Joe Sparks, their former manager with the Des Moines Oaks. Then the question came up about comparing Manager Chuck Tanner to Sparks.

"I think they're one and the same," said Downing. "Their ideas are the same... just carbon copies, that's what they are."

Each gave Sparks plenty of praise and credited him with helping them tremendously.

Who is this Joe Sparks anyway? Anyone who picks up the Sporting News knows that his team won the Eastern Division of the American Association. Now the Oaks are squaring off with the Wichita Aeros for the playoff series. But who is he?

I found that out while on vacation two weeks ago in Iowa. Plain and simple—he's a winner.

"I didn't expect the Sox to take more than a couple of players from us this summer," says this 35-year-old manager, presently shooting for his third minor league pennant in four tries with four different teams (he missed by 2½ games of winning a division title with Knoxville last year.)

"That night (after the Sox had called up the likes of Sharp, Downing and Dent) I had a meeting with the players. I told 'em that regardless of what happened, we could continue winning."

"I wanted to show them I'd do anything to win. Even though my presence in the lineup wouldn't help us that much, I decided to play to show them I'd sacrifice."

His players must have understood. Despite his going hitless, committing an error at third base and losing 11-2, the Oaks continued to win. They maintained the lead they had taken on May 20 and won their division with ease.

Sparks has done it all by himself for there aren't any other coaches to help out in the minors. Having high hopes of moving up to the majors soon, he can't wait to go where he says he feels the job will be easier.

"Managing at this level is different than in Class A or AA because we have players who have been in the big leagues. The younger guys seem to know what to do, but the older ones—those who have been up and have come back down—must be talked to differently."

Two big challenges were Denny McLain and Buddy Bradford.

"McLain thought I disliked him, but I didn't. However, I did dislike some of the things McLain did when he was with our club. I didn't like it that he disrupted some of the other players on our club with his talk of horsing, golf and the stock market."

"When Buddy played for us he had no goals. It took some time to reach him, but I felt that a couple of weeks before he went up to the White Sox we had reached him."

"I talk with every player on our club at least once a day. I find out if they have problems on the field or off the field."

Sparks admits that when the Sox were going good, his players would cheer when Chicago lost. "That's a natural reaction. They probably feel they should be playing in Chicago instead of Des Moines."

"Myself, I want the Sox to win. I don't like to see them lose."

Thanks to his leadership, the Sox are winning (10 out of their last 11 games) again with former Oaks playing key roles.

Cancel football preview section

Because of a severe newspaper shortage resulting from paper-mill and railroad strikes in Canada, the Herald Football Preview section will not be published this year.

To conserve available supplies, the football previews will be handled in the regular sports section on a daily basis through Thursday, Sept. 13. A general preview to the 1973 season will appear on Friday, Sept. 14.

Although there is a shortage of newspaper, the reduction in the sports section on a daily basis will be accomplished without affecting the main news. However, a number of other features will be omitted, or trimmed, throughout the fall until more newspaper becomes available.

Kingman honored

SAN FRANCISCO — Dave Kingman of the San Francisco Giants Tuesday was named National League player of the week by league president Charles Fennedy.

During the period Aug. 27-Sept. 2, the 6-6, 210-pound Kingman, who prepped at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect, Ill., hit five homers, accumulated eight RBIs in seven games and hit safely eight times in 24 at-bats for a .333 average. (United Press International)

Conant boasts 12 veterans in bid to improve record

by KEITH REINHARD

For at least two reasons, Ralph Losee should be able to anticipate an upswing in the fortunes of Conant's football team this fall.

A trimmed-down group of about three dozen gridders under the tutelage of head coach Losee hopes to respond accordingly as the Cougars prepare for their 1973 campaign beginning with a perennial liftdiff against Lake Park little more than a week from now.

For one thing, there is the pendulum of fate. Its advocates are the ones who adhere to the rule that everything going down must come up and that for every rainfall there's some sunshine afterwards to even the situation out.

Conant suffered through had luck of torrential proportions en route to a 1-7 slate last year. By the law of averages alone they should be in line for bluer skies in '73.

More importantly though — and perhaps more realistically — Losee and company would have appeared to have paid their dues in advance during 1972.

"Without having really much choice in the matter, we went with quite a few underclassmen last year," the mentor acknowledged. His intentions were somewhat along those lines anyway but a long string of illnesses and injuries allowed him no alternative.

So it was rough sledding last autumn but now the Cougar helmetsman has as many as 12 veterans to welcome back into the fold. If they can remain healthy, the outlook has to be brighter than it was a year ago.

Topping off the list of returnees are Bill Fasig and Paul Gebhardt, both prominent in last year's final statistics and figuring to key the club offensively again. Fasig, a 185-pound fullback was the number two rusher on the '72 squad and 170-pound end Gebhardt ranked as the team's (and one of the league's) top receivers.

Both these vets figure in Losee's plans both ways too, along with 170-pound lineman Mike Kopin, backs Bob Boreczack (175 pounds) and Dan Szymkowiak (165) and lineman Matt Louro. Rounding out the list of lettermen are tackles Charlie Redinger (190) Steve Kominski (240) and Greg Edwards (190) along with backs Kurt Eckert (170), Len Olsen (160) and Dave Mills (165).

Both Eckert and junior Boreczack are battling it out to fill the quarterback post vacated by Mike Atkocnitis. The other backfield vets meanwhile must contend with John Fabbri (165), junior Jim Allen (170) and Jeff Ironside (160) among others, before retaining their slots in the lineup.

In the line, fresh candidates hoping to crack Conant's mostly experienced setup include a quartet of juniors starting with 190-pound tackle Kevin Koppari. His brother Bill was a mainstay in the Cougar frontal assault the past two seasons and Losee feels Kevin could easily pick up the slack.

Also strong in the running are tackle Mark Tooren (185), guard Pat McGibbon (165) and end Mark Losee (165).

Already Conant has suffered one possible setback with vet Edwards sidelined by injury and rated as a questionable starter at best for the Lake Park contest. Losee's roster has also been plagued by a high rate of attrition since the initial day of practice when 55 turned out.

"We're concerned about losing that many kids but not really worried yet," the coach observed. "Our feeling is that the youngsters we have left are the ones genuinely interested in playing some hard-nosed football this fall."

Added Losee: "We've got some hitters if we can keep them healthy through the next couple of months. We just can't afford any injuries, that's all."

If the Cougars haven't toughened up enough yet, their forthcoming schedule is bound to accommodate them. In addition to Lake Park, they'll have non-conference combat against Wheaton North (probably the number two power in the Tri-County circuit behind Lake Park) and cross-over contests against possibly the favorites of the North Division: Hersey and Fremd.

Two ice-skating personalities, Stan Mikita, star center for the Chicago Black Hawks, and Dianne Holum, speed skater and winner of four Olympic medals, will appear at Woodfield Ice Arena Thursday in special grand opening shows free to the public.

Mikita, winner of four scoring championships and almost every other possible award in the National Hockey League, will be master of ceremonies for the 1:30 p.m. ice show.

Dianne Holum, winner of a bronze, gold and two silver medals in the Olympic speed skating competitions, will open the 7 p.m. show in a race with the clock.

Cheryl and Dave Michalowski, a brother and sister team from Park Ridge, are among performers in the ice shows. The precision pair skaters give no indication in their performance that both are deaf and rely on lip reading to learn.

Dave, 16, came in second at the Wagon Wheels Invitational figure skating competition meet and has passed the test for pre-bronze dance as well as the preliminaries for first and second figure tests.

Cheryl, 14, has passed preliminary and first figure tests.

Their teacher is Mike McMorran, assistant manager and head pro at the new arena. He and his wife, Lois, who have both performed in the Ice Follies, will teach at the rink.

The arena is located in the new wing of

Stan Mikita

Woodfield Mall and contains 10 miles of piping covering 25,000 sq. ft. of skating space. With the opening of the new wing, Woodfield becomes the world's largest shopping center.

Classes in figure skating are available to children three years of age through adults. Basic hockey will also be taught. Special group rates are available to civic groups including Boy and Girl Scouts and supervised time periods have been set aside for handicapped youngsters.

Beginning Friday the rink will be open for public skating seven days a week.

Hours are 10:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.; and 10:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Danans ousts Bruins from softball test

After winning almost everything in sight for the past three months, the Buffalo Grove Bruins ran into a quagmire and one club they never could handle at last weekend's World Softball Championships in Florissant, Mo.

The Bruins had won three games and were leading, 4-1, in the fourth over Kerr Sporting Goods of Phoenix, Ariz., when the roof fell in. Buffalo Grove blew the lead and lost 16-10.

The Bruins were eliminated when they followed that with a 4-3 loss to Danans of Wisconsin. Danans gave the Bruins three of their six losses during a 75-8 season.

Catcher Bob Campbell and first baseman Ken Izral were named to the All-Tournament team. Campbell hit .500 with two homers and Izral batted .600.

The Evanston Bobcats successfully defended their 16-inch world title as pitcher Eddie Zolna was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player.

Second-to-fifth placings went to Kerr Sporting Goods, Danans, the Bensenville Chiefs and, finally, the Bruins. The Chiefs and Bruins finished two-one in Bensenville league play this summer.

Buffalo Grove's only other losses this summer were to App's Tap of Chicago and the Strikers. The latter gave outfielder Tommy Bowen to the Bruins after they were eliminated in regional play. Bowen hit a pinch-hit homer in the softball World Series.

The Bruins defeated Monte Carlo of Minneapolis, Minn., 15-6; Cecils Inn of Iowa, 8-4; and the St. Louis Saints, 10-3, before their losses to Kerr and Danans.

Buffalo Grove placed fourth in last year's tournament. This year, they won the Mission Bell Classic Invitational at Santa Clara, Calif., the Barrington Invitational, Illinois State Tournament, Chicago Grant Park Regional and leagues in Bensenville and Buffalo Grove.

The Bruins were sponsored by Kenny Olsen of Kenny General Elevator, Inc., in Arlington Heights.

Elk Grove hockey tryouts for mites, peewees, squirts

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association will complete evaluations today and Saturday at the Woodfield Hockey Center.

Mites will be evaluated at 7:30 p.m. tonight. PeeWees should report at 8:30 a.m. Saturday and Squirts one hour later.

All boys who have not turned in registration forms should bring them to the rink and report in full hockey equipment. Any youngster without a form should report to the rink with his parents one hour before his scheduled ice time.

In other hockey news, the Elk Grove Midgets defeated the Oakbrook Blues, 6-1 for first place in the Oakbrook Summer League. Elk Grove finished with an 11-1 record.

Goalie Steve Cimino played a strong game. Elk Grove's first tally was by Mark Gustafson with assists from Gary Pratchard and Tony Saltaski. Bob McLoraine and Bob Brunn then received assists on goals by Larry Mitsch and Joe Danca.

Elk Grove's fourth goal was by Saltaski with assists from Len Jeroci and Pratchard. Brunn picked up two more assists as Jeroci and Mitsch finished Elk Grove's scoring. Jeroci had an assist on Mitsch's second goal.

During its 12-game schedule, Elk Grove allowed only 15 goals and scored 63. Top scorers were Bill Halpenny and Brunn with 17 points apiece. Halpenny had seven goals and 10 assists; Brunn three goals and 14 assists.

McLoraine had eight goals to lead the champion Midgets. He was trailed by Halpenny with seven and Jeroci and Bob Gooske, six apiece. Joe Danca had five goals.

Won for losers

The Cubs had 20-game pitching winners in 1963 and '64 although they were not in contention for the pennant either year. Dick Ellsworth was 22-10 in '63 and Larry Jackson won 24 the following year.

Schaumburg boys baseball

Boys baseball sponsored by the Schaumburg Athletic Association has been conducted for the summer with the Expos winning the major league and the Twins the minor league in World Series play.

The Expos, representing the National League, took the major league World Series in two straight, 2-1 and 16-4, over the Angels.

Mark von dem Bachhausen hit in both games for the Expos. Bill Schimble pitched six innings, with 14 strikeouts and just one hit allowed during the Expos' 2-1 win. He was relieved by Dave Negrete.

The losing pitcher was Dave Cermine. Hoyt Archibald, who also doubled, gave just one hit over six innings.

Eight players had two or more hits in the 16-4 second game, led by the Angels' Dave Nimow with four, including three doubles. Others with four hits were the Angels' Dave Cermine and Expos' Gary Delcan. Negrete, von dem Bach and the Angels' Tim Youngberg had three hits apiece. Jeff Delcan and Schimble got two.

Cermine, Youngberg and Negrete had one double apiece. The Expos' Gary Delcan picked up the win while John Hammer got the loss.

The Angels advanced into the major league World Series with a 3-1 American League championship victory over the Twins. Winning

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

The Magic of Meat Loaf

These days of high food prices have put additional strain on the family budget to say nothing of what happens when company comes.

It is still possible to entertain an additional couple without spending a fortune on groceries. Take a homemaker's best friend — meat loaf. Made with cubes of Danish cheese and a dash of dill, meat loaf becomes elegant company fare.

Inside you'll find a menu made for company that combines economy, appeal and preparation ease.

Mrs. Gilbert Arosen

She likes easy 'do-ahead' dishes

by LOIS SEILER

Following the Sunday evening service at Mount Prospect Bible Church, Gil and Snooky Arosen of Arlington Heights often invite fellow parishioners home for an evening snack. With most of the preparations done in advance, Snooky makes light work of getting the food ready to serve.

She makes the sauce for her unusual barbecue cups a day ahead, and re-heats it slightly before using. The "cups" are made ahead of time from packaged dinner roll dough which is rolled out to fit muffin tins.

The salad which Snooky serves with the barbecue cups congeals so quickly that it can be made just a short time before serving or a day ahead, if desired.

It consists of lime gelatin, crushed pineapple, pecans and gingerale combined with ice cream. Snooky usually doubles the recipe, making it in a crown mold.

OF SWEDISH descent, the Arosens enjoy a rice pudding with any type of meal any time of year and this includes evening snacks. They even take the pudding on picnics!

Snooky makes her pudding from her mother's recipe, usually doubling or tripling the amount. It is easily prepared with Minute Rice and is high in nutritional value. True to the family's traditions, the pudding is also a favorite with the Arosen's three sons, Bob, 16, Ron, 15, and Randy, 11.

To complete the evening's repast, this cook suggests Strawberry Delight, a refrigerator dessert that is also made the day before.

Assembled in a square pan, it has a vanilla wafer crust and topping and a layer in between that separates a butter cream filling and a layer of whipped cream and strawberries.

BARBECUE CUPS

1 package Snowflake dinner rolls
1 pound ground round steak
1/2 small jar piccalilli
1 small bottle Brook's Tangy Catsup
Salt and pepper to taste
Onion salt to taste
Divide dough for each roll in half. Roll between waxed paper, shaping circles to fit muffin cups. Place in 16 to 18 muffin cups.
Brown meat; add piccalilli, catsup and seasonings. Let simmer 30 to 45 minutes. Cool slightly. When warm but not hot, spoon into dough-lined cups. Place in a 375-degree oven and bake 10 to 15 minutes. Near the end of baking time, sprinkle with grated Cheddar cheese. Serves 8.

LIME GINGERALE ICE CREAM SALAD

2 small packages lime gelatin
1/2 cup hot water
1/2 cup gingerale
1 quart vanilla ice cream, softened
1 13-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
1/2 cup chopped pecans
Dissolve gelatin in hot water and add gingerale. Stir in ice cream and chill until partially set, about ten minutes. Fold in crushed pineapple and pecans and turn into a 1 1/2-quart mold. Refrigerate until firm. Unmold on serving plate. Serves 8 to 10.

MINUTE RICE PUDDING

3 eggs
1/2 cup sugar
2 cups milk
Pinch of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup Minute Rice, prepared according to package directions
Beat eggs well. Beat in sugar and add milk and salt. Pour into an ungreased one-quart baking dish. Stir in rice and vanilla. Bake one hour, uncovered, at 350 degrees. Serves 6 to 8.

STRAWBERRY DELIGHT

1 large bag vanilla wafers (one pound)

1/2 cup soft-spread margarine
1 cup confectioners' sugar
2 eggs, well-beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1 large package frozen strawberries, thawed and drained, or 1 1/2 cups fresh, sliced strawberries
1 pint whipping cream
Crush vanilla wafers fine. Place 1/3 of the crumbs in the bottom of an ungreased 9 by 9-inch pan.
Cream margarine and sugar. Add well-beaten eggs and beat well. Blend in vanilla and nuts. Spread over crumb layer in pan. Cover with another 1/3 of crumbs.
Whip cream and fold in strawberries. Spread over crumb layer. Sprinkle top with thin layer of crumbs. Refrigerate overnight. Serves 8.

BARBECUE CUPS are a favorite entrée of Mrs. Gil Arosen, Arlington Heights, when she entertains fellow parishioners after church. She fills the 'cups', which are made from packaged dinner roll dough, with a barbecue sauce consisting of catsup, piccalilli and ground beef. The combination is topped with Cheddar cheese and baked before serving.

Mostly For Men
by Charles

So many readers have requested that I repeat the recipe for Minnie's Lemon Bread. Minnie is my wife and she procured the original recipe from Mrs. Wallace Moreland in Storrs, Conn., several years ago and has developed her own touches.

It's delightful on any occasion but especially for teas, bridge luncheons or as an unusual item for a brunch or cocktail party.

To make one loaf, cream 1 cup sugar in 1/2 cup shortening. Add 2 eggs and beat well. Blend in the grated rind of 1 lemon. Measure 1 1/2 cups flour, sift and add all at once to the mixture. Add 1/2 cup milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Be sure mixture is blended until smooth. Turn into a buttered pan and bake 55 minutes at 325 to 350 degrees.

In a cup mix the juice of 1 lemon with 1/2 cup sugar. When bread is done pour over the lemon-sugar mixture and loosen the bread at the sides to drip. Leave in the pan for 15 minutes. Serve sliced thin and buttered.

WHILE WE'RE in the family of Flynn cooks, here's a favorite hot Mexican dip to serve with snacks before dinner. It's the concoction of son, Mike, who lives in Phoenix and has developed quite an interest in South of the Border foods.

Drain a No. 303 can of tomatoes and blend just 5 or 6 seconds on low speed in your blender. Chop drained contents of a 4-ounce can of mild green chiles. Don't blend these or sauce will be too fiery.

Dice 8 (1 bunch) green onions including the firm green parts. Now mix tomatoes, green chiles, diced onions and 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder. Allow to stand 30 minutes at room temperature, then chill before serving on tostados or other corn chips. The dip is hot, but good.

In answer to a number of queries, here again is my favorite Pennsylvania Dutch cole slaw dressing. Combine 1 1/2 tablespoons vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon black pepper, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon mayonnaise, and 1 cup sour cream. Blend well. Enough for 1 large head of cabbage.

When preparing a company dinner a good basic meat loaf is just the beginning.

A row of hard cooked eggs buried in the center stretches the protein — as well as the budget. Our recipe uses extra lean ground beef which is often a better buy than the cheaper grinds because lean meat has less shrinkage, making it cost less per serving.

But to compensate for the lack of fat in the loaf and add flavor, the pan is crisscrossed with bacon strips.

As it comes from the oven, triangles of cheese are overlapped across the loaf to melt, making the "frosting on the cake." In keeping with a Danish accent, the cheese on top may be Tybo, Danbo, or Samsoe cubed inside the loaf or it can be faster-melting Havarti. Danish cooks would trim the loaf with a sprig of fresh dill. However, parsley is more probable in this country.

Round out the meal with beets. Flavor them with red wine vinegar, triple sec (an orange flavored liqueur), grated orange peel and chunks of candied ginger. Cubed beets from a can make this a snap.

Even easier are the potatoes. Saute whole canned potatoes to a golden brown in equal parts of oil and butter. The mixture of fat doesn't burn like butter, yet you get the good butter flavor. Shake the skillet or gently nudge the spuds with tongs to keep them moving for an even brown.

Butterhead lettuce and curly endive are used for the green salad. The greens are tossed with a Danish dressing of mayonnaise, tarragon vinegar and chives fluffed with whipped cream.

Leftover meat loaf can be thinly sliced and, with the help of a little lettuce, made into open-face sandwiches. Of course, the loaf makes good closed sandwiches, too.

DANISH MEAT LOAF

- 2 1/2 pounds extra lean ground beef
- 1 cup 1/4-inch cubes Tybo, Danbo, or Samsoe Danish cheese
- 1/2 cup finely chopped onion
- 1/2 cup 1/4-inch cubes soft bread (crusts removed)
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
- 2 eggs
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dill weed
- 4 hard-cooked eggs, peeled
- 4 slices bacon
- 2 or 3 thin slices Tybo, Danbo, or Samsoe cheese, cut in diagonal halves or fourths
- Sprig of fresh dill or parsley (optional)

Combine meat, cubes of Danish cheese, onion, bread cubes, green pepper, the 2 raw eggs, garlic, salt, pepper, and dill.

Using a 9 1/2 x 5 1/4 x 2 1/4-inch loaf pan, crisscross two strips of bacon at either end, making 2 diagonal crosses and bringing a bacon end up each corner of loaf pan.

Firmly press enough of the meat mixture in bacon-lined pan to make 1/2-inch layer. Build more meat up sides of pan, pressing firmly into same 1/2-inch thickness. Now you have a pan lined with meat. Arrange the hardcooked eggs down center (they fit better if placed crosswise in pan.)

Cover eggs with rest of meat mixture, pressing to seal but not pressing firmly enough to mash eggs.

Fold any corners of bacon over meat. Bake in slow oven (325 degrees) 2 hours or till done.

Unmold. Trim top by overlapping triangles of thinly sliced cheese. If sliced too thickly to melt slightly, slip loaf into oven turned to lowest setting just long enough for cheese to melt attractively. If desired, trim with sprig of fresh dill or parsley. Makes 8 servings.

TOSSED GREEN SALAD

- 1/3 cup mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
- 1 tablespoon chopped chives
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
- 1/3 cup heavy cream
- 2 small heads butterhead or limestone (Bibb) lettuce or 1 head iceberg lettuce
- 1 bunch curly endive
- 6 green onions (scallions) thinly sliced
- 6 radishes, thinly sliced
- 1/2 cucumber, thinly sliced.

Combine mayonnaise, tarragon vinegar, chives and parsley; whip cream and fold into mayonnaise mixture. Chill a few hours before serving.

To serve, tear lettuce and endive into bite-size pieces into salad bowl. Add green onions, radishes and cucumber. Add enough dressing to moisten, tossing to mix. Add salt and coarsely ground pepper to taste. Makes about 4 servings. There is enough dressing for 6 to 8 servings. Increase greens and other vegetables for more servings of salad.

BEETS A L'ORANGE

- 1 can (1 pound) diced beets
- 2 tablespoons sugar

- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
- 1 tablespoon chopped candied ginger
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 3 tablespoons triple sec or other orange-flavored liqueur
- 2 tablespoons butter

Drain beets, reserving 1/3 cup liquid. In a cold skillet, combine sugar, cornstarch and salt. Stir in wine vinegar, the reserved beet liquid, and the candied ginger and grated orange peel. (The only lumps should be ginger and orange peel.)

Now cook and stir over moderate heat till thick and clear. Add beets, orange liqueur and butter; cook and stir till butter melts and beets are heated through.

If desired, trim with extra orange peel. Make 4 servings.

SKILLET SPUDS

- 1 can (1 pound) tiny whole potatoes, drained
- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
- 1/4 cup salad oil
- Chopped chives or parsley for trim

Melt butter and oil just till butter melts, stirring to blend. Add potatoes; shake skillet or stir spuds with wood spoon or spatula till they brown evenly — about 10 minutes over medium-high heat.

Sprinkle with about 1 teaspoon chopped chives or parsley. Makes 4 servings.

How to beat high cost of food

by AILEEN CLAIRE

Since as recently as 1950 our eating habits have changed. We are eating more beef and poultry, processed fruits and vegetables, salad and cooking oils per person but fewer fresh fruits, vegetables and cereal products. Heart specialists and nutritionists urge Americans to go easy on desserts, whipped toppings and foods in cream, butter or sauces with coconut oil. All these contribute to a possible buildup of cholesterol and perhaps an early cardiac condition, especially in men and women after menopause. Aside from the health reason, families can save money each week by buying more fruits and vegetables in season. Chicken also continues to be one of the more economical sources of protein. It has a low source of animal fat, especially when eaten with the skin removed. Who feels deprived when served a Chicken Kie?

CHICKEN KIEV

- 2 large whole breasts of chicken, skinless and without wing bones attached
- 1/4 cup diet margarine
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- dash pepper
- 1 egg
- 1 tablespoon skim milk
- 1/2 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- peanut oil

Cut chicken breasts in half along ridges of breast bone. Carefully skin and bone each half without cutting through flesh. Place each piece between sheets of wax paper. Pound very thin with smooth-surfaced meat hammer or rolling pin; do not tear flesh. Remove wax paper. Place 1 1/2 tablespoons margarine in the center of each breast. Combine chives, salt, and pepper; sprinkle over margarine. Roll each breast and overlap sides so that margarine mixture is completely enclosed. The flesh will adhere without toothpicks or skewers. Beat egg and skim milk together. Roll chicken in bread crumbs, then in egg mixture, and again in bread crumbs to coat evenly. Refrigerate at least 20 minutes to let coating set. Fry chicken rolls in deep hot peanut oil (370 degrees) until well browned on all sides, about 8 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

Household hints

Try substituting fortified noodles, macaroni or spaghetti for meats. But the protein in pasta is not as high in quality as that of meat and milk protein, says Ethel Dieckrichsen, of the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

Fish is easy and quick to prepare; it should not be overcooked. One easy way with a fillet is to pan fry very quickly in a smidgen of vegetable oil then lavish on fresh lemon juice. Or, brush a whole fillet with the oil, then add thin onion slices. Wrap tightly in foil and bake at medium heat for no more than 20 minutes.

If a fruit jar top is hard to unscrew and you don't have a modern opener, try putting a wide rubber band on the cap to get a good grip.

If you double a recipe, do not double the amount of seasonings until you have taste tested.

For full flavor, cook dried fruits in the same water in which they were soaked.

by Fran Heckart

Fresh peaches are plentiful now at most roadside fruit and vegetable stands and this year's crop is one of the best.

A luscious treat for all times, a fresh peach is appropriate for breakfast, lunch, dinner or snacking. The freestone peach is the type you're most likely to find on the fresh market. When ripe, the flesh of the freestone separates readily from the pit. This quality makes it one of the most popular varieties to eat out-of-hand or to prepare for fruit dishes.

Good quality peaches should be bright and fresh with a yellow or creamy background color. Part of the surface usually has a red or pinkish blush. The amount and shade of surface blush varies according to variety and pre-harvest weather. Remember that blush alone is not an indication of quality.

When buying peaches homemakers should look for peaches that are firm but not hard. Peaches that are hard, with a green ground color, may not ripen. Unless they are for immediate use, avoid soft peaches. Also avoid fruit with bruised or discolored flesh. At room temperature decay will develop rapidly and may spread to other peaches.

Peaches are extremely perishable so handle the produce with care lest you bruise fruit that others may want to buy. It's also a good idea not to buy more than you can use or store without waste.

To ripen peaches, keep at room temperature. If you want to slow the ripening process, put peaches in the refrigerator. But don't keep them there too long — they will begin to shrivel after a week in the "cool."

Spicy new dish made with onions

A new dish always is welcome to spice up the usual fare of chicken, hot dogs and hamburgers. A recipe that helps stretch food dollars blends deviled ham, Parmesan cheese and an herbed dry stuffing mix as a filling for onions. Spicy Stuffed Onions should keep men, especially, happy.

SPICY STUFFED ONIONS

3 medium onions
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 cup prepared herbed, dry stuffing mix

1 1/2 ounce can deviled ham
2 tablespoons water
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Peel onions and parboil for 10 minutes. Slice in half horizontally and hollow out centers, leaving an inch rim. In a small frying pan, saute chopped celery in butter. Combine with herbed stuffing mix, deviled ham and water. Place onions in a baking dish. Fill hollows with deviled ham mixture. Sprinkle with cheese and bake for 20 minutes or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Crime—an inescapable fact of life

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines. Forest Hospital is a fully-accredited 125-bed psychiatric hospital known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

We're victims of crime. We're exposed to crime through people we know or through the media. Crime seems to be an inescapable fact of our lives. We're angered by crime. We wonder about its causes and we wonder about the people who commit crime. We wonder about our laws which punish and deter and we wonder why they don't always work. And we wonder what kind of person would murder, maim, bludgeon or rape a helpless victim.

Dr. Jonas Rapoport, past president of the American Academy of Psychiatry and the Law, has recently discussed his views on criminal responsibility and the relationship between psychiatry and the law.

"As you know," Dr. Rapoport said, "society is concerned about the responsibility of the criminal. A long time ago anybody who committed any crime was generally hanged or executed in some way. Then in the 13th century when people started thinking about the individual and human rights society started wondering whether it could hold every-one responsible for his behavior.

"This is particularly true," he continued, "for the small child or the moron or imbecile who are totally and completely without reason. As a result the legal concept developed by society through its courts, says that a person's mental state at the time of his crime is important and if he did not have the ability to form a criminal intent then he was not considered responsible and could not be punished because he did not know what he did.

"Generally this area of responsibility is quite troublesome to people. Basically people have the idea that everyone should be held responsible and we must punish wrongdoers. Our law operates on the basis of willful intent. I don't think a social system can be based on determinism. I also think in psychiatric terms that people have egos and superegos and in a psychiatric sense people do generally have the ability to willfully construct and control and direct their behavior—but there are exceptions such as in the mentally retarded."

WHAT ABOUT THE relationship between crime and insanity. "The truth of the fact is," Dr. Rapoport said, "less than two per cent of all crimes committed are by people found not guilty by reason of insanity.

"Most so-called insane or mentally ill people are not dangerous. They're clearly no more dangerous than the rest of society and depending on how you look at it that may not be saying a whole lot. All criminals, though, are not insane and there are only a very, very small group of people who are mentally ill and while mentally ill commit serious crimes.

"Who is a truly sick person? Well, the man who hears God's voice telling him to murder his children because they do not belong on this earth which is controlled by the devil. Rather than see them grow up and suffer the effort of the devil and commit such crimes against nature that adults do—he will dispatch his children from this earth and put them at peace. He holds his Bible in one hand and murders them with the other.

"This is the essence of a split personality. This is a truly sick person acting on the basis of an insane delusion. He should be in a hospital. He should not be considered responsible for his behavior because he was doing what he thought was God-given proper and right behavior. He would probably be judged criminally insane."

"NOW," DR. RAPPOPORT continued, "the sociopath is quite different. He's basically anti-social. He has no loyalties and he directs his efforts against society to benefit himself. He's a hedonist—he's pleasure oriented, self-centered and has little interest in helping others or doing other than taking care of just his own pleasure. He does have aberrant behavior and he does need treatment but he's not insane."

Dr. Rapoport added that psychiatrists are not always able to predict a person's criminal behavior and the judgement about punishment is best left up to the peer system. "But I do think that we have to use some discretion in judging people and try to make any punishment fit the criminal and not the crime."

Fireman cadet program is law

A bill providing for fireman cadet programs by municipalities, sponsored by Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, has been signed into law by Gov. Daniel Walker.

The bill also provides for appointment of cadets to active duty in municipal fire departments.

Regner said the training program authorized by the bill will "provide a reservoir of trained and motivated younger men to fill future manpower needs as dictated by growth and replacement requirements."

Seven doctors named to Northwest staff

Seven area doctors have been appointed to the staff of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights by the hospital's board of directors.

They are Ajay K. Jain, M.D., internal medicine; Gordon R. Lang, M.D., nephrology (science dealing with kidneys); Argelia Heller, M.D., Catherine R. Wiso, M.D., and Stanislaw A. Maslanka, M.D., psychiatry; Joseph A. Bertucci, M.D., pediatrics; and Robert J. Lubert, M.D., ophthalmology.

Forest Preserve to sell buildings

The Cook County Forest Preserve District is selling a barn, two frame houses and out buildings in Baker's Lake Forest Preserve in Palatine Township.

The only catch is that buyers must move the buildings off of the forest preserve district's land.

The buildings include a frame guest house, a frame caretakers house, the barn and other out buildings located at 901 S. Northwest Highway in Palatine Township.

A large house also located on the property is not for sale and will be kept by the district as a residence for forest preserve caretakers, according to Arthur Janura, general superintendent of the forest preserve district.

Janura said that the district requires buyers to put down a deposit to assure that they will remove all of the buildings they buy. He noted that otherwise some buyers would merely strip lumber or decorations from the homes and leave the district with the job of hauling away the remainder.

Janura said that in recent years the district has had difficulty finding bidders to buy the buildings not needed by the district.

"It used to be simple to find buyers, but now the cost of moving the buildings is prohibitive with the high cost of labor," Janura said.

Bids have been so scarce on other recent sales that "in many instances the district ends up wrecking the buildings with its own laborers," Janura noted.

Bids on the buildings at Baker's Lake will be accepted until Sept. 17, with proposal forms available through Sept. 14 from the forest preserve district offices at 538 North Harlem Ave. in River Forest or by telephoning Co 1-6400.

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA
A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.
He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "going off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.
The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.
Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.
Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.
THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.
Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.
In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.
AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.
Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.
The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.
Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.
"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."
He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."
Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.
The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.
Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.
Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.
Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."
He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.
In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rositter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.
LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rositter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."
He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rositter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."
"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.
He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Board rejects Phoenix plea for multi-family zoning

by JOE FRANZ
A request for a zoning change to allow multi-family development on four tracts, three fronting the Buffalo Grove Golf Course, has been rejected by the village board.
By a 4-2 vote Tuesday night the board turned down the proposal by the Phoenix Construction Co. The developer had asked the village to rezone the property from single-family to multi-family to allow construction of townhouses, condominiums and apartments.
Jack Siegel, an attorney for Phoenix, said his client has an option to buy the property but will not do so since the zoning change was turned down.
If the village had granted the developer's request, the owners of the golf course would have given the village the opportunity to purchase it. Several village officials have expressed a desire to purchase the golf course and preserve it as open space.
Village Pres. Gary Armstrong and some other officials said they fear if the village does not obtain the golf course it might be sold to a private developer.
Harold Friedman, one of the owners of the golf course, who is also believed to be the beneficiary of a secret land trust holding the Phoenix property offered to sell the golf course to the village for $1.1 million if the rezoning was granted.
Some officials have argued the golf course at that price would be a bargain, while others have said the offer is nothing better than the fair market value.
PRIOR TO the board's decision to reject the Phoenix request, Armstrong said, "Personally, I think if the golf course is lost to the village it's a crime." Several board members, however, said they think the village may still get an opportunity to buy the golf course despite Tuesday night's decision.
One way of obtaining the 129-acre, 18-hole course would be through condemnation. Some officials, however, have said the village would pay considerably more than $1.1 million if the property is condemned. In exercising the right of eminent domain the village would have to pay the owner a price consistent with the "highest and best use of the land." Village Atty. Richard Rayns said if the owner could convince the courts that the best use of the golf course would be as a housing development, the cost of the land would be higher.

If the village does not purchase the golf course, Rayns said it probably could not prevent the owner of the property from selling it for development. Although it is now a golf course, the zoning would permit certain kinds of residential development, he said.
VILLAGE ENGINEER Arnold Seaberg said even though part of the golf course is in the flood plain, correcting the land so it conforms to village building and flood ordinances would be relatively inexpensive.
A number of residents objected to the Phoenix proposal because of its high density and its three and four-story buildings. The residents said the developments would have blocked the view of the golf course from the street as well as damaging the property values of their homes.
Trustee Clarice Rech said one of the reasons she opposed the development was because it would have generated about 2,439 persons. Phoenix and the nearby Scholz and Chesterfield developments would generate more than 5,000 persons who would be living in the vicinity of the golf course, she said. "That's just too many people," she said.
Siegel said Phoenix was proposing a "quality development" and that its high density would not be detrimental to the village. "We're asking for a development that is as good or better than anything in the village," he told the board.
Joining Mrs. Rech in voting against the project were trustees Ed Osmon, James Shirley and Randall Rathjen. Trustees Thomas Mahoney and Jerry Driscoll voted for it.
Although village zoning maps show the property as single family, there is some question about the actual zoning. In the preannexation agreement which was approved in 1964 the village agreed to change the zoning on the 63 acres of golf course property to multi-family. In 1968 the village approved a plan to build 1,100 multi-family units. However, through an oversight, the ordinances granting the zoning and approving the plan were never passed.

RAYSA SAID a recent court decision in another village held that even though ordinances were never passed, the village was obligated to grant the zoning agreed on in the preannexation agreement.
The fourth tract, 33.3 acres, north of Rte. 83 at Busch Road was annexed in 1967 as single-family with no development plan.
Now that the Phoenix proposal has been rejected, it is possible the owner of the golf course property will take the village to court in an attempt to settle the zoning question.
By turning down the development, it appears the village will not get the 4.8-acre site across from the village hall which has been considered as a possible location for a public works garage. The land was to be accepted in lieu of a $35,000 debt Friedman has owed the village for about two years. The land which is estimated to be worth $98,000, is also in trust.
Siegel told the board Tuesday his client has reconsidered and was willing to donate about $119,000 to the local school districts. Previously, Phoenix had offered about $38,000. Village officials said the additional money would satisfy the village's resolution that requires donations to school and park districts.
Siegel said no money was being donated to the park district because the park facilities in the development would have been adequate.
Another matter raised by several trustees Tuesday was the question of storm water retention. Phoenix proposed to funnel all runoff from the golf course property onto the golf course instead of providing on-site retention. Mrs. Rech said Phoenix should be required to provide on-site retention the same as all other developers.

OVERCROWDED CONDITIONS at Willow Grove in the hall and they are not bothered by or do they School have forced teachers to conduct two sections of kindergarten classes in the hallway. Supt. William Hitzeman yesterday said the kids don't seem to mind being hinder other classes. Elizabeth Seim and Daniel Seavey are pictured at work.

35 kindergartners have class in hallway

Despite the fact that 35 kindergarten children at the Willow Grove school in Dist. 96 are having class in a hallway, school officials say there is no problem in the education they are receiving.
The Herald yesterday received several calls from irritated parents who wanted to know why their children could not be in a classroom.
"We just don't have the room until our new school opens in January," said Supt. William Hitzeman. "Until then we have two sections of kindergarten in the hallway."
He explained that one section of 18 children attends the class in the morning and a section of 17 pupils comes to school for afternoon lessons. All kindergarten classes last 2 1/2 hours.
Hitzeman said the problem is due to the increase in the number of first-year pupils in the district. In July he told school board members that classes were larger than the anticipated 160 students. As of yesterday there were 187 students attending kindergarten classes.
AT THAT SAME meeting the school board gave its approval for the hiring of another full time teacher to handle the extra students. But it was unable to find extra classroom for the students.
Hitzeman said the students only use the hallway as a home base. They are able to use the other three Kindergarten classrooms in the school for projects and work.
The students are not disturbed nor do they disturb the upper grades in the school when they are in the hallway since the kindergarten section of the school is set off in its own area.
Hitzeman admitted he has also received complaints about the situation but said it is the best alternative. "If we move them into the gym or the library we must cut other programs and we can't do that," he said.

Board member Linaya Bach was at the school yesterday and, according to Hitzeman, she approved of the situation. "It's not the most idealistic situation, but it is working and the children are not being hurt by it," Hitzeman added.

St. Mary's football team downs Norridge

St. Mary's senior football team last Sunday defeated the St. Eugene's of Norridge gridder by a score of 14 to 12.
The local team, which competes in the Northwest Parish League, scored in the first and second quarters and were leading 14 to 6 at the half.
Touchdowns were scored by St. Mary's backs Tom O'Neill and Charles Black.
St. Mary's will open league play Sunday, Sept. 9 in a game set for 3 p.m. against defending league champions St. Francis Borgia.

No cost figured yet in search for snake

The Village of Buffalo Grove has not yet come up with a figure on how much the recent "snake hunt" cost the taxpayers.
According to village officials, Seymour, who was originally thought to be a deadly cobra, is nothing more than a harmless rat snake. The snake still has not been found.
Last week the village board passed a resolution to assess the keeper of the snake, David Pearson, 18, 568 Maple Dr. for the cost of the search.

'Fuzz' doesn't faze new counselor

by JILL BETTNER
Striding through the hall of the new Buffalo Grove High School, the young man is stopped by a confused student seeking directions to the band room.
"Gee, I think it's that way," he says, pointing over her left shoulder.
She thanks him, probably thinking this guy in a sport coat and tie with longish blond-streaked hair is just another teacher.
But, he isn't. He's a policeman and his name is Don Bottenhagen.
Assigned fulltime to the high school, Bottenhagen's official title is police community relations officer. More commonly, though, he's known as the police counselor.
"That's my job. I'm here to counsel, not to throw the cuffs on somebody," said the handsome brown-eyed officer.
At 27, Bottenhagen could easily be that new history instructor girls always whisper and giggle about at the beginning of another school year.
DESPITE HIS deceiving appearance, Bottenhagen said the word is already out that he's a cop.
"Oh, I know several of the kids from being on the street and they've got a grapevine that just doesn't quit," he laughed. "I've already had comments like 'Hey, Pig!' and 'Hi Fuzz!'," but when I hear them, I just smile."

Bottenhagen doesn't mind the hazing, but he plans to do what he can to change the image most kids have of police.
"I'll be considered the school cop just because that's the label they'll automatically give me. However, I'm going to try to build up the kids' confidence in me by speaking with them and showing them I'm not the cop they're thinking about — although I can be."
That's where respect for the law comes in.
"I'm not coming in here like gangbusters and pinch kids for this and that, unless, of course, they do something that has to do with the safety of students and faculty. That's coming within the realm of the law that has to be enforced," he said.
"I hope I'll be able to build up the kids' respect for the law," he continued. "After all, this is where the future cops, lawyers and judges are going to come from."

As he explained it, Bottenhagen's job is to get at the reasons why a kid gets into trouble at school — truancy, drugs, shoplifting, whatever — not merely to inflict the penalties.
With the help of the social worker, psychologist and other counselors at the school, Bottenhagen's aim is to straighten the student out before there's no choice but to take him to juvenile court.
"OUR LAST resort is to send a kid to court," he said. "When a kid gets in trouble here and comes to see me, as far as I'm concerned, that's the first time. He'll get a second chance from me and I'll do everything I can to help him."
Sometimes, he said, that will mean seeing the child's parents or referring the entire family to another agency such as Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling for counseling.
On a different level, Bottenhagen said he'll be doing some community-wide counseling, probably more properly called public relations work.
The police received a complaint Tuesday, the first day of school, that students were loitering during their lunch break in shops in the Buffalo Grove Mall, just across the street from the school.

"They really weren't doing anything wrong," Bottenhagen said. "We can't keep them from leaving the school premises on their lunch hour. Just because they were there doesn't mean trouble — they were just trying to kill 25 minutes."
Bottenhagen said the complaint points out that the community is going to have to change some of its ideas now that there is a high school in the village.
"COMMUNITY TOLERANCE for these kids is going to have to be built up," he said. "I believe in 99 per cent of the cases, the kids will try themselves to get along with the community. I doubt that there will be too many violations of the law, but of course you have those one or two who will do it."
All in all, Bottenhagen said he's looking forward to really getting involved in his job and he thinks in many ways it will be a rewarding one.
"If I get a kid who's anti-social and 15 years later he's a lawyer, for example — Wow. Or even if he just grows up to be a decent citizen who keeps his nose clean, I'll know I've done my job."

The private eye biz

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

If Mike Hammer, Joe Mannix or Sam Spade walked into the Apollo Detective Agency, 300 E. Industrial Ln., in Wheeling, chances are he wouldn't even be able to get a job.

For while fictional private eyes are fast-moving loners who skirt the edge of the law, quietly professional and law-abiding individuals are more the stuff of which real life detectives are made, according to Ed Kelly, manager of the agency.

If Mannix did try real-life detecting, he'd probably be disappointed. Although the glamorous and exciting jobs do crop up, detective agencies also handle a range of other jobs considerably less sensational, Kelly said.

The Apollo agency, which has been operating in Wheeling for six months, is just one of a number of detective agencies in the northwest suburbs. According to Kelly, the agency is a fairly typical one.

JUDGING FROM the variety of cases which it handles, the number of agencies in the area is justified.

"The agency is designed to handle every kind of security problem," Kelly said. Since security problems can range from civil, domestic, and criminal investigations to patrol and guard services, detective work can cover any of this.

Unglamorous as it may be, the bulk of the agencies work comes in the form of patrol and guard services. However, even these jobs are varied. Clients run from construction companies who want their sites guarded to the Chicago Art Institute which once hired the agency to guard around $75 million worth of paintings in transit to another museum. To handle the range of jobs, the agency offers armed and unarmed, uniformed and plain-clothes guards.

Maybe 30 per cent of the agency's work is investigative, Kelly said, and this also offers variety. The agency may investigate anything from runaway children to theft in discount and retail stores. Also included in the investigations category is one type of job which Kelly almost mentions with a wince.

THESE ARE investigations springing from marital difficulties.

"There is a stigma that goes along with being a private detective and that is that you spend all your time tracking down cheating husbands and wives," he said.

While the agency does accept such cases as a legitimate service, they only comprise maybe 10 per cent of the agency's jobs, he said. In addition, picture-taking in motel rooms is almost never done, since clients usually only wish to check up on their spouses's actions, Kelly said.

Finally, the agency also handles an assortment of other odd jobs which can run from administering polygraph tests for private companies to installing burglar alarms to checking for electronic bugging devices in industrial espionage cases.

WITH REGARD to the latter, Kelly says he has noticed an increase in public awareness of electronic eavesdropping since the advent of the Watergate affair.

However, he adds hastily, "all we do is electronic eavesdropping prevention," since bugging is illegal.

The Apollo agency staff is designed to handle the number and variety of cases the agency receives. The agency employs about 30 people as guards, investigators, alarm installers and in other capacities. However, detective agency employees also don't run to the television mold.

Although the average employee age is around 30, the agency employs a number of older people. Women also work as detectives, and Kelly says "they make very good undercover investigators, since people usually don't expect a woman to be a detective."

Unlike the traditional fictional private eye, the agency employees also are all specialists.

"EACH EMPLOYEE is so different from the other. We don't want an all-around man. We want experts in each field," Kelly said.

To get these "experts," the agency mostly draws upon people with experience in other branches of investigative or guard work. Typically, agency employees have had experience as policemen, government or military investigators, insurance investigators or as private detectives. Although all the agency employees need not have detective licenses, the agency is licensed by the state for private investigation and guard and patrol work.

Along with experience, the agency also must look for other qualities which mark the good detective. Besides a general observantness and objectivity, "a good investigator also has to be a salesman, a business-minded person, a compassionate person, and yet at the same time he has to be able to be somewhat impersonal. He can't get personally involved in all his cases," Kelly says.

Whether by design or by chance, all the agency employees also have a great respect for local police forces, Kelly says. Perhaps because of this, the relationship between the agency and the police is very good, he says.

"WE DON'T compete with the police. We like to be an outside arm for local police departments," he said.

Although Kelly demolishes the stereotype of the detective who constantly matches wits with the police while solving murder and espionage cases, he says the job is not without some excitement.

"It is routine in the respect that you're always dealing with security. But it's different because you often have to dig out information. Most of the time it's challenging and fun," he said.

Occasionally, more glamorous and exciting cases also develop, like kidnappings which the agency has been asked to investigate. However, Kelly is reluctant to discuss such cases in detail, for fear of violating client's confidentiality.

"I could sit here and describe a bunch of cases which would make us look real glamorous. But that wouldn't be fair to our clients. Any agency which would do that wouldn't be showing much respect for clients," he said.

With the glut of sensational detective stories on television and in print, a real-life detective has no need to perpetuate the exciting image. In fact, he can be content that it's only an image, Kelly indicates.

"If this work was like what you see on television, you'd be walking out of here talking to yourself every night," he said.

Future Fair turnout: disappointing

A total of 201,286 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go-round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

"Basically, we learned a lot of things. For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening

Park board aspirants interviewed tonight

Wheeling park commissioners tonight will interview candidates for the vacant seat on the board created by the resignation of former Board Pres. Gus Nizzi.

Applications for Nizzi's seat have been received from Frank Schnitzmann, 51 George Rd., John Bailey, 948 Wilshire Dr.; Gerald Wilson, 375 Park Ave.; Michael Welner, 34 E. Jeffery Ave., and Mrs. Dorothy Crane, 359 Walnut Ave.

The board will review the applications and interview candidates at 15-minute intervals beginning at 7 p.m. with the business meeting to follow.

Items on the agenda include discussion of the Heritage Park land survey, the swim team's possible use of Neptune's Pool, the development of the Neptune Pool Recreation Center and the purchase of a diving board.

An executive session to discuss land acquisition is scheduled at the end of the meeting.

Group to study school site

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 28 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5 1/2-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 28 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site—I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

gested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

"THERE IS one question that has remained unanswered since the beginning—is there really any benefit to building off the Maryville site?" Sheyker said.

Sheyker said the board should have involved citizens in the site selection sooner. His sentiments were echoed by several board members including Leora Rosen, Ted Waltenberg and Sylvia Lurie.

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA
A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded quarry—ignoring of nearby no trespassing signs.
He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "going out," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.
The friends are unable to find him, and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.
Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unpopulated areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers and young children.
Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.

THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 13-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.
Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.
In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.

AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.
Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.
The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.
Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming had not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.
"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."
He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."
Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.
The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.
Authorities claim the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.
Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.
Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."
He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.
In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rosier Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.
Lt. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rosier Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."
He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rosier Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."
"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.
He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Officials criticize each other

Elmhurst, Algonquin 'land grab' headed for court test

by STEVE BROWN
The latest in a long series of land grab battles between Des Plaines and Mount Prospect seems to be heading for a lengthy legal test.
The likelihood of another courtroom confrontation on the issue of annexation of unincorporated land increased when Mount Prospect officials instructed their attorney Tuesday to file objections to Des Plaines' petitions seeking to acquire land at the intersection of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads.
Officials of the two towns, who have frequently been annexation adversaries, have both criticized each other on planning and development matters.
This latest bout began last month, when Des Plaines adopted several ordinances seeking to claim several parcels of land at the intersection. The move must first be approved by the court before being completed.
MOUNT PROSPECT MAYOR Robert Teichert said yesterday that his village plans to use some of the same objections that Des Plaines has used in effort to block the city's annexation effort.
"If some things are terrible for us, then they are terrible for Des Plaines," Teichert added. A hearing on the annexation requests is scheduled before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillivuddy on Sept. 17.

If the judge approves the petitions a referendum must also be held in areas which Des Plaines proposes to annex, and voters must approve the annexation.
While Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel was reluctant to comment on the move by Mount Prospect, he did state, "the city is getting a little bit tired of Mr. Teichert and his predecessor deciding where our boundaries should be."
WHILE TEICHERT has claimed that Behrel has agreed to having Elmhurst Road as a dividing line between the towns, Behrel said, "That's a complete falsehood."
"Mr. Teichert did not discuss the boundary before he annexed the property north of Central Road, all the way east to River Road. They've annexed everything west of River Road so we cannot go north," Behrel said.
"Now they want to annex everything up to Elmhurst Road, so we cannot go west. That is fine for Mount Prospect, but I do not think it is good for Des Plaines," he added.
The two towns are still locked in another legal fight over land north of the present battle ground near Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street. They both contend that have legally annexed a 9 acre site. The land which was once used as a mushroom farm, is presently owned by Kenroy Inc. of Skokie. Kenroy has plans to build an apartment complex there. The legal action has been going on since 1968.

THE COMMUNITIES also fought over attempts to annex the United Airlines training center and adjacent commercial and industrial land.
In 1967, Mount Prospect attempted to annex property which would have surrounded the 70-acre United site, but Des Plaines and the airline filed suit in an attempt to block the action.
Des Plaines claimed that the effort represented strip annexation, which is illegal in Illinois. The law suit languished in the courts until April of this year, when Mount Prospect dropped its annexation plans.
Mount Prospect instead annexed a large multiple family housing development, known as The Colony, which will be built at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.
If Des Plaines is successful in its latest annexation effort, it will acquire several apartment buildings, several businesses and a 10-acre parcel of undeveloped land.
Mount Prospect officials are currently reviewing a zoning request from a shopping center developer, who has indicated an interest in annexing to the village. The undeveloped property being sought by Des Plaines is adjacent to that site.

Maryville opposition unswayed by talk

Nearly 200 persons turned out to hear the River Trails Dist. 26 school board explanation of the site selection for the new Maryville School.
The presentation, which lasted more than three hours Tuesday night, apparently failed to sway those opposed to the selection of the River Trails Junior High School site for the new facility.
Before Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said the board "moved perhaps more quickly than it should have," Demel said the board was forced to move at that speed because the school would take at least one year to build.
The River Road school in Des Plaines currently used by Maryville students has been ruled unsuitable and in violation of Illinois life-safety codes. The district was given until September, 1974, to improve or replace the school.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights), a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said he concurred with the board's decision on the Maryville site.
SCHLICKMAN SAID he agreed with the board's decision because it would save money while ensuring a quality facility for the children.
He also said the site would provide ample room for the school, especially in conjunction with adjacent park district land.
The school board could rescind previous actions and even schedule an advisory referendum," Schlickman said. "In the meantime, the state could shift its priorities and look to the needs of other districts. The committed money could disappear."

Father John Smyth, director of Maryville Academy, also said he favored the River Trails site because it would help give more Maryville students contact with the community.
Smyth said that earlier he had favored building the new facility on the grounds of Maryville Academy. He changed his mind, however, when he found that only Maryville Academy students would attend the school.
SCHOOL BOARD officials gave a short presentation on six sites considered for the school. They failed to go into enough detail to satisfy most of the people in the audience. Comparing the River Trails site to one on Maryville grounds, the board said the $1 million budgeted for the school would be diminished by use of land purchase and site development if the Maryville site was selected.
The board also said that if Maryville Academy were to close, a school built on the River Trails site could be used for possible expansion of the area across from Bond School or the relief of the

Patrolman wins city recognition

Des Plaines patrolman Daniel Carr was awarded a Departmental Commendation yesterday by Police Chief Arthur Hintz for his efforts to save a 61-year-old woman who drowned in Lake Opeka in Des Plaines last month.
According to reports, Carr dove into the lake to retrieve the woman, Dorothy Booth, of 2288 Westview Dr., in Des Plaines. Carr also administered first aid to the woman while waiting for a fire department ambulance.
The woman died several hours later in Holy Family Hospital and a Cook County coroner's jury ruled her death suicide a few days later.
Two witnesses told police they saw her walk off a pier near the lake's Howard Street entrance into about 12 feet of water.
The last such departmental award was given to then patrolman John Meese in July 1972. Meese was cited for attempting to rescue a Des Plaines girl, 13 who drowned after falling into a Metropolitan Sanitary District-owned lake in Des Plaines.

3,520 enrolled at Oakton College

More than 3,520 students have registered for classes at Oakton Community College for the fall term, according to John J. Gagin, director of admissions and records.
This is an increase of more than 550 students from the fall term of 1972. Official fall enrollment is expected to be higher than these totals because of additional late registrations.
About half of the students are registered for full-time programs, he said, repeating the pattern of last spring when half of the student body was enrolled as part-time students. A part-time student registers for less than 12 hours of academic credit.
Classes began Aug. 27. Gagin said that there is still time for students to register. After 5 p.m. tomorrow, registration will be closed for the fall term.

$2,300 in office goods stolen

More than $2,300 worth of office machinery was stolen over the Labor Day weekend by burglars who forced their way into six business suites in an office plaza at 900 Tenth Ave., Des Plaines police said yesterday.
Some $1,200 worth of the machinery, including electric calculators, dictating machines and typewriters, was stolen in one of the break-ins to offices of National Car Rental Co., according to reports.
Police said the same burglar was probably responsible for all of the burglaries.
Each of the office doors had been apparently forced open with the same pry tool, according to Det. George Neumann. Dead bolt locks on each of the doors of the burglarized offices had been left unlocked, he said.

Police who said there were no signs of forced entry to the main door of the plaza were uncertain how the burglars gained entry to the building.
THE BREAK-INS were discovered by employees as they reported to work Tuesday morning, according to reports. Neumann estimated the burglars had been inside the building at least an hour.
In one of the suites, housing offices of the Talmor Robbins Co., the burglars rifled a desk and stole $150 cash. Also taken from the office was an attaché case valued at $30.
A $100 calculator along with $150 in telephone answering equipment were taken from two other offices. Nothing was reported stolen from a sixth office which police said also had been broken into.

A news analysis
Building Commissioner Alfred Prickett, who has come under fire since the day after his 1971 appointment, has resigned his city post.
Mayor Herbert Behrel announced Tuesday night that he received Prickett's resignation Aug. 5. The letter stated Prickett plans to retire to Arizona after Jan. 1 and would like to leave no later than that date.
This is Prickett's second retirement from city government. Before his appointment as building commissioner, Prickett spent 18 years as a second ward alderman. He announced his retirement as alderman in December, 1970, a month after the resignation of former building commissioner Raymond Schuepfer.
In a surprise move in March, 1971, Behrel announced Prickett's appointment to the building post. The announcement drew little criticism from aldermen, who unanimously approved the appointment, but Prickett suddenly found himself a campaign issue in the 1971 elections.

Members of the Voters Independent Party, challenging Behrel's alleged "machine politics" stated they were "outraged that Prickett was hired over 26 other qualified applicants." Ald. George Olen (2nd), at that time a candidate for Prickett's vacated seat, called the appointment "phony, confusing and in bad taste." Critics pointed out Prickett would have to commute 120 miles a day from his Powers Lake, Wis. retirement home.
The tempest died down after the election but Prickett again came under attack when he sided with several aldermen and pushed for a moratorium on R-5, multi-family building.
Prickett told the Herald yesterday he was never happy with the way the R-5 districts were being built. "I wanted more greenery and all we were and are getting is a lot of brick and asphalt. I proposed many changes which would encourage builders to go higher, use greater setbacks and provide more greenery but the council never implemented any of it," he said.

Prickett has had periodic run-ins with aldermen and even his long-time friend, the mayor. His last five months have been the most difficult with new aldermen putting him on the hot seat at nearly every city council meeting. He has been criticized for not implementing a new swimming pool ordinance, for failing to crack down on substandard housing and for issuing building and occupancy permits against the wishes of the council.

After a month of sometimes stormy debate, the Des Plaines City Council awarded contracts for the $1.6 million city hall.

The six-story facility, which is the first phase of the city's planned civic center complex, was delayed last month after bids for the project came in $300,000 over original estimates.

Several aldermen argued that the cost was too high and the city should look for alternatives to the planned building. The final vote on the matter was 13 to 3 in favor of awarding the proposal. Aldermen Spencer Chase (3rd), Carmen Sarlo (8th) and Gerald Meyer (7th) voted against the action.

BOTH MEYER and Sarlo contended the city should build a new police station before constructing city offices. Meyer proposed last week that the city remodel the present city hall and not build a new building.

After Tuesday's vote, Chase said he opposed the city hall plans because he believes the police should have the top priority.

"I also feel that the cost of the new building is just too high," Chase added.

The city plans to start construction on a new two-story police facility as soon as the city hall building is completed.

The contracts for the project will be awarded to the Frederick Quim Construction Co., general contract, $1,149,473; William Adams Engineers, heating and air conditioning contract, $224,800; Ewing Plumbing Inc., plumbing contract, $96,300 and the Wigdahl Electric Co., electrical contract, $203,500.

THE COUNCIL approved the allocation of $2,000 to the National Organization to Insure a Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE).

The money, according to Ald. Irene Birchfield (5th), will be used to help fund an O'Hare area chapter for the group, which is working to develop guidelines aimed at reducing aircraft noise in the area.

The council also took under advisement the findings of a year-long study by the special Des Plaines Housing Commission.

'Rethinking' on garages

The concept of using multi-level garages to provide off street parking for downtown Des Plaines merchants will undergo some rethinking in the next two weeks.

Aldermen questioned the aesthetics and location of the proposed Ellinwood Street garage, to be built by the city to provide shopper parking for Superblock, at the council meeting Tuesday night.

A proposal to spend $12,000 for a study of the Ellinwood garage was deferred at the request of Ald. George Olen (2nd). The study, which would be undertaken by the H. W. Lochner engineering firm, was presented by Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st).

Olen said the proposal needs more study and that possibly the city should look at other sites for the parking facility.

"I FEEL THAT Park Place would be an ideal location for such a facility," Olen observed.

Olen's remarks were echoed by Ald. Charles Bolek (3rd), Ald. Carmen Sarlo (8th) and Ald. Richard Ward (8th).

"I am not sure that a multi-level parking garage would be an attractive addition to our downtown," Ward said.

Bolek questioned the engineering firm's background in designing parking facilities. Szabo noted that the firm is currently building a parking garage in Downers Grove and has several projects on the East Coast.

OTHER ALDERMEN noted that authorization of the study was in line with the recommendations of a 1971 study outlining the off-street parking needs for downtown Des Plaines. The earlier report, which was also prepared by the Lochner firm, was adopted by the city council.

"We have already had all the studies over sites. Remember the 1971 report? This is just the implementation of that report which cost about $25,000," Mayor Herbert Behrel said.

Ald. Robert Hinde (4th) also said he was in favor of the parking garages, noting that the city had agreed to provide parking for downtown redevelopment.

BEHREL CONTENDED that Olen's suggestion of locating the garage on Park Place, which is on the north side of the downtown area, would not encourage shoppers to come to commercial and retail establishments on the south side of the railroad tracks.

"We are trying to develop parking where the people do not have to walk a long distance to shop. We want to attract people downtown and away from Woodfield and Randhurst," he added.

Several aldermen contended that there is no need for having the parking immediately adjacent to the shopping area.

ALD GERALD MEYER (7th) also commented that a survey of residents in the three city wards showed the majority of the respondents opposed construction of the garage in the downtown area.

"I want to remind the council that these people are opposed to the parking facility," Meyer said. The survey which was compiled in July also showed that many of the 419 families answering the poll opposed the redevelopment.

The proposal for the Lochner study will be reviewed by the city's building, grounds and parking lot committee on Sept. 13.

This new study would develop detailed cost analysis for the proposed garage and provide the city with recommendations for funding the project.

The 1971 Lochner report recommended the 1,175 parking spaces be developed multiple phase program over the next three to four years.

Feenhanville area. WHILE SCHOOL officials discussed everything from the type of students living at Maryville to educational philosophies of the district, audience members continued to ask for a more detailed explanation of the site selection.

"The citizenry shares with Father Smyth the concern with the Maryville children. We want them to have the best education possible," one man said.

"The question pure and simple is to the choice of the site. That's it and that's it only."

as "very difficult."

"I never intended to work for the city or anyone else after I retired," he said. "I took the job because I thought I could do some good for the city of Des Plaines."

He said the mayor has known since before the April election that he wanted to retire before the end of the year.

"I don't know how to comment on the criticism of the aldermen," he said. "It's a trying thing to be a new alderman. I don't want to be critical of them. Rightfully or wrongfully they bring to the council floor the little gripes they might have. It's all part of growing up to be an alderman."

Prickett looks back over his last three years and points to his successes. "I was surprised when I took this job that a lot of our ordinances were not being implemented. The biggest thing I did was requiring builders to take out a surety bond when they applied for a building permit."

Prickett will leave his post with some unfinished business. "I'm not happy with the zoning of the city . . . the way it's jumping around . . . you can call it spot zoning. There's no reason why every four corners of two fairly wide streets should be commercial. Our zoning has been brought about without sufficient care by the city."

Despite the problems, Prickett's resignation was formally accepted by the mayor Tuesday night with a pat on the back.

"He has done a good job," Behrel told the aldermen. "I feel he has straightened out the department which is what he was hired to do. He was well respected by developers and the building trades as a man who knew what he was doing."

Group to study school site

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 26 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5 1/2-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 26 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site — I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

Board member Mike Sheyker, who voted against the River Trails site, suggested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

"THERE IS one question that has remained unanswered since the beginning — is there really any benefit to building off the Maryville site?" Sheyker said.

Sheyker said the board should have involved citizens in the site selection sooner. His sentiments were echoed by several board members including Laura Rosen, Ted Wattenberg and Sylvia Lurie.

"I like the idea of a citizens' committee," Mrs. Lurie said. "If the people go over the same stuff, I'm sure they'll wind up with the same conclusions."

Schools to hike lunch, milk prices

Due to rising prices, East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 is increasing both the cost of milk and lunches, according to business manager James Bowen.

The school board Tuesday approved an increase of one cent for milk and 10 cents for Type A hot lunches. Milk now costs eight cents and Type A lunches are 55 cents.

For adults, Type A lunches will cost 70 cents, an increase of 15 cents. Bowen said the increased prices will not give the school district a profit from the lunch program, but might keep the district from losing money.

Pool use months in future

by BOB GALLAS

Students at Lively and Dempster junior high schools won't be able to use the swimming pools at their schools for about another three months.

According to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent of administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59, the pools have failed to pass Illinois Life Safety Code requirements.

Perry, speaking at Tuesday night's meeting of the Dist. 59 school board, told board members the failure to pass was due to an oversight by the firm doing the engineering work on the pool. He said required mechanical engineering for boilers and pool heaters was overlooked.

Correcting the problem, according to Perry, will take from one to three months by the time bids on the project are approved and construction is completed.

THE POOLS were ordered closed last December to Dist. 59 physical education classes until Illinois Life Safety Codes were met. The pools continued to be used by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts, which were not affected by the ruling. The life safety codes apply only to school districts.

Both pools meet the county health department requirements and the park districts conduct regular swim programs there.

The school board met Tuesday night at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village in the first of this school year's "on-the-road" sessions, which are at district schools on the first Monday of each month. This session was on Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday.

The board agreed at the meeting to delay formal dedication for the district's new school, Friendship Junior High in Des Plaines. Plans called for formal ceremonies in early November.

THE CEREMONIES would have been in the school's gym, which isn't finished yet. There is a disagreement between the building's contractor and the subcontractor laying the gym floor on whether the concrete base is level, according to Perry.

When work is started, according to Perry, the job usually takes six to seven weeks.

Plans now call for dedication ceremonies at the school to take place in early spring of next year. Board member Emil Bahnmaler jokingly suggested another date for the dedication of the school, which has been plagued by numerous problems and construction delays. Bahnmaler suggested the school be dedicated on April 1, "April Fools Day."

In other action, the board: Approved the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer services budget for the '73-'74 year in the amount of $549,574. The budget has increased by $17,244 which will cover the cost of a study of the service. The district's share, about $39,000, will not increase because of the additional cost.

Oakton wants voice on proposed college

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Trustees of Oakton Community College plan to give the state their views on a proposed North Shore college in a letter to the Illinois Junior College board this month.

The Oakton board of trustees Tuesday night agreed to submit a list of "points for consideration" to state board members to aid them in deciding the fate of a college for North Shore communities. The state is required by law to assign communities on the North Shore to a college district or form a new college for the area in January.

Oakton board chairman Paul Gilson said the trustees want the state to know how they feel the college will be affected by the formation of a North Shore college or annexation of the North Shore to Oakton's district. He said he will neither advocate nor reject annexation in the letter to the state but will present Oakton's viewpoint "without taking any position."

GILSON SAID Oakton trustees don't believe the state is fully aware of the effect annexation would have on Oakton's academic programs and the college's search for a permanent campus site. He said the college would have to revise its curriculum to meet the needs of North Shore students. Annexation could also affect the location of a campus site in the present district and could open up additional sites on the North Shore.

Oakton's decision to submit a letter to the state is the result of a meeting with the executive secretary of the state board, Fred Wellman, last week. In two hours of discussion Oakton board members learned from Wellman that the state would approve a site for Oakton's campus this fall but may require the college to build a second campus if the North Shore becomes part of Oakton's district next year.

Gilson complained to Wellman that Oakton has not been asked its opinion on annexation of the North Shore and questioned whether the state would approve funds for another campus for Oakton or a first campus for a North Shore college.

ACCORDING TO the law Oakton does not have a legal right to refuse or advocate annexation of the North Shore, but Wellman told board members that their views would be considered informally by the state board staff when it assigns the North Shore to a college district.

Gilson said Oakton board members have not agreed on specific viewpoints that will be contained in the letter to the state. Each board member will bring his ideas to the Sept. 18 board meeting and the board will try to arrive at a consensus, he said.

College officials have been searching for land for a permanent campus for about three years but have been unable to enlist community and board support for a site in the district. The college has delayed selection of a site for several months hoping communities on the North Shore would annex to Oakton so the college could build the campus there. Last month Oakton officials ended all site studies on the North Shore and recommended studies of three sites in the district.

THE COLLEGE board of trustees plans to approve one of the sites this fall and submit it to the Illinois Junior College board for approval. Two of the sites are located in the northwest corner of the college district and are owned by the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese which has offered the land for sale. The third is the site of the college's temporary campus, 7900 N. Nagle Ave., Morton Grove, which the college now leases from owners who have refused to sell the land.

Two additional sites may become available to the college this fall. A 180-acre site owned by the Zenith Radio Corp. located just outside the district, may become available to Oakton if a law is passed by the Illinois General Assembly this fall allowing the college to annex the land. Tuesday the Oakton board agreed to ask state legislators to introduce the law in October. Oakton made the same request last June but legislators said they did not have time to introduce the law before the legislative session ended June 30.

THE TAM O'SHANTER Golf Course in Niles could also become available to the college if voters reject a November referendum by the Niles Park District to purchase the property. The park district now leases the course and the lease states that another local government body may take an option on the land if its referendum is not approved.

The course, about 37 acres, is located west of Caldwell Avenue about one-eighth mile from Oakton's temporary campus. Gilson said yesterday the property would be "a natural complement to our existing site but we don't have any claim on it." He said the site was one of more than 20 sites considered by the college three years ago and selection of the site for a permanent campus remains "a remote possibility."

Village prepares for legal battle with Arlington Heights

by FRED GACA

Elk Grove Village is preparing for a possible legal battle against Arlington Heights over the proposed annexation of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

The Elk Grove Village board directed its attorney, Edward Hofert, to review the annexation proposed by Arlington Heights to determine what legal grounds Elk Grove may have to fight the move. Hofert is to report back to the board at the Sept. 11 meeting.

"We have to force them (Arlington Heights) to honor the boundary agreement," said Trustee Edward Kenna, the most vocal board member critical of the annexation.

Kenna, at Tuesday's board meeting, called for a resolution asking the Northwest Municipal Conference to censure Arlington Heights for considering the annexation.

TRUSTEE GEORGE SPEES called for a resolution asking the Cook County Council of Governments to also censure Arlington Heights.

Neither resolution came to a vote. Village President Charles Zettek spoke against any censure of Arlington Heights before the convention center site was actually annexed by Arlington Heights.

"I don't get excited about throwing stones at people you want to shake hands with," said Zettek.

"I'm not sure their hand is out to us," Spees said.

"We're burying our heads in the sand to ignore their (Arlington Heights) action," Kenna added.

Hofert advised the board not to be premature in any action. He said Elk Grove should wait until Arlington Heights has taken action instead of "jumping to conclusions."

THE POSSIBLE legal battle stems from the expected annexation by Arlington Heights of 65 acres south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road. The unincorporated land is now owned by Charles Klehm and he wants it to become part of Arlington Heights.

The site would be developed into a convention center with a possible later development of an apartment complex.

Elk Grove Village is arguing that the tollway has long been considered by Elk Grove and Arlington Heights as the common boundary between the villages. No binding legal document has ever been signed by the two villages, however, accepting the tollway as the boundary.

To annex the property, Arlington Heights must annex a portion of the tollway to get contiguous boundaries. The state tollway commission has already granted permission to Arlington Heights to annex that portion of the road.

AS PART of the possible legal fights, Hofert has been asked to consider action against the tollway commission for allowing the Arlington Heights annexation without notifying Elk Grove Village.

The Arlington Heights plan commission recommended approval of the convention site annexation several weeks ago by an 8-2 vote. The two dissenting members voted against the annexation because they felt it would violate the understanding between Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis appeared at the plan commission hearing to offer argument for honoring the boundary.

Trial period contract approved

'Dial-a-ride' bus coming

Elk Grove Village should have a "dial-a-ride" bus and a commuter shuttle service by mid-October, according to Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, chairman of the transportation committee.

At Tuesday's Village Board of Trustees meeting, approval was given for the village to contract with the Davidsmeyer Bus Service, Inc., to provide the buses.

The bus service will be run for a four-to-six-month trial period. The village will then evaluate the service to determine if it should be continued.

THE BOARD, after approving the contract, directed the village staff to work out the details of the bus service with Davidsmeyer. Mrs. Vanderweel said once arrangements are made, a mailing will be sent to all residents, explaining the service.

The village will pay 45 cents per mile and $1.50 per hour for the dial-a-bus. The larger commuter bus will cost 50 cents per mile and $4.50 per hour.

Residents will be charged 25 cents per ride on the dial-a-bus. The commuter bus will cost 75 cents per day for a round trip from a central pick-up point to either the Arlington Heights or Wood Dale train stations.

Commuter service will only be available on a monthly subscription basis, with tickets sold on a "first come first serve" basis.

THE DIAL-A-BUS would be a 14-16 passenger mini-bus, tentatively scheduled to operate from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Rides would be available anywhere within the village limits.

With the dial-a-ride, a person will call a designated number and request a bus pick up at their home or any other location in the village. When not on a call, the dial-a-bus may drive a route through the village. A person could "flag" the bus at any point and get on.

The commuter shuttle, a 52-passenger school bus, is tentatively planned to operate 6 to 8 a.m. and 5 to 7 p.m. between the village and the train stations.

Exact time schedules and routes would have to be arranged by the village staff and Davidsmeyer.

Pool use months in future

by BOB GALLAS

Students at Lively and Dempster Junior high schools won't be able to use the swimming pools at their schools for about another three months.

According to Arthur Perry, assistant superintendent of administration of Elk Grove Township School Dist. 50, the pools have failed to pass Illinois Life Safety Code requirements.

Perry, speaking at Tuesday night's meeting of the Dist. 50 school board, told board members the failure to pass was due to an oversight by the firm doing the engineering work on the pool. He said required mechanical engineering for boilers and pool heaters was overlooked.

Correcting the problem, according to Perry, will take from one to three months by the time bids on the project are approved and construction is completed.

THE POOLS were ordered closed last December to Dist. 50 physical education classes until Illinois Life Safety Codes were met. The pools continued to be used by the Mount Prospect and Elk Grove park districts, which were not affected by the ruling. The life safety codes apply only to school districts.

Both pools meet the county health department requirements and the park districts conduct regular swim programs there.

The school board met Tuesday night at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village in the first of this school year's "on-the-road" sessions, which are at district schools on the first Monday of each month. This session was on Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday.

The board agreed at the meeting to delay formal dedication for the district's new school, Friendship Junior High in Des Plaines, until early November.

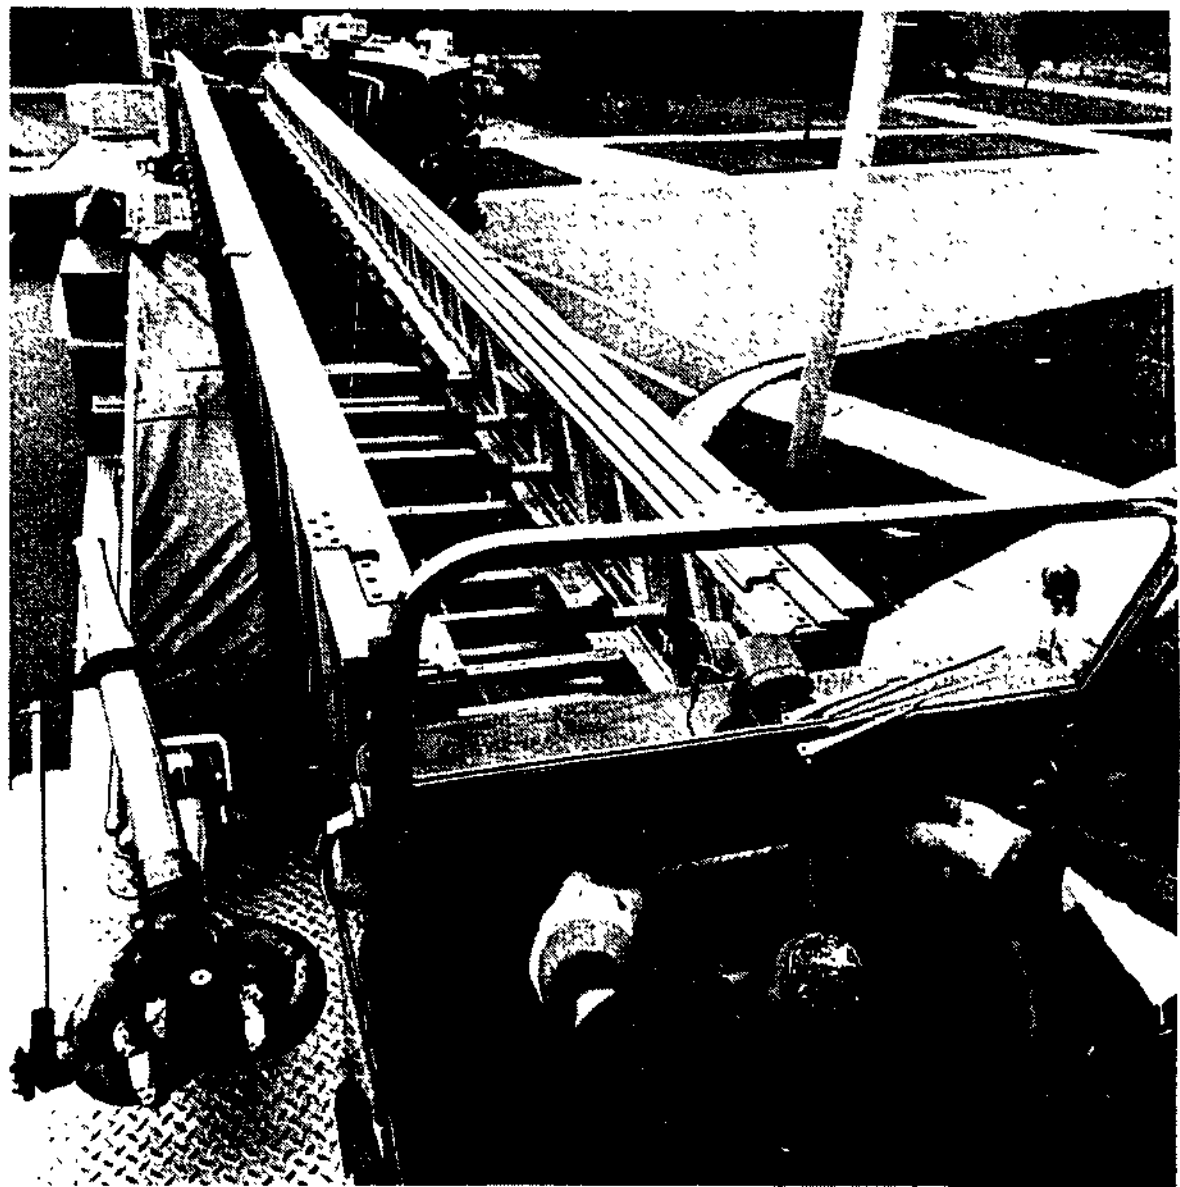

THE CEREMONIES would have been in the school's gym, which isn't finished yet. There is a disagreement between the building's contractor and the subcontractor laying the gym floor on whether the concrete base is level, according to Perry.

When work is started, according to Perry, the job usually takes six to seven weeks.

Plans now call for dedication ceremonies at the school to take place in early spring of next year. Board member Emil Bahnmaler jokingly suggested another date for the dedication of the school, which has been plagued by numerous problems and construction delays. Bahnmaler suggested the school be dedicated on April 1, "April Fools Day."

In other action, the board:

Approved the Northwest Educational Cooperative computer services budget for the '73-'74 year in the amount of $549,574. The budget has increased by $17,244 which will cover the cost of a study of the service. The district's share, about $30,000, will not increase because of the additional cost.

FIFTY-FOUR FEET FROM the front of the hook and ladder, the tillerman of the Elk Grove Village fire department does his job of steering the back of the rig around the tight corners on village streets.

A real big wheel!

Tillerman last to arrive but reaches the heights

by FRED GACA

Only one fireman — the tillerman — worries about getting a mouthful of tree limb when responding to a call.

Only one fireman — the tillerman — gets to a fire later and higher than any other man — about 54 feet later and eight feet higher.

The tillerman is the fireman who sits at the end of the hook and ladder, guiding the back of the trailer with a second steering wheel. On a call, a tillerman must keep the end of the trailer in line with the cab. If he is doing his job properly, the back wheels of the trailer will follow the exact tracks made by the wheels of the cab.

Having the second steering wheel at the back of the trailer adds tremendous maneuverability to the 54-foot long rig, maneuverability that is especially important in Elk Grove Village cul de sacs and curved residential roads. With the second steering wheel, the hook and ladder can travel faster and get in closer than a semi-trailer truck could ever hope to do.

Elk Grove Village Fire Department has three men assigned to tiller duty on its hook-and-ladder, or "truck" as it is called by the department. Each of them — David McCulla, Joe Gardner and Robert Herrmann — likes his job, thinks it is the best in the department and would not trade places with anyone.

OPERATING A hook-and-ladder requires close teamwork between the man at the tiller and the driver in the cab. A tillerman has only the steering wheel to use. He has no brakes and no radio to communicate with the driver.

A horn system is set up between the cab and the tiller for limited communication. One beep means stop, two beeps mean go forward and three beeps means back up.

"If you can tell a man what you want to do with that arrangement, you're in good shape, but you're really limited in what you can do," said Herrmann.

Some of the tillermen have worked out more signals with their drivers. Gardner and his driver, Robert Falk, have a series of hand signals. As Falk gets more information over the radio in the cab, he signals Gardner on what to expect.

Even without any signals, the tillerman can tell from the way the man in the cab is driving if the truck is needed at a call. If the driver speeds up and keeps the lights and siren on, the tillerman knows the truck is going to continue to the site of the call.

The hook and ladder does not go all the way to the site on many calls. Often a radio message will be received telling them to return to quarters because equipment on the scene can handle the situation.

At a fire scene, the hook-and-ladder crew has four jobs to do: saving anyone trapped by the fire; trying to save property from fire, smoke or water damage; opening windows and breaking holes to release smoke and hot gases; and inspecting the scene after the fire is struck to make sure no smoldering material remains.

The truck company also works in the cleanup after the fire is out.

If the situation at the fire requires the use of the 100-foot aerial ladder, the tillerman is expected to be the first man up the ladder.

THE HOOK AND ladder is jammed with special equipment to enable the men to perform their various jobs. The crew is trained to use the power saws, air chisels, hydraulic jacks and other tools stored in the many compartments on the trailer.

Each day, when the new duty shift starts, the tillerman inspects all the equipment on the rig.

The variety of jobs done by the truck crew is one of the reasons the tillermen like their job. "If you want action, the truck is the place to be," said McCulla.

"I like the physical work." Another reason the men like the tiller is the "glamor" of the job. "You're the kids' hero. They all wave to you and ask to go for a ride," said Herrmann.

"You're Mr. Fireman," is the way McCulla describes the reaction of most people to the tillerman.

The men all said the job was an easy one to learn, but it requires experience to become skilled at handling the tiller. The major difference between driving a car and steering the tiller comes when the truck has to make a sharp turn. If the cab turns right, the tillerman must first turn left to bring the trailer out around the curve and then turn right to follow the cab. If the tiller was not "counter-steered," the trailer would cut across the curb, possibly hitting a tree, pole or even a fire hydrant.

The tiller does have special hazards, such as the risk of getting hit by an overhanging tree limb or getting bounced out of your seat whenever the truck goes over railroad tracks.

BAD WEATHER is also something no tillerman enjoys. "You don't stay dry and you don't stay warm," said Herrmann.

Gardner, however, said Elk Grove's hook and ladder offers more protection for the tillerman than the rig he operated for the Berwyn Fire Department. He said Elk Grove's unit has a small cab for the tillerman. In Berwyn, he was sitting without any protection.

Gardner is the only Elk Grove tillerman to have worked with another fire department. McCulla and Herrmann started as firemen with Elk Grove Village.

One depressing part of the job is that tillermen are becoming an extinct breed. Hook-and-ladders are becoming rare in fire departments, especially in suburban areas. They are being replaced by "straight jobs," ladder trucks that are one-piece units, not cab and trailer like a hook and ladder. The straight jobs are cheaper and municipalities like them because they don't require a tillerman, which reduces the manpower expense.

The tillermen of Elk Grove, however, don't like the idea of hook-and-ladders being replaced. They said the trucks are more maneuverable than a straight job and the extra manpower needed for the tillerman is also needed at the fire scene. The hook and ladder provides a way for getting more men to the fire.

For Herrmann, the end of the tillerman would also be the end of a family tradition. His father was a tillerman for 25 years with the Chicago Fire Department.

Jammed agenda for planners

Elk Grove Village plan commission will have a jammed agenda for its meeting tonight.

The Phoenix Construction Co. condominium plan, the Devon-53 housing project, a meeting with the village Zoning, Planning and Judicial (ZPJ) Committee and swearing in a "new" member are scheduled.

The "new" member is Richard McGreener, former village clerk and a former member of the plan commission. He was appointed to the commission at Tuesday's village board meeting.

McGreener replaces Charles Siewert, who resigned recently.

McGREENER was a candidate for village president in April, but withdrew from the race before the election.

The commission meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave., with the public hearing on the Phoenix Construction Co. condominium apartment plan.

The company wants to build a five-story, 62-unit condominium at the intersection of Ridge Avenue and Elk Grove Boulevard in the open area adjoining Terrace Apartment complex.

After the public hearing, the commission will meet with the ZPJ committee. The meeting is expected to cover changes in the techniques for reviewing and approving developments in the village.

AS THE LAST item, the commission will work on its recommendation for the Devon-53 housing project. The commission has spent several months reviewing the information presented at public hearings in May and June on the 267-acre, 13,000-population project.

William Shannon, chairman of the commission, said the members will work on drafting their recommendation. The recommendation would then be reviewed by consultants hired by the commission to study the project. The final recommendation is tentatively scheduled to be approved at the Sept. 20 meeting.

The recommendation would then be sent to the village board for final action on the developers' request to annex the proposed project.

by STIRLING MORITA

A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.

He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "going off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.

The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.

Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.

Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.

THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakis Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.

Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.

In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.

AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.

Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Ela Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.

The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.

Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming had not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.

"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."

He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."

Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.

The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.

Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.

Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.

Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."

He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.

In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossiter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.

LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossiter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."

He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossiter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."

"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.

He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Future of America Fair crowds disappointing

A total of 201,286 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

"Basically, we learned a lot of things. For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening crowd that stayed late," he said.

The breakdown on attendance was 46,012 adult advance tickets; 2,334 advance children's tickets; 98,865 adult gate admissions; 24,522 children gate admissions; 27,459 season books for exhibitors and concessionaires; and 2,094 dinner package tickets.

ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here.

Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo.

The most successful aspect of the fair this year was the nightly grandstand shows, followed by the indoor exhibits and then the livestock entries, he said.

In addition to a financial analysis of this year's fair, the as yet undetermined horse racing dates awarded to Arlington Park next year will have a bearing on whether another Future of America Fair will be scheduled, he said.

Revenue funds allocation approved by township board

Plans for the allocation of revenue sharing funds were officially approved at Tuesday night's meeting of the Elk Grove Township Board.

The township will receive $306,948 in federal revenue sharing funds through next June. An amendment to the Town Fund budget was also made at the meeting so part of the funds may be spent during the township's current fiscal year, which runs through February, 1974.

The town fund was amended to add $108,000 in revenue sharing funds.

Final action on the allocation of the funds will come following a public hearing Oct. 18. The township board will meet immediately following the hearing to take into consideration changes suggested at the meeting and possibly make changes in the allocations.

THE LARGEST part of the revenue sharing funds will be spent in the area of flood control and sewers, for which $100,000 was allocated. About 35 per cent of that figure should go for flood control, according to Richard Hall, township supervisor.

Hall said flood control surveys have already begun in one problem area, an unincorporated section in the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and Central Road.

Other major expenditures include $70,000 for services to the senior citizens and for welfare. Some of the money will also be used to establish a day care center. A senior citizens newsletter is nearing completion, according to Hall, and should be mailed out sometime this month.

Almost $27,000 will be used for remodeling of the Highway Commissioner's office and to purchase storage bins for salt and gravel, according to Hall. Another $10,000 was allocated for the purchase of office equipment for the township. Hall said the purchases will include typewriters, a calculator, an addressograph machine and a new copying machine.

Library patrons expect more than a book

More than a good book is expected from the Schaumburg Township Public Library.

People want to hear speakers on subjects as varied as consumer needs, gourmet cooking, crafts and gardening a recent survey indicated. They also want to participate in book review groups.

Patricia Hogan, head of the public services department, said speakers from government agencies have been scheduled for January and February. "We also hope to begin language and crafts classes this fall."

"We need a gourmet cook to volunteer for our cooking classes and are searching the neighborhood for one now," she added.

The library fall film festival will begin with showings of classics such as "Topper." A complete listing and time schedule will appear in the library quarterly newsletter, Browning.

Foreign language films that range in subject matter from satire to social commentary with the works of the little-known interspersed with classics by Lang and Bunuel are being shown from 4 to 5 p.m. on Wednesdays.

The shorts and feature length films in various languages including Russian, French and Spanish are shown in the large meeting room of the library. Additional information, including specific titles, may be obtained by calling the information desk at the library.

Truck hits electrical wires, driver unhurt

A man escaped injury when the truck he was driving came in contact with live electrical wires at 2382 United Lane yesterday.

According to the Elk Grove Village fire department, an electrical service box was struck by a crane, causing the wires to fall on a truck driven by David Connery. Firemen told Connery to remain in the truck.

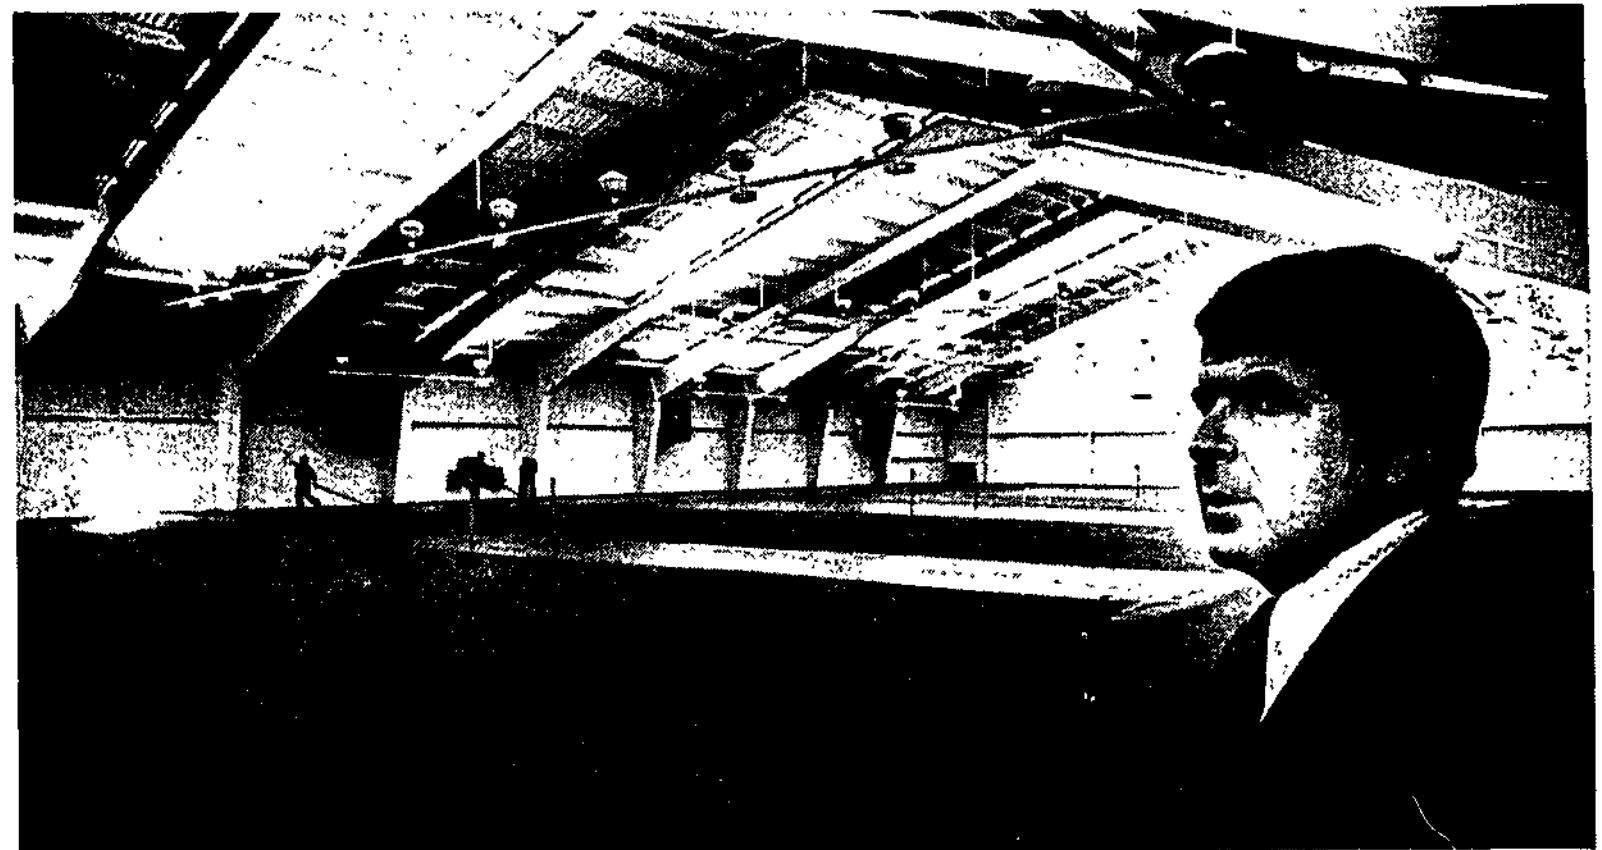

Commonwealth Edison repairmen turned off the power and removed the wires.

$234 in lumber taken from site

Lumber valued at $234 was taken last week from a construction site near Mitchell and Von Braun trails in the Winston-Centex housing project west of Rohlwing Road.

According to Elk Grove Village police, 36 sheets of plywood were stolen some time between Aug. 23 and Aug. 29, but the theft was not reported until Aug. 30.

The plywood was stored in a wire-bound bundle that had been broken open.

LOU HANDLER, MANAGING partner of the soon-to-be-opened Elk Grove Tennis Club takes a look at part of the new facility while workmen put the final touches on the court surfaces. The club is scheduled to open Sept. 10. Grand opening activities are set for Sept. 23 and 24.

'Citizens group' to study Maryville School site

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 28 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5½-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 28 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site — I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

Board member Mike Sheyker, who voted against the River Trails site, suggested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

"THERE IS one question that has remained unanswered since the beginning — Is there really any benefit to building off the Maryville site?" Sheyker said.

Sheyker said the board should have involved citizens in the site selection sooner. His sentiments were echoed by several board members including Leora Rosen, Ted Wattenberg and Sylvia Lurie.

Schlickman, along with several school officials, urged speedy action on selection of the site.

"What if there is a life-killing fire or an explosion at Maryville? God only knows what will happen in the future," Schlickman said.

Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.
In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Okech.
AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.
Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.
The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.
Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.
"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."
He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."
Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.
The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.
Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.
Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.
Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."
He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.
In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Roselle Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.
LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Roselle Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."
He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Roselle Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."
"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.
He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Teachers nurse 'hard feelings' on salary freeze

A decision by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education to freeze teacher salaries at last year's level until a new teacher contract is ratified has "caused a lot of hard feelings with the teachers," according to the leader of the teachers' contract negotiating team.
George Yingst, head of the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC), negotiating team, said yesterday teachers are "very upset" about the board's decision not to include normal "experience" salary increases on the teachers' first paychecks to be distributed tomorrow.
The board voted unanimously Aug. 8 to freeze teacher pay at last year's level pending agreement on a 1973-74 teacher contract. Negotiations between the board and the CTC have not been held since May 30. Yingst said negotiations may resume soon, after the teachers review the district's audit, which they expect to be released Monday.
TEACHERS IN the district began school Tuesday without a contract.
The raise the teachers would have received on tomorrow's paycheck is normally given every year for the increase in experience, Yingst said. He said the increase has been given in each of the last 14 years of his tenure in the district.
"This year the board saw fit not to give any increases either for the cost of living or for experience," Yingst said. "The teachers are very upset about it and we have contacted an attorney for legal counsel on this."

Yingst said teachers are not now considering a strike, but he added the atmosphere for negotiating at the start of school "would have been better" had the board not decided to freeze wages.
He added, however, that once negotiations resume, a strike may be considered if an early settlement is not reached.
"We were the ones that called off the last negotiations session because we wanted to investigate the district financial situation (the audit), so the start of school was not a crisis situation as in some other districts. But once we get the audit and resume negotiations, I'm afraid a deadline (for a settlement) would have to be set," Yingst said.
District officials in the meantime have indicated they do not anticipate a strike. "Negotiations have been conducted in good faith to this point and we have no reason to fear any problems," Supt. Frank C. Whiteley said yesterday.
Whiteley said the district's audit has just been completed and "should be forthcoming." He said negotiations would probably resume shortly after the CTC receives copies of the audit.
THE BOARD'S NEGOTIATIONS committee will meet tonight, but Whiteley declined to comment on what the committee will discuss.

Teacher contract negotiations in the district began May 8 but came to a halt May 30 after only four sessions. Salaries are apparently the major point of discussion, with the CTC requesting an increase of $738,000 in the salary schedule.
The sum is about $199,000 more than had been planned by the board.
Salaries for beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree were set last year at $7,730. Top salaries for experienced teachers ranged from $12,567 for a bachelor's degree to $14,937 for a master's degree and 30 additional semester hours.
Agreement between the board and teachers on last year's contract came in June, but the two previous years settlements were not reached until several days before school began.

Victim of Tuesday car-cycle crash dies

Patricia Mezzano, 21, died yesterday afternoon of injuries she suffered in a car-motorcycle accident Tuesday evening in Arlington Heights.
Miss Mezzano, of 1616 Willow Rd., Mount Prospect, was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Joseph Eschenbrenner, 29, of 4728 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows.
Eschenbrenner is listed in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital where he and Miss Mezzano were taken by fire department ambulance.

Future Fair crowds: disappointing

A total of 201,266 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.
"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.
Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.
WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.
It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.
Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.
Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here.
Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo.
The most successful aspect of the fair this year was the nightly grandstand shows, followed by the indoor exhibits and then the livestock entries, he said.

Schaumburg man hurt in cycle accident

A Schaumburg man was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital last night following a motorcycle accident at 3:50 p.m. yesterday at 1750 S. Roselle Rd., near the High School Dist. 211 administration building.
Paul Pankros, of 11 Dennis Court, Schaumburg, was riding his motorcycle following a line of autos northbound on Roselle Road when the accident occurred.

Flees in auto, on foot

Youth caught after chase

by TONI GINETTI

A 17-year-old Barrington youth yesterday led police from five departments on a high speed auto chase through Rolling Meadows and then eluded police in a foot chase through four blocks of the city before he was finally apprehended.

The youth, Harold C. Whitten of 530 Shorely, Barrington, was apprehended by Rolling Meadows Officers Roger Hamann and Bruce Murphy on the 2300 block of Bluebird Lane after a 30-minute auto chase through the city which reached speeds of 90 m.p.h., police said.

Whitten apparently stole the vehicle with the key in the ignition at a laundrette in Barrington at about 12:30 p.m. yesterday, police said. The auto, a 1968 Javelin, is owned by Mrs. Barbara B. Klass, 21 E. Barrington Rd., Barrington.

THE YOUTH was spotted by Rolling Meadows Officer Douglas Larsson as the youth sped westbound on Campbell Street through the intersection at Campbell and Wilke Road. Whitten was clocked by police radar as traveling at 90 m.p.h. when Larsson began the chase.

Whitten led police southbound on Wilke, westbound on Kirchoff Road, northbound on Meadow Drive north to Fremont Street, and then southbound to the 2400 block of Bluebird Lane where he left the car and fled on foot.

Police said Whitten drove through stop signs and traffic lights during the chase and drove around a partial road block that was set up at Kirchoff and Meadow. He narrowly avoided striking several children at the intersection of School and Meadow Drives who were returning to school, according to Rolling Meadows Police Sgt. Timothy Lonergan. Lonergan said a woman pulled the children from the street when Whitten's vehicle sped past.

ELEVEN ROLLING Meadows policemen pursued Whitten on foot within a four-block area north of Bluebird Lane. Police Chief Lewis R. Case said squad cars from Palatine, Arlington Heights, Cook County Sheriff's Police, and the State Police as well as city public works vehicles in the area assisted in cordoning off a four-block radius around Bluebird Lane.

The youth was carrying a Minnesota drivers license and told police he has lived in Barrington only about six months.

Whitten will be arraigned today in Arlington Heights Circuit Court on charges of possession of stolen property, reckless conduct, eluding a police officer, and at least 14 traffic offenses.

Bond and a court date will be set during the arraignment.

Parents of Palatine Hills students want new walkways

Parents of students at Palatine Hills Junior High School have contacted local officials in an effort to get walkways installed near the school.

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board of education denied the parents' request for free bus transportation to the school and now the parents are busy trying to improve the walking conditions along Smith Street to the school.

Mrs. Shirley Munson of 639 N. Benton has written a letter to Hugo Stark, Cook County Superintendent of Highways. In the letter she explains the lack of walkways for the 354 students within 1 1/2 miles of the school who must walk or pay $30 a year for bus transportation.

She sets forth two possible ways the county could help the parents; first, by widening the shoulder along Smith Street and, second, by allowing the Palatine Park District to use part of the county's right of way on Smith Street to extend its bike path to the school. Supt. Frank Whiteley signed the letter and also sent a separate letter to Stark.

Mrs. Munson and Sue Braun of 304 N. Schiller have also contacted James Bennett, acting village manager of Palatine, who earlier this week marked off a three to four foot walking path along the shoulder of Smith Street from Comfort Street to Northwest Highway.

THE STRETCH of Smith north of Northwest Highway lies in unincorporated Cook County, and Bennett said yesterday he would ask the county to pave a walkway.

The village originally was going to make a gravel walkway there, but has since decided to request that the county handle the project.

School children are advised to cross the highway at Benton Street, and continue north to the bicycle trail just north of the North View subdivision, then follow the trail west to Smith Street.

Radar police cars will be stationed along Northwest Highway to enforce speed limits, which range from 40 to 50 miles per hour between Benton and Smith streets.

Palatine police also will provide a crossing guard at Smith Street, in addition to the usual crossing guard at Benton, until temporary traffic signals are installed at both intersections, probably in December.

PTA notes

Richard Dawson, director of the Department of Environmental Health for Palatine, and Mrs. Thomas Lyons, the Mobile Intensive Care Unit nurse from Northwest Community Hospital, will speak at the Virginia Lake PTA meeting Sept. 18 at 1 p.m.

The meeting will be the first in a series concerning "People Power." The first program will deal with "Parent Power - To Save a Life."

Babysitting will be provided for children 2 to 5 years old.

Village gives $72 to municipal league

The Palatine Village Board this week appropriated $72 to the Illinois Municipal League to support its home rule program.

The contribution was voluntary, based on 10 per cent of the village's regular municipal league dues. The home rule program studies ways in which home rule municipalities can take action which had previously been reserved for the county or state governments.

Any town of more than 25,000 residents qualifies as a home rule municipality under the new state constitution.

Two youths arrested for stealing van

Palatine police recovered a stolen van and arrested two men Tuesday night after one of the officers recognized the vehicle from a Mount Prospect police report.

Arrested are William Johnson, 17, of 1501 Churchill Dr., Palatine, and Howard Christensen, 19, of 343 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine. They were turned over to Mount Prospect police.

The van was reported missing Saturday from Inn Makers Ltd., 301 W. Central St., Mount Prospect. Palatine patrolmen Stephen Rapata and James Neyfeldt made the arrest at 220 E. Hicks Place, Palatine, after they saw the van parked near one of the officer's apartment buildings.

Johnson and Christensen were charged with auto theft by the police, and released on $2,000 bond each. Their hearing will be on Oct. 5 in the Mount Prospect branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Work site damaged

Workers at a Palatine apartment building under construction at Cedar Avenue and Wilson Street discovered approximately $500 damage at the site yesterday morning.

The thief or thieves ripped out pipes from the wall and took hand tools from the site, according to Palatine police.

Miss Timmins on list

Linda Timmins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Timmins, 370 Oakwood Ct., Palatine Township, recently was named to the dean's list at Culver-Stockton College, Canton, Mo.

The jig is up for Salt Creek trash dumpers

The jig is up for all you folks who dump your unwanted belongings into Salt Creek.

The Palatine Village Board this week gave final approval to an ordinance providing stiff fines for persons caught throwing anything into the creek.

The ordinance goes into effect immediately.

It provides for a warning on the first offense, then fines of $500, $1,000 and $2,000 for subsequent offenses.

The village previously had an ordinance prohibiting dumping in the creek, but it was not strictly enforced and its penalties were minor.

The new ordinance will be enforced by the Palatine health and police departments.

Residents who spot anyone throwing anything into the creek are asked to call the health department, 338-7553. If the observers are willing to sign their names to a complaint, the alleged offenders would be warned or fined. Anonymous calls probably will not result in a fine, because offenders must be observed in the act of breaking the ordinance.

Local youth drowns at Indiana Dunes park

A 17-year-old Palatine Township youth was drowned Sunday while swimming in a restricted swimming area at the Indiana Dunes State Park.

Andrew J. Blow, of 2020 S. Els Rd., was pronounced dead on arrival at Porter Memorial Hospital, Valparaiso.

Chesterton (Ind.) police said the youth was swimming with 10 friends in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion when the friends noticed him missing.

Efforts to revive him through artificial respiration were unsuccessful.

Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.

He is survived by his parents, John and Marion, and two brothers and a sister. Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Thursday at St. Paul United Church of Christ in Palatine.

Luxury units are delayed

Construction of 116 luxury apartment units on Elm Street, between Palatine Road and Wilson Street, has been pushed back to next June.

Construction of the two five-story buildings, known as the Cornell property, was to have begun this month. However, village trustees this week granted a nine-month extension to the builders because of delays in obtaining Federal Housing Authority financing.

A delay in beginning construction was also given to the developers of Cobblestone Court, a 42-unit condominium project on Northwest Highway, near the Palatine Hills Golf Course. Construction was to have begun Oct. 1 but is now scheduled for April 1 because of delays in obtaining Metropolitan Sanitary District and Environmental Protection Agency permits.

Both projects are planned unit developments which are to be built along specifications and time schedules previously approved by the village.

'Dog days' had biting effect

Relief from last week's scorching temperatures (if 80-degree weather can be considered relief) has had a cooling effect on dogs as well as people.

Palatine Animal Warden Edward Campeau said yesterday 14 persons, mostly children, were bitten last week as temperatures remained above the 90-degree mark and humidity levels were also high. None of the bites was serious.

Ten of the bites were by dogs who, Campeau said, can become as hot tempered during hot, humid weather as humans.

THE DOGS ARE liable to take out their irritation on anyone — including, on occasion, their owners — who dare to rub their fur the wrong way.

Campeau's advice: "Don't fool with them" during hot weather.

To that, Environmental Health Director Richard A. Dawson adds: "Stay away from unfamiliar cats at all times." "Cats tend to be unpredictable," he said, "and they can become spooked very easily."

Cats didn't account for any of the bites reported to the health department last week. Besides the 10 dog bites, mice accounted for two, a rat for one and a hamster for another.

Dawson compared dogs' temperaments during hot weather to humans'. "STUDIES HAVE SHOWN that more violent kinds of reactions to things (by people) are going to take place in hot weather than in cooler weather. The same thing applies here. Animals are more uncomfortable and more likely to be more irritable in hot weather."

Pet owners can take some precautions to keep their dogs from getting hot under the collar:

- Keep them inside, where it's cooler, whenever possible.
- If pets are outside for long periods of time, keep out plenty of water and don't chain them.
- Avoid teasing and even playing with dogs during extremely hot weather.

And if you manage to get bitten by an animal, Dawson and Campeau suggest:

- Call the health department, 338-7553.
 - Wash the wound with soap and water.
 - Retain the animal, if possible, for rabies tests.
 - Go to a physician.
- Though the number of bites has gone down this week to its usual level of a couple of bites a week, Campeau warned that "If it gets hot again, we'll get another surge of it."

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA
A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs. He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "goofing off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him. The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic. Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children. Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake. THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township. A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family. Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning. In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka. AT INDIANA DUNES State Park, drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday. Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team. The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night. Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's

"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them." He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast." Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble. The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps. Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming. Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water." He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents. In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossiter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53. LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossiter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem." He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossiter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep." "There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said. He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Teachers 'upset' over board-freeze on salaries until contract settled

A decision by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education to freeze teacher salaries at last year's level until a new teacher contract is ratified has "caused a lot of hard feelings with the teachers," according to the leader of the teachers' contract negotiating team. George Yingst, head of the Classroom Teachers Council (CTC), negotiating team, said yesterday teachers are "very upset" about the board's decision not to include normal "experience" salary increases on the teachers' first paychecks to be distributed tomorrow. The board voted unanimously Aug. 8 to freeze teacher pay at last year's level pending agreement on a 1973-74 teacher contract. The raise the teachers would have received on tomorrow's paycheck is normally given every year for the increase in experience, Yingst said. "This year the board saw fit not to give any increases either for the cost of living or for experience," Yingst said. "The teachers are very upset about it and we have contacted an attorney for legal counsel on this." Yingst said teachers are not now considering a strike, but he added the atmosphere for negotiating at the start of school "would have been better" had the board not decided to freeze wages. He added, however, that once negotiations resume, a strike may be considered if an early settlement is not reached. "We were the ones that called off the last negotiations session because we wanted to investigate the district financial situation (the audit), so the start of school was not a crisis situation as in some other districts. But once we got the audit and resume negotiations, I'm afraid a deadline (for a settlement) would have to be set," Yingst said. District officials in the meantime have indicated they do not anticipate a strike.

"Negotiations have been conducted in good faith to this point and we have no reason to fear any problems," Supt. Frank C. Whiteley said yesterday. Whiteley said the district's audit has just been completed and "should be forthcoming." He said negotiations would probably resume shortly after the CTC receives copies of the audit. THE BOARD'S NEGOTIATIONS committee will meet tonight, but Whiteley declined to comment on what the committee will discuss. Teacher contract negotiations in the district began May 8 but came to a halt May 30 after only four sessions. Salaries are apparently the major point of discussion, with the CTC requesting an increase of $730,000 in the salary schedule. The sum is about $189,000 more than had been planned by the board. Salaries for beginning teachers with a bachelor's degree were set last year at $7,730. Top salaries for experienced teachers ranged from $12,567 for a bachelor's degree to $14,937 for a master's degree and 30 additional semester hours. Agreement between the board and teachers on last year's contract came in June, but the two previous years settlements were not reached until several days before school began.

Youth caught after chase

by TONI GINETTI
A 17-year-old Barrington youth yesterday led police from five departments on a high speed auto chase through Rolling Meadows and then eluded police in a foot chase through four blocks of the city before he was finally apprehended. The youth, Harold C. Whitten of 530 Shorely, Barrington, was apprehended by Rolling Meadows Officers Roger Hamann and Bruce Murphy on the 2300 block of Bluebird Lane after a 30-minute auto chase through the city which reached speeds of 90 m.p.h., police said. Whitten apparently stole the vehicle with the key in the ignition at a laundrette in Barrington at about 12:30 p.m. yesterday, police said. The auto, a 1968 Javelin, is owned by Mrs. Barbara B. Klass, 21 E. Barrington Rd., Barrington. THE YOUTH was spotted by Rolling Meadows Officer Douglas Larsson as the youth sped westbound on Campbell Street through the intersection at Campbell and Wilke Road. Whitten was clocked by police radar as traveling at 90 m.p.h. when Larsson began the chase. Whitten led police southbound on Wilke, westbound on Kirchoff Road, northbound on Meadow Drive north to Fremont Street, and then southbound to the 2400 block of Bluebird Lane where he left the car and fled on foot. Police said Whitten drove through stop signs and traffic lights during the chase and drove around a partial road block that was set up at Kirchoff and Meadow. He narrowly avoided striking several children at the intersection of School and Meadow Drives who were returning to school, according to Rolling Meadows Police Sgt. Timothy Lonergan. Lonergan said a woman pulled the children from the street when Whitten's vehicle sped past. ELEVEN ROLLING Meadows policemen pursued Whitten on foot within a four-block area north of Bluebird Lane. Police Chief Lewis R. Case said squad cars from Palatine, Arlington Heights, Cook County Sheriff's Police, and the State Police as well as city public works vehicles in the area assisted in cordoning off a four-block radius around Bluebird Lane. The youth was carrying a Minnesota drivers license and told police he has lived in Barrington only about six months. Whitten will be arraigned today in Arlington Heights Circuit Court on charges of possession of stolen property, reckless conduct, eluding a police officer, and at least 14 traffic offenses. Bond and a court date will be set during the arraignment.

Future Fair crowds 'disappointing'

A total of 201,286 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track. The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call. "I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said. Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3. WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year. Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said. Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair. Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good. Basically, we learned a lot of things. For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening crowd that stayed late," he said.

The breakdown on attendance was 46,012 adult advance tickets; 2,334 advance children's tickets; 98,865 adult gate admissions; 24,522 children gate admissions; 27,459 season books for exhibitors and concessionaries; and 2,094 dinner package tickets. ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here. Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo.

Victim of Tuesday car-cycle crash dies

Patricia Mezzano, 21, died yesterday afternoon of injuries she suffered in a car-motorcycle accident Tuesday evening in Arlington Heights. Miss Mezzano, of 1616 Willow Rd., Mount Prospect, was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Joseph Eschenbrenner, 20, of 4724 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows. Eschenbrenner is listed in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital where he and Miss Mezzano were taken by fire department ambulance.

The private eye biz

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

If Mike Hammer, Joe Mannix or Sam Spade walked into the Apollo Detective Agency, 300 E. Industrial Ln., in Wheeling, chances are he wouldn't even be able to get a job.

For while fictional private eyes are fast-moving loners who skirt the edge of the law, quietly professional and law-abiding individuals are more the stuff of which real life detectives are made, according to Ed Kelly, manager of the agency.

If Mannix did try real-life detecting, he'd probably be disappointed. Although the glamorous and exciting jobs do crop up, detective agencies also handle a range of other jobs considerably less sensational, Kelly said.

The Apollo agency, which has been operating in Wheeling for six months, is just one of a number of detective agencies in the northwest suburbs. According to Kelly, the agency is a fairly typical one.

JUDGING FROM the variety of cases which it handles, the number of agencies in the area is justified.

"The agency is designed to handle every kind of security problem," Kelly said. Since security problems can range from civil, domestic, and criminal investigations to patrol and guard services, detective work can cover any of this.

Unglamorous as it may be, the bulk of the agencies work comes in the form of patrol and guard services. However, even these jobs are varied. Clients run from construction companies who want their sites guarded to the Chicago Art Institute which once hired the agency to guard around $75 million worth of paintings in transit to another museum. To handle the range of jobs, the agency offers armed and unarmed, uniformed and plain-clothes guards.

Maybe 30 per cent of the agency's work is investigative, Kelly said, and this also offers variety. The agency may investigate anything from runaway children to theft in discount and retail stores. Also included in the investigations category is one type of job which Kelly almost mentions with a wince.

THESE ARE investigations springing from marital difficulties.

"There is a stigma that goes along with being a private detective and that is that you spend all your time tracking down cheating husbands and wives," he said.

While the agency does accept such cases as a legitimate service, they only comprise maybe 10 per cent of the agency's jobs, he said. In addition, picture-taking in motel rooms is almost never done, since clients usually only wish to check up on their spouses' actions, Kelly said.

Finally, the agency also handles an assortment of other odd jobs which can run from administering polygraph tests for private companies to installing burglar alarms to checking for electronic bugging devices in industrial espionage cases.

WITH REGARD to the latter, Kelly says he has noticed an increase in public awareness of electronic eavesdropping since the advent of the Watergate affair.

However, he adds hastily, "all we do is electronic eavesdropping prevention," since bugging is illegal.

The Apollo agency staff is designed to handle the number and variety of cases the agency receives. The agency employs about 30 people as guards, investigators, alarm installers and in other capacities. However, detective agency employees also don't run to the television mold.

Although the average employee age is around 30, the agency employs a number of older people. Women also work as detectives, and Kelly says "they make very good undercover investigators, since people usually don't expect a woman to be a detective."

Unlike the traditional fictional private eye, the agency employees also are all specialists.

"EACH EMPLOYEE is so different from the other. We don't want an all-around man. We want experts in each field," Kelly said.

To get these "experts," the agency mostly draws upon people with experience in other branches of investigative or guard work. Typically, agency employees have had experience as policemen, government or military investigators, insurance investigators or as private detectives. Although all the agency employees need not have detective licenses, the agency is licensed by the state for private investigation and guard and patrol work.

Along with experience, the agency also must look for other qualities which mark the good detective. Besides a general observantness and objectivity, "a good investigator also has to be a salesman, a business-minded person, a compassionate person, and yet at the same time he has to be able to be somewhat impersonal. He can't get personally in-involved in all his cases," Kelly says.

Whether by design or by chance, all the agency employees also have a great respect for local police forces, Kelly says. Perhaps because of this, the relationship between the agency and the police is very good, he says.

"WE DON'T compete with the police. We like to be an outside arm for local police departments," he said.

Although Kelly demolishes the stereotype of the detective who constantly matches wits with the police while solving murder and espionage cases, he says the job is not without some excitement.

"It is routine in the respect that you're always dealing with security. But it's different because you often have to dig out information. Most of the time it's challenging and fun," he said.

Occasionally, more glamorous and exciting cases also develop, like kidnappings which the agency has been asked to investigate. However, Kelly is reluctant to discuss such cases in detail, for fear of violating client's confidentiality.

"I could sit here and describe a bunch of cases which would make us look real glamorous. But that wouldn't be fair to our clients. Any agency which would do that wouldn't be showing much respect for clients," he said.

With the glut of sensational detective stories on television and in print, a real-life detective has no need to perpetuate the exciting image. In fact, he can be content that it's only an image, Kelly indicates.

"If this work was like what you see on television, you'd be walking out of here talking to yourself every night," he said.

Court battle for Arlington Heights?

by FRED GACA

Elk Grove Village is preparing for a possible legal battle against Arlington Heights over the proposed annexation of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

The Elk Grove Village board directed its attorney, Edward Hofert, to review the annexation proposed by Arlington Heights to determine what legal grounds Elk Grove may have to fight the move. Hofert is to report back to the board at the Sept. 11 meeting.

"We have to force them (Arlington Heights) to honor the boundary agreement," said Trustee Edward Kenna, the most vocal board member critical of the annexation.

Kenna, at Tuesday's board meeting, called for a resolution asking the Northwest Municipal Conference to censure Arlington Heights for considering the annexation.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Spees called for a resolution asking the Cook County Council of Governments to also censure Arlington Heights.

Neither resolution came to a vote. Village President Charles Zetek spoke against any censure of Arlington Heights before the convention center site was actually annexed by Arlington Heights.

"I don't get excited about throwing stones at people you want to shake hands with," said Zetek.

"I'm not sure their hand is out to us," Spees said.

"We're burying our heads in the sand to ignore their (Arlington Heights) action," Kenna added.

Hofert advised the board not to be premature in any action. He said Elk Grove should wait until Arlington Heights has taken action instead of "jumping to conclusions."

THE POSSIBLE legal battle stems from the expected annexation by Arlington Heights of 65 acres south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road. The unincorporated land is now owned by Charles Klehm and he wants it to become part of Arlington Heights.

The site would be developed into a convention center with a possible later development of an apartment complex.

Elk Grove Village is arguing that the tollway has long been considered by Elk Grove and Arlington Heights as the common boundary between the villages. No binding legal document has ever been signed by the two villages, however, accepting the tollway as the boundary.

To annex the property, Arlington Heights must annex a portion of the tollway to get contiguous boundaries. The state tollway commission has already granted permission to Arlington Heights to annex that portion of the road.

AS PART of the possible legal fights,

Hofert has been asked to consider action against the tollway commission for allowing the Arlington Heights annexation without notifying Elk Grove Village.

The Arlington Heights plan commission recommended approval of the convention site annexation several weeks ago by an 8-2 vote. The two dissenting members voted against the annexation because they felt it would violate the understanding between Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis appeared at the plan commission hearing to offer argument for honoring the boundary.

Police investigating car-cycle accident

Arlington Heights police are still investigating a car-motorcycle accident that occurred Tuesday evening at Golf and Algonquin roads.

Joseph Eschenbrenner, 20, of 4723 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows, operator of the cycle, and his passenger Patricia Mezzano, 21, of 1616 Willow Rd., Mount Prospect, are still hospitalized with injuries sustained in the crash. Officials at Northwest Community Hospital, where they were taken by fire department ambulance, listed Eschenbrenner in fair condition yesterday. Miss Mezzano was in the intensive care unit in critical condition, according to a hospital spokesman.

Farrell R. Fox, 44, of 4640 Kenilworth, Rolling Meadows, driver of the car, was not hospitalized.

Arlington Heights police said the accident investigation had not been completed Wednesday. They declined to give details of the accident while the investigation is still being conducted. No charges have been filed against either driver.

Schaumburg man hurt in cycle accident

A Schaumburg man was treated and released from Northwest Community Hospital last night following a motorcycle-auto accident at 3:50 p.m. yesterday at 1780 S. Roselle Rd., near the High School Dist. 211 administration building.

Paul Pankros, of 11 Dennis Court, Schaumburg, was riding his motorcycle following a line of autos northbound on Roselle Road when the accident occurred.

According to Palatine police reports, Pankros was unable to stop his cycle when cars in front of him applied their brakes. Pankros lost control of the cycle, veered across the center line and side-swiped an oncoming car driven by Gerald Long, of 980 Countryside Dr., unincorporated Palatine Township. Pankros suffered leg cuts from the accident. Police issued no tickets in the incident.

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA
A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.
He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "gooling off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.
The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.
Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.
Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.
THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.
Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.
In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Okeoka.
AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.
Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elia Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.
The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.
Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.
"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."
He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."
Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.
The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.
Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.
Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.
Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."
He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.
In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossliter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.
LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossliter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."
He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossliter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."
"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.
He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Homeowner unit head in control of Knightsbridge

by PAT GERLACH
Bill Bibb, president of Knightsbridge Homeowners Association, has acquired controlling interest in Knightsbridge Corp., The Herald learned yesterday.
Bibb confirmed acquisition of "significant interests" in the building corporation last night. Pressed for details, he admitted taking over financial control of Knightsbridge Corp. last Saturday.
Bibb refused to step down as homeowner association president when asked to do so Tuesday by the group's board of directors. It was reported.
Bibb said his negotiations to acquire interest in the corporation began at 5:30 p.m. Friday when he first contacted Nick Herman, previous owner of the corporation, on other than an owner-to-builder basis. Bibb refused to discuss the amount of his investment in Knightsbridge Corp.

He said the corporation has future plans to build pre-assembled structural segments of homes in the Knightsbridge subdivision. They will have a market value in line with the $80,000 to $100,000 homes now in the subdivision. Bibb denied reports that he and Herman planned to complete Knightsbridge with prefabricated houses.
Two officers of the homeowners group said that Bibb, under pressure, confirmed his new association with Herman during a Tuesday night board of directors meeting.
But Bibb claimed he notified home-

Outer Planets designer presses for village OK

Lee N. Romano again locked horns last night with Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals over his proposed 200-acre futuristic city planned for Higgins Rd. and I-90. Romano is an Arlington Heights land-concept designer and developer.
Outer Planets, a development planned for completion over a 15-year period, was presented to the zoning board of appeals in June.
At that time, Romano was asked to return with more specific plans for the development. Last night, after two postponements, Romano failed to produce the required information.
As before, he told the board phase I of the development would consist of 1,100 units, half of which would be rentals, and the remainder condominiums. They would be built in four 32-story buildings with construction to begin as soon as zoning is granted.
He also indicated that the development would eventually contain a number of office buildings plus an 80-story structure being planned to contain offices, condominiums and a 27-story hotel.
ROMANO AND HIS associates failed to produce accurate traffic study data and other information earlier requested by the board. Architects for the projects are John Graham and Assoc., of Seattle, Wash.

Although Romano pressed zoning board members for a final decision last night, no vote had been taken at press time.
Village officials urged Romano to permit his architects and consultants to meet with village engineer Joe Zgonina today to clarify details and permit the hearing to be continued.
Romano is asking the village to annex 74 acres south of Old Schaumburg Road and west of I-90. He is also petitioning annexation of an additional 66 acres north of Old Schaumburg Rd. He is asking that all land involved be zoned for a planned unit development (PUD).
The original Outer Planets involved 86 acres on the southwest corner of Higgins and I-90. The village granted PUD zoning and annexation for that project in 1968.
Romano says he never developed the approved plan because the state purchased 20 acres of the land for use as right-of-way to connect I-90 with Rte. 53 and Higgins Rd. He failed to begin construction under terms of the PUD agreement and that zoning was rescinded in 1970.

COMPLETION OF Schaumburg's new Civic Center is expected late this fall on a 40-acre site donated to the village for that purpose by developer William Lambert. It will house key village officials and their administrative staff personnel.

Civic center plans preserve rich heritage

by PAT GERLACH
Rustic-type building materials are being used in Schaumburg's new civic center to preserve a heritage rich in early 20th century Midwest farm culture.
The complex lies at the eastern edge of the village's proposed Old Towne district — a one-quarter mile area extending in all directions from the Schaumburg-Roselle roads intersection.
Guidelines for Old Towne development are being set down by the village plan commission to further ensure preservation of an early 1900s flavor.
Phase one of the 40-acre civic cultural complex will contain a 12,000-square-foot building which will house village offices.
A Dec. 1 move in date is anticipated, though Village Engr. Joe Zgonina predicts that all site work will have been completed by the end of this month.
The building is being constructed of muted tones of fired brick similar in appearance to farm tile prevalent in Schaumburg at the turn of the century.
"WE HAVE BEEN very careful to select building materials which will reflect and maintain the old farm community atmosphere," said Albert Eichstadt, a Roselle architect who designed the building.
Eichstadt created a master plan for the entire complex, adopted by the village board in 1971. It shows the civic center as a link between a facility planned nearer to Roselle Road on the site. The cultural center is planned at the eastern end of the complex.
Eichstadt is not sure his master planning will bear fruit on the Schaumburg Road site since another location is now being studied for a police center. Some village officials are now convinced police headquarters would not lend itself easily to the civic center area.
"Whatever happens here I hope that the integrity of the original design will be preserved," Eichstadt emphasized.
But Schaumburg officials say they have every intention of putting three buildings on the site though they admit the possibility of substituting other office space for the police structure.

ALL CONCRETE being poured at the center has been tinted to compliment rustic brick similar to turn of the century farm tile. Concrete has also been etched in a distress fashion.

Applicants sought for board seat

Claude Crase resigned Tuesday night from his post as Hoffman Estates Park Board commissioner because of personal reasons.
Crase submitted a letter of resignation at the Tuesday night park district board meeting. He said he had taken a new job and that he would not have time to work as a commissioner.
Fred Weaver, board president, said resumes and recommendations from anyone residing in the park district boundaries would be accepted until 6 p.m. Oct. 1 at his home, 275 Fremont Ct.
Crase was elected to a six-year term in 1971.
Weaver said, "He has contributed greatly the time he has served on the board."
Commissioner Tom Barber said there had been a controversy at the time of Crase's election on whether Crase would serve the Winston Knolls Subdivision, where he lived, or the community. "He has done a good job for the whole community," Barber added.

Brother, can you spare a dime for village?

It will cost Hoffman Estates taxpayers approximately 10 cents more next year to help pay for municipal expenses, village officials estimate.
A $920,420 tax levy, adopted by the village board Tuesday, shows a 1/10 cent tax rate increase is anticipated for every $100 of assessed valuation on homes. Last year's levy resulted in a tax rate of .776 and this year's levy is expected to raise the rate to .777. This means next spring's tax bills should show a 10 cent increase for every $10,000 of assessed valuation.
The estimated 1973 assessed valuation for the village is $107 million, approximately $16.5 million higher than last year's.

The increase in the village's overall assessed valuation, plus lower levies in some village funds have allowed the village to hold the line on tax increases for the fourth year in a row, officials said. The tax rate increase anticipated for next year is the lowest ever, they added.
IN ADOPTING the tax levy the board noted it seeks to use its home rule privileges. Although the levy ordinance is adopted according to the provisions of the Illinois Municipal Code, Hoffman Estates does not choose to be bound by any tax limitations it contains.

A summary of the levy ordinance shows little difference in funds that will carry expenses for the fiscal year May 1, 1973 through April 30, 1974.
A summary of the tax levy shows a total of $251,700 is levied from tax for all general corporate purposes. Levied from special taxes is $68,770 for police protection, $35,000 for police pension, $250,000 for scavenger service, $54,000 for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund. Others are $10,000 for civil defense, $129,700 for the village hall debt service and $66,950 for bonds and interest.

Conroy to trade memories for modern police station

by STIRLING MORITA

Schaumburg Police Chief Martin Conroy stood outside the one-story building that once housed the first police station and grinned slightly while reminiscing.

"There's a lot of old memories in that place," Conroy said about the building, situated a short distance from the intersection of Golf and Roselle roads.

Conroy ought to know. He was the first policeman and police chief Schaumburg has known in its short history. And he's been cramped for space in three police stations.

Conroy said he plans to move his office, detective, youth and records bureaus over to the present, nearby mayor's offices when village officials move out at the end of the year to their new quarters at the Civic Center.

The traffic and patrol divisions will remain behind in the old white barn that has been home for the department for about 10 years.

THE MOVE COMES while the department awaits the planning and construction of the new police station, to be the fourth in the department's 13-year history.

While the village officials have not decided upon a location for the station, they have estimated $1 million would be spent for it. Two locations are being considered — one on Schaumburg Road near the high school and one on Schaumburg Road just east of Roselle Road.

Conroy said he has talked to the architectural firm responsible for design of the station and added that nothing has been decided. The firm is Loebel, Schlosser, Bennett & Dart.

Conroy is understandably excited about the station which he hopes will be completed by 1975. He feels the new station will cap off his modernization of the Schaumburg police force.

CONROY AND HIS 39 policemen, 6 radio dispatchers and 5 civilian personnel find themselves virtually back-to-back in the cramped first-floor rooms in the barn, also known as the "Great Hall."

There were two police stations before the present facility, and each was equally cramped.

The first police station was started in 1960 when Conroy came on as police chief. The village rented out a room that was attached to a western clothing store. Conroy said the one room served not only the one-man police department, but was used for board meetings and court proceedings.

"We had to share the public toilet with the store," Conroy recalled. "There was only one."

Conroy said the building will probably be torn down next year.

Conroy recounted the story of how he started his own court system.

THE COURTS WERE handled by justices of the peace when Conroy became police chief, he said.

"There were two of them for Schaumburg Township, and none of them had ever handled a case before," the police chief added. "They had never seen a traffic ticket until I brought some to them. I not only had to set up a police department, but set up my own court system, too."

He added that on court days a line of cars would go back on a gravel road about an eighth of a mile and curve around on Golf Road. "We probably had to move out because we tore up the road so bad," Conroy said.

The police headquarters was moved in 1962 to what is now 100 Springingsuth Rd. The station was located there for about 11 1/2 years.

By the time of the first move, Conroy had a police force of two full-time men and a reserve squad of 22. Conroy said the chief reason for the move was because the village was moving into the house at the Springingsuth Road address and that the police station should be nearby. It was, in a single-car garage at the rear.

The number of full-time police officers grew to four, and space became a precious commodity. When the village offices moved to the barn, so did the police force.

The barn was refurbished and the police department occupied the front rooms while court and village board meetings were held in a back first-floor room.

"WE WERE VERY delighted to get all the milking stall area as part of my police station," Conroy said.

"We kept putting up partitions and making more rooms," the police chief said. "We took over (the first floor) little by little."

Eventually the court was moved upstairs, and the police took over the first floor. Conroy added that additional space was created when he took some space away from the public washrooms by moving back a wall for the detective bureau.

"It was a good job of refinishing," Conroy said. "But at certain humidity, you still get certain aromas."

SCHAUMBURG POLICE CHIEF Martin Conroy recalls housed the first police station. Conroy, Schaumburg's first policeman and police chief, had to share the one-stands in front of the one-story building that once room police facility with the village board and court.

Future Fair turnout: disappointing

A total of 201,286 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

"Basically, we learned a lot of things."

For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening crowd that stayed late," he said.

The breakdown on attendance was 46,012 adult advance tickets; 2,334 advance children's tickets; 98,865 adult gate admissions; 24,522 children gate admissions; 27,459 season books for exhibitors and concessionaries; and 2,094 dinner package tickets.

ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here.

Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo. The most successful aspect of the fair this year was the nightly grandstand shows, followed by the indoor exhibits and then the livestock entries, he said.

In addition to a financial analysis of this year's fair, the as yet undetermined horse racing dates awarded to Arlington Park next year will have a bearing on whether another Future of America Fair will be scheduled, he said.

Homeowners' group head at Knightsbridge helm

owners' association members on Aug. 28 of a meeting scheduled for Sept. 4 to review the village position on owners' previous demands.

DIRECTORS PRESENT at that meeting demanded to know why Herman was recently observed spending many hours at Bibb's home. They have not been able to reach the builder concerning problems in the subdivision.

Bibo denied that he has refused to step down as homeowners association president when asked to do so Tuesday by the board of directors.

He said his resignation is now "in process" and indicated that complete corporate plans for the future of Knightsbridge will be detailed in a release to be issued today.

He also declined to discuss his professional background and said that would be outlined in the same statement.

Schaumburg village officials have also experienced difficulty in contacting Herman recently concerning failure to install a sidewalk along Jones Road to Churchill Elementary School; promised for completion by the time school opened yesterday.

Bibo also plans to represent the homeowners at a meeting between Herman and village administrator John Coste next week, residents claim.

A spokesman for Coste said late yesterday that his office is unaware of a planned meeting between the three next week.

Herman also was unavailable for comment.

OVER THE past three months, residents have repeatedly expressed concern over Herman's failure to complete public improvements in the subdivision, including installation of street lights, parkways trees and finish two retention basins.

Bibo, acting for the homeowners association, sent a letter to the village Aug. 16, requesting that a plan of action be prepared to remedy Knightsbridge problems within two weeks.

He also engaged in a number of telephone conversations with village officials concerning the urgency of residents' problems in the subdivision.

Bibo, and other residents, expressed concern that the subdivision would be completed as planned and that Herman might decide to build lower cost housing there.

Civic center retains heritage center are glass tinted to complement the farm tile brick. Interior rooms, with the exception of some office space, will have flooring made of paver brick which was seen in early streets and roads in the area.

A suite, containing Mayor Robert O. Atcher's office plus an adjoining rest and dressing room, is at the northeast corner.

All concrete being used both in and out of the building has been color-keyed to match the comfortable earthy tones and etched to show a crater design. Cost and installation of the tinted concrete is estimated at three times that of normal cement work.

Council chambers, at the eastern end of the building, is designed in pie-wedge fashion and highlights all rustic materials incorporated in other areas of the building.

The east side of the building also features a wide expanse of window-wall which, Eichsteadt feels, will add the illusion of open space to the council chambers. That area will eventually overlook the cultural portion of the complex. It will be separated from the civic center by a landscaped plaza.

Ramps lead into the building from both east and west entrances providing easy access for handicapped residents.

Village officials are proud they have not had to ask taxpayers to finance the complex.

"All of the money needed for the civic center will come from the general revenue fund because Schaumburg officials have been prudent over the years in order to provide this type of facility," said Trustee Herb Aigner. He is chairman of the village development committee and has supervised the design and construction of the center.

THOUGH BIDS for the center came in at about $700,000, its actual cost will probably be in the neighborhood of $1.1 million — a far cry from the half-million dollar figure which the village originally expected to use for the entire complex.

Costs have more than doubled because of price increases in materials, landscaping and other extras including a four-acre lake at the front of the site.

The Schaumburg Road land being used for the center was donated to the village by William Lambert, who holds extensive property in the area.

A special committee responsible for arranging a formal public dedication of the new civic center is being headed by Mayor Atcher.

He and other village officials have made it clear they plan to delay these ceremonies until the village is well settled and comfortable in the new center.

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA

A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.

He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "gooding off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.

The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.

Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.

Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.

THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.

Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.

In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.

AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.

Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elm Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.

The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.

Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.

"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."

He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."

Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.

The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.

Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.

Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.

Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."

He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.

In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossiter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.

LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossiter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."

He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossiter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."

"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.

He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Officials criticize each other

Elmhurst, Algonquin 'land grab' headed for court test

by STEVE BROWN

The latest in a long series on land grab battles between Des Plaines and Mount Prospect seems to be heading for a lengthy legal test.

The likelihood of another courtroom confrontation on the issue of annexation of unincorporated land increased when Mount Prospect officials instructed their attorney Tuesday to file objections to Des Plaines' petitions seeking to acquire land at the intersection of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads.

Officials of the two towns, who have frequently been annexation adversaries, have both criticized each other on planning and development matters.

This latest bout began last month, when Des Plaines adopted several ordinances seeking to claim several parcels of land at the intersection. The move must first be approved by the court before being completed.

MOUNT PROSPECT MAYOR Robert Teichert said yesterday that his village plans to use some of the same objections that Des Plaines has used in effort to block the city's annexation effort.

"If some things are terrible for us, then they are terrible for Des Plaines," Teichert added. A hearing on the annexation requests is scheduled before Cook County Circuit Court Judge Helen McGillicuddy on Sept. 17.

If the judge approves the petitions a referendum must also be held in areas which Des Plaines proposes to annex, and voters must approve the annexation.

While Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel was reluctant to comment on the move by Mount Prospect, he did state, "the city is getting a little bit tired of Mr. Teichert and his predecessor deciding where our boundaries should be."

WHILE TEICHERT has claimed that Behrel has agreed to having Elmhurst Road as a dividing line between the towns, Behrel said, "That's a complete falsehood."

"Mr. Teichert did not discuss the boundary before he annexed the property north of Central Road, all the way east to River Road. They've annexed everything west of River Road so we cannot go north," Behrel said.

"Now they want to annex everything up to Elmhurst Road, so we cannot go west. That is fine for Mount Prospect, but I do not think it is good for Des Plaines," he added.

The two towns are still locked in another legal fight over land north of the present battle ground near Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street. They both contend that have legally annexed a 3 acre site. The land which was once used as a mushroom farm, is presently owned by Kenroy Inc. of Skokie. Kenroy has plans to build an apartment complex there. The legal action has been going on since 1969.

THE COMMUNITIES also fought over attempts to annex the United Airlines training center and adjacent commercial and industrial land.

In 1967, Mount Prospect attempted to annex property which would have surrounded the 70-acre United site, but Des Plaines and the airline filed suit in an attempt to block the action.

Des Plaines claimed that the effort represented strip annexation, which is illegal in Illinois. The law suit languished in the courts until April of this year, when Mount Prospect dropped its annexation plans.

Mount Prospect instead annexed a large multiple family housing development, known as The Colony, which will be built at Elmhurst Road and Oakton Street.

If Des Plaines is successful in its latest annexation effort, it will acquire several apartment buildings, several businesses and a 10-acre parcel of undeveloped land.

Mount Prospect officials are currently reviewing a zoning request from a shopping center developer, who has indicated an interest in annexing to the village. The undeveloped property being sought by Des Plaines is adjacent to that site.

DONALD DUCK DOESN'T seem to be bothered at all by the children playing on him at the Busse School playground. Donald, who is just one of several new pieces of playground equipment, is really a tester-totter in disguise.

The new equipment was donated to the school through the joint efforts of Mount Prospect School Dist. 57, the Busse School PTA and the Mount Prospect Park District.

Citizens' group to study school sites

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 28 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River er Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5 1/2-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 28 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site — I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

Board member Mike Sheyker, who voted against the River Trails site, suggested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

Lincoln takes over jazz band

After one year of operation under a private organization, the Lincoln Junior High jazz band in Mount Prospect Dist. 57 will now be operated by the school.

The Mount Prospect Music Boosters supported the band last year through private donations, under the direction of Dave Metzler, school band director. With the donations the group paid for additional instruction from two other directors.

At last month's meeting the board directed Supt. Earl Sutter to expand the music program in the district, including absorption of the jazz band. The board discussed the decision Tuesday night with several band booster parents who appeared at the board meeting.

Under the school supervision, the band will continue to have a two-hour rehearsal once a week, probably in the evening, but Metzler will not have assistance. He will be paid for extra duty by the district. Another session will be conducted each week for the beginner, or lab band that feeds into the jazz band.

With the school program, parents will not be required to pay anything beyond the regular $4 annual instrumental fee, which covers incidental expenses of the band.

ASST. SUPT. Dwight Hall said fears that the program would not be as good as it was under the Music Boosters will probably be unfounded. He said he has inspected schools that have equivalent programs, and some of them outperformed the Lincoln Jazz Band in competition last year.

Parents in the Music Boosters still hope to find a way to supplement the band with extra money for lessons or training, but the district administration has not allowed for that yet. Hall said the school cannot require further expense by the parents, and the school cannot overbalance the music program.

"All programs should be in balance," Hall said. "There are a number of experiences kids should have." He cited sports as an example of a school expense that has to be considered.

Hall said the district will underwrite the cost of the jazz band program "within reason," and will attempt to reimburse the Music Boosters for what they already own.

Teachers to receive pay raise anyway

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school teachers will receive pay raises based on length of service and advanced education even though a contract has not been settled.

The school board Tuesday night announced the raises would be paid in addition to last year's base salaries until an agreement is reached. The board is still negotiating with the Mount Prospect Education Association.

Board Member Bill Holloway said the idea was suggested to the teachers' negotiating team and the teachers accepted it. He said the increases will amount to about $50,000, or 2.8 per cent increase to district teacher salaries.

Victim of car-cycle crash dies

Patricia Mezzano, 21, died yesterday afternoon of injuries she suffered in a car-motorcycle accident Tuesday evening in Arlington Heights.

Miss Mezzano, of 1618 Willow Rd., Mount Prospect, was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Joseph Eschenbrenner, 20, of 4728 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows.

Eschenbrenner is listed in fair condition at Northwest Community Hospital where he and Miss Mezzano were taken by fire department ambulance.

Farrell R. Fox Jr., 44, of 4640 Kenilworth, Rolling Meadows was the driver of the car. He was not hospitalized.

Arlington Heights police are still investigating the accident that occurred at Golf and Algonquin roads. Charges have not been filed against any parties pending completion of the accident. Police also declined to give details of the mishap before reports were completed.

Miss Mezzano is the fourth traffic fatality in Arlington Heights this year. All the victims have either been passengers or riders of bicycles or motorcycles.

The private eye biz

by JEANNETTE De WYZE

If Mike Hammer, Joe Mannix or Sam Spade walked into the Apollo Detective Agency, 300 E. Industrial Ln., in Wheeling, chances are he wouldn't even be able to get a job.

For while fictional private eyes are fast-moving loners who skirt the edge of the law, quietly professional and law-abiding individuals are more the stuff of which real life detectives are made, according to Ed Kelly, manager of the agency.

If Mannix did try real-life detecting, he'd probably be disappointed. Although the glamorous and exciting jobs do crop up, detective agencies also handle a range of other jobs considerably less sensational, Kelly said.

The Apollo agency, which has been operating in Wheeling for six months, is just one of a number of detective agencies in the northwest suburbs. According to Kelly, the agency is a fairly typical one.

JUDGING FROM the variety of cases which it handles, the number of agencies in the area is justified.

"The agency is designed to handle every kind of security problem," Kelly said. Since security problems can range from civil, domestic, and criminal investigations to patrol and guard services, detective work can cover any of this.

Unglamorous as it may be, the bulk of the agencies work comes in the form of patrol and guard services. However, even these jobs are varied. Clients run from construction companies who want their sites guarded to the Chicago Art Institute which once hired the agency to guard around $75 million worth of paintings in transit to another museum. To handle the range of jobs, the agency offers armed and unarmed, uniformed and plain-clothes guards.

Maybe 30 per cent of the agency's work is investigative, Kelly said, and this also offers variety. The agency may investigate anything from runaway children to theft in discount and retail stores. Also included in the investigations category is one type of job which Kelly almost mentions with a wince.

THESE ARE investigations springing from marital difficulties.

"There is a stigma that goes along with being a private detective and that is that you spend all your time tracking down cheating husbands and wives," he said.

While the agency does accept such cases as a legitimate service, they only comprise maybe 10 per cent of the agency's jobs, he said. In addition, picture-taking in motel rooms is almost never done, since clients usually only wish to check up on their spouses' actions, Kelly said.

Finally, the agency also handles an assortment of other odd jobs which can run from administering polygraph tests for private companies to installing burglar alarms to checking for electronic bugging devices in industrial espionage cases.

WITH REGARD to the latter, Kelly says he has noticed an increase in public awareness of electronic eavesdropping since the advent of the Watergate affair. However, he adds hastily, "all we do is electronic eavesdropping prevention," since bugging is illegal.

The Apollo agency staff is designed to handle the number and variety of cases the agency receives. The agency employs about 30 people as guards, investigators, alarm installers and in other capacities. However, detective agency employees also don't run to the television mold.

Although the average employee age is around 30, the agency employs a number of older people. Women also work as detectives, and Kelly says "they make very good undercover investigators, since people usually don't expect a woman to be a detective."

Unlike the traditional fictional private eye, the agency employees also are all specialists.

"EACH EMPLOYEE is so different from the other. We don't want an all-around man. We want experts in each field," Kelly said.

To get these "experts," the agency mostly draws upon people with experience in other branches of investigative or guard work. Typically, agency employees have had experience as policemen, government or military investigators, insurance investigators or as private detectives. Although all the agency employees need not have detective licenses, the agency is licensed by the state for private investigation and guard and patrol work.

Along with experience, the agency also must look for other qualities which mark the good detective. Besides a general observantness and objectivity, "a good investigator also has to be a salesman, a business-minded person, a compassionate person, and yet at the same time he has to be able to be somewhat impersonal. He can't get personally in-involved in all his cases," Kelly says.

Whether by design or by chance, all the agency employees also have a great respect for local police forces, Kelly says. Perhaps because of this, the relationship between the agency and the police is very good, he says.

"WE DON'T compete with the police. We like to be an outside arm for local police departments," he said.

Although Kelly demolishes the stereotype of the detective who constantly matches wits with the police while solving murder and espionage cases, he says the job is not without some excitement.

"It is routine in the respect that you're always dealing with security. But it's different because you often have to dig out information. Most of the time it's challenging and fun," he said.

Occasionally, more glamorous and exciting cases also develop, like kidnappings which the agency has been asked to investigate. However, Kelly is reluctant to discuss such cases in detail, for fear of violating client's confidentiality.

"I could sit here and describe a bunch of cases which would make us look real glamorous. But that wouldn't be fair to our clients. Any agency which would do that wouldn't be showing much respect for clients," he said.

With the glut of sensational detective stories on television and in print, a real-life detective has no need to perpetuate the exciting image. In fact, he can be content that it's only an image, Kelly indicates.

"If this work was like what you see on television, you'd be walking out of here talking to yourself every night," he said.

Future Fair crowds: disappointing

A total of 201,288 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 500,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidary of Madison Square Garden Corp. It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

"Basically, we learned a lot of things. For example, we know that people do not come in the mornings. It was an evening crowd that stayed late," he said.

The breakdown on attendance was 46,012 adult advance tickets; 2,334 advance children's tickets; 98,865 adult gate admissions; 24,522 children gate admissions; 27,459 season books for exhibitors and concessionaries; and 2,094 dinner package tickets.

ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here.

Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo.

The most successful aspect of the fair this year was the nightly grandstand shows, followed by the indoor exhibits and then the livestock entries, he said.

In addition to a financial analysis of this year's fair, the as yet undetermined horse racing dates awarded to Arlington Park next year will have a bearing on whether another Future of America Fair will be scheduled, he said.

Stop. Quarry lake: no trespassing—you could drown

by STIRLING MORITA

A youth slips into the cool waters of a lake in a secluded gravel quarry — ignorant of nearby no trespassing signs.

He swims to the middle of the lake and disappears. For a moment, his friends on shore think he is "gooling off," but when they don't see him, they go in after him.

The friends are unable to find him and then search for a telephone to call authorities, and by the time they find one, the floundering swimmer is nothing but another coroner's statistic.

Summertime is the time for bathing in the pure spring-fed lakes, or for fishing in solitude in unsupervised areas. And the usual drowning victims are teenagers or young children.

Not all victims in the area drowned while swimming, but three of the nine drownings this year were swimmers in a quarry lake.

THE DANGERS OF trespassing at a quarry lake came to light Labor Day weekend. A 15-year-old Wheeling youth drowned Sunday while swimming at a quarry lake near Aptakisic Road just west of Milwaukee Avenue in Vernon Township.

A 7-year-old Chicago boy slid down a 15-foot slope and drowned in 8-foot water in a quarry southwest of the intersection of Meacham and Schaumburg roads in Schaumburg. The boy was on a holiday fishing trip with his family.

Tragedy befell two swimmers at the Vernon Township quarry before the Sunday drowning.

In Palatine, a 3-year-old girl drowned in March in Salt Creek after an eroded bank collapsed. There were four drownings this year in Des Plaines. Two of the four were probable suicides, authorities said. One person drowned after his canoe overturned in the Des Plaines River, and a 22-year-old man was found floating in Lake Opeka.

AT INDIANA DUNES State Park,

drowning claimed the life of a 17-year-old Palatine Township youth Sunday.

Andrew J. Blow, 2020 S. Elia Rd., drowned while swimming in a "no swimming" area one mile east of the Dunes pavilion. Blow was to have entered his junior year at William Fremd High School in Palatine, where he recently made the varsity football team.

The quarry lakes and retention ponds in the area present a problem for some police departments when youngsters go in for an unauthorized dip. The only thing police can do to prevent drownings is to patrol these spots carefully, but the problem is police can not sit at one lake all day or night.

Schaumburg Police Lt. Bob Hammond said unauthorized fishing or swimming has not been a problem with retention lakes along Schaumburg Road until this last accident. Schaumburg Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen echoed Hammond's words, saying the police apparently do a good job of patrolling the water areas.

ABRAHAMSEN SAID there appear to be more drownings nationwide on holidays because there are more people out for recreation.

"If you don't get here within five minutes, he may be gone," Abrahamsen added. "Usually at any type of drowning, it is the persons at the scene that save them."

He said, "In the wide open spaces, you've got to get to a phone fast."

Boards, ropes or sturdy objects may be used by citizens to help rescue a swimmer in trouble.

The Vernon Township quarry is a popular swimming spot for youngsters from Buffalo Grove and Wheeling. The hazard in the lake is cold pockets of water which could cause cramps.

Authorities said the quarry has been a problem for years. Lake County sheriff's police have been chasing youngsters away and towing cars in an effort to curb the perennial problem.

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Rolling Meadows, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights have reported no troubles with unauthorized swimming.

Yesterday, Arlington Heights police chased two youths with a boat away from the retention basin, at Regency Park after checking a report of two persons drowning in the basin.

Hoffman Estates Police Lt. Bill Freund said, "There's problems wherever there is water."

He added that retention ponds in Hoffman Estates are watched not only by police, but by residents.

In Des Plaines, forest preserve rangers patrol three lakes in an effort to prevent swimming. Hot days this summer were a problem for rangers as they caught many swimmers.

In August, a 14-year-old girl almost drowned in Rossiter Lake near the intersection of Ill. Rte. 53 and Palatine Road in Palatine. Two companions pulled her to safety from the lake which was formed with the construction of Ill. Rte. 53.

LT. FRANK ORTIZ, acting Palatine police chief, said Rossiter Lake and other private lakes "are a problem."

He said police will chase youngsters out, but that they will return when the police leave. Ortiz said Rossiter Lake is dangerous because "at points it is 60 feet deep."

"There's no phone and no road access for an ambulance," Ortiz said.

He added that there was more seclusion at the lake for youngsters. "They can drink their beer and smoke pot in privacy," he said. "They just don't realize how dangerous it is."

Future Fair crowds below expectations

A total of 201,286 people attended the Future of America Fair during its 11-day run at Arlington Park Race Track.

The fair's director, Vernon G. Wendland, said yesterday that breaking even on the event appeared at this time to be a very close call.

"I am not exactly happy with the turnout but I think we have a good foundation to build on," Wendland said.

Fair promoters had predicted that 300,000 people would visit Arlington Park from Aug. 24 through Sept. 3.

WENDLAND SAID that no decision has yet been made on whether the fair would be held next year, although he said there have been discussions on possible dates and program changes for next year.

Wendland is executive vice president of Future of America Fairs, Inc., a subsidiary of Madison Square Garden Corp.

It will be at least another month before fair officials have a complete financial picture of the cost and receipts from the fair, he said.

Earlier, promoters said nearly $400,000 was spent to book a lineup of big name entertainers for grandstand shows each night of the fair.

Wendland declined comment on whether the $3 adult gate admission might have been too high, or whether it might be lowered if the fair is held again next year.

"WE RECEIVED a number of good comments from people who realized this was our first go 'round and the shortness of time we had to put it on. We also got some comments that were not so good."

ARLINGTON PARK'S Future of America Fair was a pilot production for Madison Square Garden which had said it would promote the event at other locations throughout the country if the venture proved successful here.

Wendland said it could take three years to build the fair into a major expo.

In addition to a financial analysis of this year's fair, the as yet undetermined horse racing dates awarded to Arlington Park next year will have a bearing on whether another Future of America Fair will be scheduled, he said.

AND THE WAIT GOES ON. Hundreds of people lined up yesterday to register for the Arlington Heights Park District's fall and winter programs. Olympic Park (above) was jammed with women waiting up to two hours to enroll in programs. Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation, said the long wait was due to the number of persons registering for the indoor swimming program. Other registration centers, while busy, were not "overwhelmed" as was Olympic. Dodd said. Registration continues daily from 10 a.m. until noon, and 1 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Planners reject proposal for new shopping center

The Arlington Heights plan commission voted last night to reject plans for a $1 million neighborhood shopping center at New Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Chairman O. V. Anderson said in striking down the Brian Properties, Inc., proposal, "This represents more asphalt jungle and not enough landscaping."

Brian Properties submitted plans that called for a row-type shopping center and a two-story office building on the four-acre site. The land is presently zoned for single-family homes, but the village-sponsored study for development of the area called for research and development and manufacturing zoning.

Bennett Trapani, Brian contractor, said after the commission's decision, "That's round one. We're still going before the (village) board."

The village board makes the final ruling on zoning changes and variations. If Brian Properties is rejected by the board, they still have the option of going to court.

A 33-year-old Arlington Heights man was arrested Tuesday afternoon on charges of growing marijuana after a police officer saw three potted plants on the man's apartment balcony.

Arlington Heights police said the officer on foot patrol saw three suspicious plants being sunned on a balcony at 2403 E. Olive. The officer called to the tenant, Arnold L. Spitz, asking what type of plants they were. Spitz reportedly answered they were "just plants."

Spitz was apprehended as he attempted to flee out a rear door and across a parking lot, police said.

He was freed on $1,000 bond pending a Sept. 14 appearance in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

OPPOSITION TO the plan was centered on several items. Commissioners termed the Brian proposals "too sketchy," and said adequate traffic impact surveys had not been taken. However, the major point of contention was that the project was not compatible with long-range plans for the area. Commissioners said they did not want New Arlington Heights Road to become a commercial strip.

Jack Wisler, developer and co-owner of Brian, said the center would have been an asset to the village in providing $30,000 in sales and property tax monies annually. He said a great portion of those funds would go toward schools, without placing a burden of increased enrollment.

Elk Grove to fight over annexation

by FRED GACA

Elk Grove Village is preparing for a possible legal battle against Arlington Heights over the proposed annexation of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

The Elk Grove Village board directed its attorney, Edward Hofert, to review the annexation proposed by Arlington Heights to determine what legal grounds Elk Grove may have to fight the move. Hofert is to report back to the board at the Sept. 11 meeting.

"We have to force them (Arlington Heights) to honor the boundary agreement," said Trustee Edward Kenna, the most vocal board member critical of the annexation.

Kenna, at Tuesday's board meeting, called for a resolution asking the Northwest Municipal Conference to censure Arlington Heights for considering the annexation.

TRUSTEE GEORGE Spees called for a resolution asking the Cook County Council of Governments to also censure Arlington Heights.

Village President Charles Zetek spoke against any censure of Arlington Heights before the convention center site was actually annexed by Arlington Heights.

"I don't get excited about throwing stones at people you want to shake hands with," said Zetek.

"I'm not sure their hand is out to us," Spees said.

"We're burying our heads in the sand to ignore their (Arlington Heights) action," Kenna added.

Hofert advised the board not to be premature in any action. He said Elk Grove should wait until Arlington Heights has taken action instead of "jumping to conclusions."

THE POSSIBLE legal battle stems from the expected annexation by Arlington Heights of 65 acres south of the Northwest Tollway and east of Arlington Heights Road. The unincorporated land is now owned by Charles Klehm and he wants it to become part of Arlington Heights.

The site would be developed into a convention center with a possible later development of an apartment complex.

Elk Grove Village is arguing that the tollway has long been considered by Elk Grove and Arlington Heights as the common boundary between the villages. No binding legal document has ever been signed by the two villages, however, accepting the tollway as the boundary.

To annex the property, Arlington Heights must annex a portion of the tollway to get contiguous boundaries. The state tollway commission has already granted permission to Arlington Heights to annex that portion of the road.

AS PART of the possible legal fight, Hofert has been asked to consider action against the tollway commission for allowing the Arlington Heights annexation without notifying Elk Grove Village.

The Arlington Heights plan commission recommended approval of the convention site annexation several weeks ago by an 8-2 vote. The two dissenting members voted against the annexation because they felt it would violate the understanding between Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

Elk Grove Village Mgr. Charles Willis appeared at the plan commission hearing to offer argument for honoring the boundary.

Youth caught after chase in auto—and on foot

by TONI GINETTI

A 17-year-old Barrington youth yesterday led police from five departments on a high speed auto chase through Rolling Meadows and then eluded police in a foot chase through four blocks of the city before he was finally apprehended.

The youth, Harold C. Whitten of 530 Shorely, Barrington, was apprehended by Rolling Meadows Officers Roger Hamann and Bruce Murphy on the 2300 block of Bluebird Lane after a 30-minute auto chase through the city which reached

Youth caught after chase in auto—and on foot

Whitten apparently stole the vehicle with the key in the ignition at a laundrette in Barrington at about 12:30 p.m. yesterday, police said. The auto, a 1968 Javelin, is owned by Mrs. Barbara B. Klass, 21 E. Barrington Rd., Barrington.

THE YOUTH was spotted by Rolling Meadows Officer Douglas Larsson as the youth sped westbound on Campbell Street through the intersection at Campbell and Wilke Road. Whitten was clocked by police radar as traveling at 90 m.p.h. when Larsson began the chase.

Whitten led police southbound on Wilke, westbound on Kirchoff Road, northbound on Meadow Drive north to Fremont Street, and then southbound to the 2400 block of Bluebird Lane where he left the car and fled on foot.

Police said Whitten drove through stop signs and traffic lights during the chase and drove around a partial road block that was set up at Kirchoff and Meadow. He narrowly avoided striking several children at the intersection of School and Meadow Drives who were returning to school, according to Rolling Meadows Police Sgt. Timothy Lonergan. Lonergan said a woman pulled the children from the street when Whitten's vehicle sped past.

ELEVEN ROLLING Meadows policemen pursued Whitten on foot within a four-block area north of Bluebird Lane. Police Chief Lewis R. Case said squad cars from Palatine, Arlington Heights, Cook County Sheriff's Police, and the State Police as well as city public works vehicles in the area assisted in cordoning off a four-block radius around Bluebird Lane.

The youth was carrying a Minnesota drivers license and told police he has lived in Barrington only about six months.

Whitten will be arraigned today in Arlington Heights Circuit Court on charges of possession of stolen property, reckless conduct, eluding a police officer, and at least 14 traffic offenses.

Group to study school site

by LINDA PUNCH

Continued pressure from angry parents has moved the River Trails Dist. 26 board to call for formation of a citizens' committee to study possible sites for the new Maryville school.

The committee will be made up of representatives of each school, a board representative and a member of the administration. The board set a 30-day deadline for site recommendations from the committee.

The board unanimously agreed to formation of the committee after parents continued to be dissatisfied with the board's explanation for selecting the River Trails Junior High School site as the location for the new school.

The decision came after a 5½-hour meeting in which school board members and district administrators attempted to justify their site selection. The board voted 5 to 2 last month to place the new school for Maryville children, who are wards of the state, on the same site as River Trails Junior High.

The board voted then despite requests by parents to postpone the decision until the people in the community could have more time to voice their opinions.

DIST. 26 acting Supt. James Retzlaff said the board has not set guidelines for the committee. He said the committee will review materials and information gathered previously by the administration before making a statement or recommendation on a site.

"The board didn't rescind its Aug. 7 vote on the Maryville site — I suppose as a result of the committee report, there may be a question whether or not the board will stand by its decision," he said.

Retzlaff said he hopes the committee "doesn't fool around and lose it all for us." State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, a sponsor of the bill providing state funds for the new Maryville school, said the "committed money" could disappear if the board waits too long. Schlickman attended Tuesday's meeting.

Board member Mike Sheyker, who voted against the River Trails site, suggested formation of the citizens' committee since many questions "had not yet been adequately answered."

"THERE IS one question that has remained unanswered since the beginning — is there really any benefit to building off the Maryville site?" Sheyker said.

Sheyker said the board should have involved citizens in the site selection sooner. His sentiments were echoed by several board members including Leora Rosen, Ted Wattenberg and Sylvia Lurie.

"I like the idea of a citizens' committee," Mrs. Lurie said. "If the people go over the same stuff, I'm sure they'll wind up with the same conclusions."

Schlickman, along with several school officials, urged speedy action on selection of the site.

"What if there is a life-killing fire or an explosion at Maryville? God only knows what will happen in the future," Schlickman said.

Shopping center up for discussion

Brian Properties, Inc., will present preliminary plans for a new shopping center at Dundee and New Arlington Heights roads to the Arlington Heights plan commission tonight.

Plans submitted to the village planning department call for a two-story office building and a row of retail shops on the four-acre site.

James Milton Ray Associates is the architect for the project and Bennett P. Trapani is the contractor.
